STATE NORMAL SCHOOL, BLOOMSBURG.

A CENTURY OF TEACHER EDUCATION AT BLOOMSBURG

After 40 Years in Pennsylvania State Colleges

By HARVEY A. ANDRUSS
President, Bloomsburg State College

Public Higher Education

A history of higher education in Pennsylvania, with specific reference to State Colleges, must consider at least two historical factors.

Colleges and universities began as academies, seminaries, or institutes sponsored by the various religious groups who came to a colony where religious toleration existed. In time, these early academies became colleges and universities. Their original purpose of training ministers for the various church groups was broadened on the assumption that what was good for the shepherd was good for the flock.

The requirements for admission and costs for attending private colleges were relatively high, and were only waived for sons and daughters of ministers or missionaries. This early start of private colleges gave status. Thus the general opinion that private education was better than public education. It was assumed that since there was a direct outlay for tuition, private education was worth more.

The second factor affecting the development of the State Normal Schools (1911), now State Colleges, was the fact that they were, by law, part of the public school system.

Public Schools in Pennsylvania began, as in England, as "pauper" schools. As early as 1790, there was a provisional law which read: "The legislature shall provide by law for the establishment of schools throughout the state in such a manner that the poor may be taught gratis"; included was the clause, "As soon as conveniently may be." James Pyle Wickersham writes, "Such a system of class education necessarily failed in a state where the doctrine of equality had always been strongly held." He further states that, "The idea that public schools should be open alike without discrimination or partiality to all children of all classes and condition of men" continued with the passage of the Public School Law of 1834. (James Pyle Wickersham, Superintendent of Common Schools in Pennsylvania from 1866 to 1881, also was associated with what is now Millersville State College.)

The early Normal Schools, sometimes organized on a county basis, were operated for short periods of time; finally, after 1857, they were authorized by the State. These two historical factors, namely, the status created by the early beginning of private colleges and universities under church sponsorship, and the identification of the Normal Schools with the public schools which were organized for the poor, continue to linger in the minds of the citizens of Pennsylvania.

It is against this background that educators of other states question, and sometimes are amazed by the reluctance of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to educate as large a number of its young people beyond the age of eighteen years as is done by many other states in our country.

On the other hand, it can be argued, and with basis, that the western migration, after 1800, caused populations first to organize territories, and then states. And at this time, except for a few mission schools, originally organized for Indians, the newer states had a clean slate. Since there was no private higher education, they were forced to provide Universities, Land-Grant Colleges, Normal Schools, and later, State Teachers Colleges. However, it must be urged that only an increase in public higher education will enable the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to realize its responsibilities in providing opportunities of higher education for all worthy youth. Otherwise Pennsylvania will continue to lag.

After Forty Years

Few people remember that Alexander Dumas wrote a sequel to his best-selling novel, THE THREE MUSKETEERS. The second book, entitled TWENTY YEARS AFTER, continues the story of D'Artagnon and his three companions. It suffered the fate of most sequels in that it was never as well known as the original.

Twenty years ago a doctoral dissertation attempted to sketch the "Development of Pennsylvania State Teachers Colleges as Institutions of Higher Education (1927-1948)."

The author of the dissertation is now undertaking the task of giving his impressions of the last forty years of the development of the institutions now known as the Pennsylvania State Colleges. These comments are personal in nature, and limited in scope by the observation, philosophy, and memory of one man. Particular attention is given to the second score of years (1948-1968), although the general framework is that of the original dissertation.

Certainly, the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, as the Chief School Officer of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, has had a marked effect on the transition from the State Normal School, to State Teachers Colleges, to State Colleges, and now a period in which at least one of the institutions has become a university.

Superintendents of Public Instruction

The State Normal Schools, according to law, were part of the public school system of Pennsylvania. Their original purpose was the education and training of teachers. These institutions were the outgrowth of efforts of the County Superintendents to increase the period of training and the educational background of the teachers. After 1920, the certification of teachers came under state control. Therefore, the State Superintendent of Public Instruction was in a powerful position.

While it is very difficult to evaluate all of the influences of the chief public school officer of Pennsylvania on the institutions which were originally the Pennsylvania State Normal Schools, a few impressions will serve to indicate the importance of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

When these institutions became State Teachers Colleges in 1927, the Superintendent of Public Instruction was Dr. John A. H. Keith, formerly Principal of the Indiana State Normal School. His experience, as a member of the faculty of Columbia University, as head of a campus training school at DeKalb, Illinois, and as President of a college at Oshkosh, Wisconsin, fitted him for the administration of the Pennsylvania State Teachers Colleges. The building of several campus laboratory schools during his administration is a reflection of his interest in the student-teaching activity. Many of the decisions made during his administration regarding the organization of student government associations and the operation of college bookstores are still in effect. Faculty policies, such as salary schedules, leaves of absence every third summer with pay, and sick leave policies, were originally developed during the administration of Dr. Keith.

Under the administration of Dr. James N. Rule, the difficult problems of trying to adjust the institutions to decreased state appropriations were faced, and the first system of student fees for instruction was inaugurated. Salary schedules

Dr. Andruss Announces Retirement

Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, President of Bloomsburg State College since August 1939, announced his plans for retirement dating from September of 1969, during the mid-year commencement exercises held at the College on Wednesday, January 22, 1969. His thirty years of service as President has seldom been equalled in the colleges and universities of the nation, and has only been approached at Bloomsburg by that of Dr. David J. Waller, Jr., who served as Principal of the Bloomsburg State Normal School for two periods totalling 27 years. Before coming to Bloomsburg as head of the Business Department in 1930, Dr. Andruss was for three years in charge of the Accounting Department at Indiana State Teachers College which is now Indiana University of Pennsylvania. He has served the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania a total of 43 years.

A native of Texas, Dr. Andruss was raised and educated in the state of Oklahoma. He earned the Bachelor of Arts degree at the University of Oklahoma, the Master of Business Administration degree at Northwestern University, and the Doctor of Education degree at The Pennsylvania State University. His service to education spans a period of 46 years, including four years as a teacher and administrator in the public schools of Oklahoma, as a special lecturer at some of the nation's leading universities, and as the author of a number of textbooks which have been widely used in business education.

During his Presidency, a number of significant changes took place in all phases of the academic and physical aspects at Bloomsburg State College. Bloomsburg, as a teachers college, granted only the Bachelor of Science degree in education until 1960. It now grants the Bachelor of Arts degree in Business Administration, the Master of Education degree, and recently authorization has been received to grant the Master of Arts degree in certain fields.

Dr. Andruss, in cooperation with the college Board of Trustees, developed the first approved campus plan for a Pennsylvania State College. In the past 10 years, a continuous building program has been under way at Bloomsburg. The present and proposed building program at the college will cost more than $40,000,000.

During his administration, the enrollment at the college increased almost seven times. The total enrollment in September 1969 will probably exceed 4,500 students including 3,700 full-time undergraduates. Accompanying the increases in student enrollments, there has been a corresponding increase in faculty and non-instructional personnel.

On his retirement, Dr. Andruss can look back with pride to the facilities and opportunities in higher education that B.S.C. has made available to the students of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

157 GRADUATE AT MID-YEAR COMMENCEMENT

One hundred forty-two seniors and fifteen graduate students were awarded degrees at the mid-year commencement exercises of Bloomsburg State College held at two o'clock Wednesday afternoon, January 22, in Haas Auditorium. Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president of the College for the past thirty years, delivered the charge to the graduates.

The following seniors were graduated with academic honors: Summa cum laude (3.75 to 4.0)—Galen Quick, 3618 Old Berwick Road, Bloomsburg; Bachelor of Arts degree in Arts and Sciences with a major in English, 3.84; Judith DeFant, Hazleton, Bachelor of Science degree in Special Education with a major in mental retardation, 3.79; magna cum laude (3.60 to 3.75)—Betty McCutcheon, Conyngham, Bachelor of Science degree in Business Education, 3.63; Linda L. Heckman, Boyertown, Bachelor of Science degree in Elementary Education, 3.62; Cum laude (3.50 to 3.60)—Barbara A. Masich, Sixth avenue, Berwick, Bachelor of Science degree in Business Education, 3.56; C. Donnell Walther Kelly, Sunbury, Bachelor of Science degree in Elementary Education, 3.53; Charlotte Toumey, Newark, Del., Bachelor of Science degree in Business Education, 3.50.

Dr. John A. Hoch, dean of instruction, presented the candidates to Dr. Andruss, who conferred the degrees. The presentation of the diplomas was made by the various divisional directors.

Presentation of the seniors to be honored was made by Charles M. Brennan, advisor to the senior class. Presentation of awards was made by Elton Hunsinger, dean of students. James Creasy, assistant to the president, served as commencement marshal, and William Decker, chairman Department of Music, was the organist. Dr. Andruss also gave the invocation.

Diplomas were presented to twenty-six seniors in the Division of Business Education, thirty-eight in the Division of Elementary Education, fifty-one in the Division of Secondary Education, thirteen in the Division of Special Education, thirteen in the Division of Arts and Sciences, and one public school nurse. Fifteen Master of Education degrees were awarded.

COL. EISENHOWER TELLS OF WHITE HOUSE YEARS

"From the hurly-burly of politics I have been a part of for the past two weeks to the relative calm of an academic institution and the orderly manner of the students at Bloomsburg State College is like a breath of fresh air." Col. John S. D. Eisenhower, prefaced his talk at the twenty-second annual Conference for Teachers and Administrators at BSC in Haas Auditorium.

Dr. C. Stuart Edwards, conference chairman, introduced Col. Eisenhower, who spoke to a packed auditorium of teachers, administrators and students on "The White House Years."

A HUNDRED YEARS OF TEACHER EDUCATION AT BLOOMSBURG - 1869-1969

The basis for teacher education at Bloomsburg was laid by chance in the autumn of 1867 when the then Superintendent of Public Instruction, T. P. Wickersham, passed through the town by train and saw the newly erected Carver Hall on the hill "ablaze with light." The location of a new Normal School in the Sixth District was under consideration; so Wickersham returned to Bloomsburg, addressed a meeting of the citizens, and said that the Literary Institute location would be ideal for a State Normal School. The Board of Trustees concurred, and on March 9, 1868, the following resolution was adopted: "Resolved that the Trustees of the Bloomsburg Literary Institute agree to establish in connection with the same 'A State Normal School' . . ."

Establishment of the Normal School necessitated the erection of a dormitory, and plans for the building were submitted by Principal Carver on April 15, 1868, which called for an estimated cost of $36,000. The laying of the cornerstone on June 25, 1868, was a memorable occasion. Prayer was offered by D. J. Waller, Sr.; Governor Geary laid the cornerstone and made an appropriate address. Other participants included Superintendent Wickersham, Principal Carver, and the Honorable William Elwell, President Judge of the County Courts.

Early in February 1869, the trustees requested that a committee be appointed under the Act of 1857 to consider chartering the Literary Institute as a State Normal School. On February 18, the committee examined facilities and the proposed curriculum and the next day submitted a favorable report and recommendation. Thus February 19, 1896 can be considered the birthday of Teacher Education at Bloomsburg, although the proclamation of the State Superintendent was signed and sealed three days later, and the first prospective teachers were not enrolled until September.

At first the curriculum consisted of the traditional high school subjects supplemented by courses in the methods of teaching. Normal School students did not even have to be high school graduates. But, as time went on, the required terms were increased from 21 to 42 weeks, high school graduation was made an admission requirement, and "professionalized content" courses were introduced. A Model School was opened relatively early in the program and existed in various locations until the opening of the Benjamin Franklin Training School in 1930.

The Literary Institute and State Normal School continued to perform its dual function of college preparation and teacher training until after its purchase by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in May 1916 after three years of negotiation. From this time on until 1960 its purpose was wholly the preparation of teachers. First, for the elementary school only, and later for teachers of junior and senior high school. Since 1960, non-professional degrees in Arts and Sciences have been authorized, but eighty-five percent of the college's enrollment is still in the four teacher education curriculums.

A change in name, the privilege to grant degrees, and the mandate to train high school teachers was dramatically announced by Principal Reimer at a faculty-student party in May, 1927. From that date, the name of the institution was to be Bloomsburg State Teachers College.

In many ways the history of an institution and its functions reflect the personalities and leadership of the men at its head. With rare exception Bloomsburg has enjoyed enlightened and progressive leadership from the indomitable Henry Carver, who started the Normal School movement, to the present President, Harvey A. Andruss. Carver was followed by two short-term Principals, Charles G. Barkley and John Hewett, each of whom served a year. Hewett was succeeded by T. L. Griswold, who served four somewhat controversial and stormy years.

In 1877, at a low point in the schools morale and prestige, D. J. Waller, Jr., assumed the Principalship and lifted the facilities and the curriculum to a new and more progressive plane. Waller served until his appointment in 1890 to the State Superintendentcy and returned in 1906 to serve through the maturation of its teacher education programs and its sale to the State, retiring in 1920. Judson Welsh, a Bloomsburg graduate, succeeded Waller in 1890 and served until Waller's return in 1906, his tenure marked particularly by the addition of several buildings to the campus.

Waller was succeeded in turn by Charles H. Fisher (1920-1923), G. C. L. Reimer (1923-1927), and Francis B. Haas (1927-1939), the latter leaving the Presidency to become Superintendent of Public Instruction. Haas holds the distinction of being the last Principal of Bloomsburg and the first President of the College.

During the Haas tenure, in 1930, Harvey A. Andruss joined the administrative staff to organize the Division of Business Education. He succeeded from this to become Dean of Instruction, and later, in 1939, President of the College. Under this administration, the longest presidential tenure in the college's history, the most and major changes have taken place.

Not only was the program for business teachers inaugurated and it and all other areas consistently strengthened during these years, but the special challenge of World War II was met and the survival of the college assured. With only a handful of women as a nucleus in teacher education, Andruss assured the use of facilities and the maintenance of faculty by obtaining instructional assignments from the Navy in its V-5 and V-12 programs. Thus, the plant and faculty were intact to service not only the post-war flood of ex-G.I.'s, but even to instruct several sections of Penn State freshmen. The years that followed have shown this same foresight and dedication to the future of the college.

In the Century past Bloomsburg has progressed in the education of teachers from high school level work to the extension of the preparation time to one to two to three to four years, and from the preparation of elementary teachers only through the training of special education teachers, speech correctionists, teachers of business subjects, as well as those of practically all the academic areas of the junior and senior high school program of studies. In fact, the enrollment in Masters Degree programs alone in the various areas of teacher education now exceeds the total student body of the institution in some years past.

From meager instruction in high school subjects and a token exposure to methods, the College's curriculum has evolved to the point where almost half of its program is in general education of high quality liberal arts character, a little less than one-fourth devoted to professional education — carefully planned and culminated by a semester of full-time student teaching in one of a hundred schools — and the rest, some 42 or more credits, devoted to a major in the students' chosen field of specialization, whether in elementary education, Business education, secondary education, or special education.

If the changes of the past decade can serve as indicators of things to come, and if the ferment of change all around us in the world have meaning for education, the outlook at the beginning of the second century of teacher education at Bloomsburg looms even more exciting, challenging, and rewarding than the hundred years which have passed.

Mrs. Webster was graduated with honors from Berwick High School. She received a Bachelor of Education degree from Bloomsburg State College and a Master's degree from Bucknell University.

INSTRUCTORS HAVE WIDE RANGE IN PREPARATION

A substantial increase in the salary scale of faculty members of Bloomsburg State College is revealed in a report covering the 1963-64 and the 1968-69 college years.

During the five year period, the low salary was increased from $5,680 to $6,910, an increase of $1,230. At the same time, the high salary scale increased from $9,720 to $15,820 for an increase of $6,100.

In the same period it is also interesting to observe the high degrees of faculty members earned in states and nations. In the 1963-64 college year, with 128 faculty members, the degrees were earned in a total of 17 states and the country of Hungary. During the present college year, of the 244 faculty members the highest degrees were earned in thirty-four states and the countries of England, Spain and Cuba.

In both the college years of the comparison, Pennsylvania led the other states with 90 degrees earned in that state in the 1963-64 period and 117 represented in the 1968-69 group. In both periods, New York placed second, 14 in 1963-1964 and 24 in the present period.

The average age of faculty members in the comparison is very close. In the 1963-64 period, the ages ranged from 23 to 66 years old with an average of 41.27 years, while the 1968-69 year has a range of ages from 24 to 65 years with an average age of 41.18 years.

During the earlier period the average mean salary for nine months, excluding the administrative field, was $7,777 and for the present period, excluding the administrative fees, the average mean salary is $11,190. Including administrative fees, the comparison is $7,866 against $11,303.

Today's faculty at BSC is made up of forty-two full professors, 105 associate professors, seventy-three assistant professors, and twenty-three instructors. In an analysis of their educational backgrounds, this group is made up of seventy-one members who have received their Doctor's degree, 167 who have earned their Master's degree, and six who have been awarded a Bachelor's degree.

In an additional breakdown of years of service at BSC, the present faculty consists of 144 who have been at the college for a period of one to five years, sixty-five from six to ten years, twenty-one from eleven to fifteen years, six from sixteen to twenty years, and eight who have been at the college twenty-one years or longer.

TWO BUILDINGS TO BE DEDICATED

An important feature of Alumni Day, Saturday, April 26, will be the dedication of two new buildings on the BSC campus. One building is Ellwell Hall, named after a distinguished Bloomsburg family, closely connected with the history of the College through three generations. This is the men's dormitory, across the street from Long Porch.

The other is the Hartline Science Center, named after the Hartline family. Mr. D. S. Hartline was for many years the head of the Science Department. Mrs. Hartline was a member of the faculty, and their son, Dr. H. Keffer Hartline, '20, was a recent recipient of the Nobel Prize in Medicine.

The principal speaker at the dedication ceremonies will be Dr. Edward Ford MacNichol, Jr.

Dr. MacNichol was appointed Director of the National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Blindness (NINDB) and Acting Director of the newly-formed National Eye Institute in September, 1968. A few weeks later, Congress changed the Institute's name to the National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Stroke.

He received the AB degree in physics from Princeton University in 1941. He was a graduate student at the Eldredge Reeves Johnson Foundation of the University of Pennsylvania from 1947 to 1948; and he received the Ph.D. Degree in biophysics from Princeton University in 1952 under the supervision of Dr. H. K. Hartline, who received the Nobel prize in Physiology and Medicine in 1967.

From 1941 through 1946, Dr. MacNichol was a staff member of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology Radiation Laboratory. After receiving his Doctorate, Dr. MacNichol remained at the Johns Hopkins University, where he became a professor of biophysics.

Known internationally for his research on the physiology of the eye, Dr. MacNichol has published scientific papers on the electrophysiology of Vertebrate and invertebrate eyes and on the measurement of pigment in single vertebrate photoreceptors.

Further details of the dedication ceremonies will be released later.

were either frozen, or in some cases discounted at the rate of 10% or more from the adopted schedules, and summer sessions were expected to be self-supporting, insofar as the student fees were to cover the faculty salaries. In addition, numerous attempts were made by the private colleges to restrict the area of teacher training of the State Teachers Colleges. For instance, one proposal was made that the State Teachers Colleges would train only elementary teachers and secondary teachers in such special fields as Business, Music, and Art, whereas the private universities would train secondary teachers of academic subjects, and the graduate work would be allocated to three universities of Pennsylvania. This effort was defeated by the astute administrative ability of Dr. Rule, and should not go unnoticed.

Dr. Lester K. Ade came upon the scene from the Presidency of the New Haven State Teachers College, and with his experience as Dean of West Chester State Teachers College, and his connection with the Muncy Normal School, a period of building expansion began. The first General State Authority Program resulted in building and expansion in the State Teachers Colleges which was unparalleled until that time. Attention was given to removing of fire, safety, and health hazards in the older buildings; curriculums were revised; and a degree of uniformity was developed among the fourteen institutions. Numerous publications regarding public schools, as well as the curriculums of State Colleges, were distributed, and this unusual period of growth was followed by the liquidation of the first General State Authority Program with the paying off of the outstanding bonds during the administration of Governor Edward Martin.

With the beginning of the administration of Governor Arthur H. James, who appointed Dr. Francis B. Haas as State Superintendent, we had a four-term (more than sixteen years) administration of one well versed in state government. Dr. Haas had been a member of the Department of Public Instruction in the Teacher Bureau, had a first-hand knowledge of teacher certification and finance, and had served twelve years as President of Bloomsburg State College. He brought to the Office of the State Superintendent a range of experience and ability which has not been paralleled up to this time.

While there was a very evident policy on the part of the governors of Pennsylvania during this period to limit the functions of State Teachers Colleges to that of the education of teachers, there was also a seeming reluctance to grant them the opportunity to offer the curriculums leading to the Master's degree. The influence of the private colleges through representatives on the State Council of Education was very evident during this period. But there was some increase in faculty salaries, and in an effort to reduce the amount of political influence on appointments, a provision was made for overlapping terms for members of the Board of Trustees. It must be remembered that World War II intervened during this period, and it was proposed that some of the colleges be closed, or converted to other uses.

This was a period of consolidation of the gains previously made, rather than launching into new areas. During this period, the faculties of the State Teachers Colleges were organized as an association which sponsored the first legislation governing salaries, faculty rank, qualifications, promotions, and, in subsequent years, leaves of absence and sick leave.

The period of greatest development in recent years was launched during the administration of Dr. Charles H. Boehm, who came to the State Superintendency from the position of Superintendent of Bucks County Schools. In the short period of less than two terms, Dr. Boehm was responsible for the changes in the name of State Teachers Colleges to State Colleges, the broadening of the curriculum to cover Bachelor degrees in the fields of Arts and Sciences, the launching of graduate programs leading to the degree of Master of Education, and the present or second General State Authority Building Program. All of this indicated that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania was interested in expanding the fourteen state-owned institutions to serve 100,000 or more students.

With the appointment of Dr. David Kurtzman as State Superintendent, greater emphasis is being given to planning and budgeting. To some extent, this is made necessary by the change of the fiscal year of the Commonwealth from a biennial to an annual basis. Faculty salaries have been augmented on three occasions by two increments by action of the Executive Board of the Commonwealth. Increases in student fees along with increases in appropriations are other evidences of the concern of the present administration with fiscal and budgetary affairs. An association of alumni has been set up on a state-wide basis, and the overall organization of trustees, faculty, alumni, presidents, and students is now known as the Association of State College Organizations. Much is expected of this group.

Every Seven Years

This process of slow development from two-year certificate-granting schools to four-year degree-granting colleges, and now the rapid development of graduate institutions granting advanced degrees, can be viewed in terms of seven-year cycles:

1913—This is the date when the purchase of the several Normal Schools began.

1920—Most of the present institutions had become the property of the State and, for the first time, admissions were uniform. Curriculums were required to be similar, if not uniform, and for seven years this continued until 1927.

1927—the name of the Normal Schools was changed to State Teachers Colleges. Four-year curriculums leading to the degree of Bachelor of Science in Education were inaugurated; however, the two-year and later the three-year curriculums were continued until 1934.

1934—In this year the two-year and three-year certificate holders walked in the commencement procession for the last time with the four-year graduates who received degrees. This period of transition from a State Teachers College (in name) to a State Teachers College (in fact) continued until 1941.

1941—when America went to war, and many of the colleges were rapidly denuded of their male population. Replacing students who were in the Armed Services were many men in uniform. At Bloomsburg, for example, a thousand people learned to fly, and deck officers and other personnel also were trained. After World War II, a new post-war period was in full swing by 1948.

1948—the returning G. I.'s came to the State Teachers Colleges in large numbers since federal legislation provided educational advantages at low tuition rates. At this time, freshmen admitted to Pennsylvania State College (now University) attended classes for one year at a State Teachers College and then went on to the mother institution. This was a seven-year period of experimentation and transition. Then

1955—marked a milestone in the attitude of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania toward its State Teachers Colleges. Construction since 1925 had consisted mainly of renovating old buildings and adding a few other necessary buildings, including campus laboratory schools. In this year, the State seemed to reach the decision that it must expand its own public higher institutions, and the second General State Authority program began. This period of expansion in plant was followed in 1962—with the beginning of graduate programs leading to the Master's degree and the admission of students who, at the end of four years, would receive the Bachelor of Arts degree. (The name of the schools had been changed in 1960 from State Teachers Colleges to State Colleges.)

1969—What can we expect this year? Certainly the alumni of any State College can, in the not too distant future, envision the change in name of their Alma Mater to that of a State University.

Stages of Development

We are able to make certain comments and possibly hint at certain conclusions when these seven-year stages of development are viewed in relation to the following five educational factors: 1) Organization and Control, 2) Financial Support, 3) Students, 4) Faculty, and 5) Curricular Offerings.

Organization and Control

The organization and control of the Pennsylvania State Teachers Colleges, for the first twenty-one years of their existence, changed only to the extent that provision was made for overlapping terms for the members of the Board of Trustees. Originally, the Governor appointed the Trustees with the approval of the Senate. During this period, in the counties in which the colleges were located, chairmen of the political party in power had great influence in suggesting, urging, or, in fact, nominating persons appointed to the Boards of Trustees. Sometimes the senator of a local district also had, and in fact still has, the veto power in this area.

For these and other reasons, various proposals have been made to constitute a new policy-making body for all fourteen institutions, known as the State Board of Regents, Trustees, or Directors, which would limit the fourteen local Boards of Trustees to a consultative or advisory basis. At the same time, it was recognized that there was a need for greater autonomy at the local level. For too long the State Colleges have been subject to the same budgeting, purchasing, and other administrative procedures developed over a period of time for prisons, hospitals, or mental institutions. Since students provide the fees in an increasing amount for instruction, housing, food, and medical services, the State Colleges cannot be administered in the same way as institutions for inmates, patients, and prisoners. Little or no progress has been made in developing new organizational and control patterns for the State Colleges in the last forty years. This is a matter of prime concern, as these fourteen institutions are serving fifty or sixty thousand students, and will probably double in enrollment in the next decade.

Financial Support

The increasing reliance on local fees collected from students is the chief characteristic of the financial basis of operation. Only recently has the State appropriated more money than the institutions have collected from students under one guise or another.

A general guideline or policy needs to be developed so as to determine the portion of the total cost to be borne by the students, with the remainder to be appropriated by the Commonwealth. Probably, auxiliary enterprises, including food service and residence hall maintenance, should be self-supporting.

All future arrangements should keep in mind the economic level of the families from which the students of State Colleges come. Consideration should also be given to the funds available in the form of loans and scholarships or grants-in-aid for all college students. The recent forty percent increase in student fees ($250 to $350) at State Colleges, with a corresponding reduction in state appropriations requested by the institutions, cannot be continued as a device for balancing the State's General Fund Budget.

Students

A more or less uniform statement for admission of students to the State Normal Schools was formalized in 1920. It was reviewed again in 1927, and the admission policy continued to attract greater attention; but numbers had been limited by the capacities of the colleges. Rank in high school graduating classes and college board scores seem to indicate that the abilities and achievements of the students admitted to the Colleges have been slowly improving. Five or six times as many applications are received as the number of places available for the entering freshman classes. Academic and graduation requirements have been gradually improved; and the student-teaching experience in the senior year has moved from the campus to cooperating public schools located, in many cases, beyond the commuting area of the college.

With the great pressure for admitting increasing numbers of students to public institutions of higher education, the balance between the number of students and the number of available faculty can only be maintained on the basis of a reasonable student-faculty ratio. This means restricting the enrollment of students, or overloading the faculty either by increasing class sizes or by increasing the number of classes. These choices must be considered along with a program for new buildings, which is usually delayed beyond the planned completion dates.

Sometimes plans for a building program are not coordinated with the concurrent completion of classrooms, dining halls, and dormitories. There have been attempts to accommodate an ever-increasing number of students in or near the towns in which the colleges are located, through the building of private dormitories, and, in a few cases, private dining halls.

Faculty

With the growth in enrollment, the number of faculty has increased more rapidly than the number of students. This increase has also been marked by an improvement in the degree-holding status of the faculty. In other words, there are more who hold the doctor's degree, and fewer holding just bachelor's degrees. The present law provides standards for academic rank. Accrediting agencies evaluate the institutions in terms of the degrees held by faculty members and their graduate preparation along with teaching and/or related experience, which is required for employment and promotion. In the 1967-68 college year, there were 659 Professors, 1,149 Associate Professors, 995 Assistant Professors, and 491 Instructors in the Pennsylvania State College system. The last basic amendment of the Faculty State College Salary Act was approved July 30, 1963, and since that time there have been upward revisions of the salary schedule by the Executive Board of the Commonwealth. Although in each session of the legislature the Association of Pennsylvania State College and University Faculties has caused a bill to be introduced to increase salaries, Pennsylvania ranks high only in salaries paid to Instructors. Needed improvements in salaries are overdue.

Another problem is that when increases have been granted in the past they have become effective so late in the academic year that while providing more compensation for faculty members employed the previous year, they have not been available to attract new faculty members at the time when the employment process is in full swing.

With budgets in the process of being reviewed, and in many cases reduced in amount, either in terms of dollars available or number of new employees allowed, administrators are left with a great number of vacancies to fill even after the college year is opened. This means that there is a difficult choice between filling positions with applicants who are available late in the spring or summer for the academic year beginning in September, or leaving the positions vacant until likely candidates can be considered. This results not only in vacancies, but also in the employment of many temporary faculty members who are deficient in the amount of teaching or related experience required by law. Sometimes the temporary appointments amount to ten percent or more of the faculty. Delay in making new appointments means choosing between reducing expected enrollment, or creating a faculty overload by accepting a pre-determined number of students, then not being able to employ the authorized number of faculty.

Curricular Offerings

The transition from the two-year enrollment curriculum to the four-year baccalaureate degree program was made by authorizing a new grade of teaching certificates which permitted the student to teach in the elementary schools at the end of two years of preparation, but required the earning of a certain number of semester hours of credit during summer sessions, through extension courses, or in some other part-time manner. Later the level of preparation for those beginning to teach in the elementary schools was raised to three years. The general effect was to expect a certificate holder eventually to earn a Bachelor's degree and become eligible for the issuance of a college provisional certificate.

The same procedure was followed when the four-year level of preparation leading to a Bachelor's degree and the college provisional certificate were made the requirements for all teachers on both the elementary and secondary levels. Within a certain number of years following his graduation, an alumnus of a State College, in addition to his teaching, must earn twenty-four semester hours of credit to qualify for a permanent teaching certificate.

Since the Master of Education degree began to be offered by the State Colleges, a great preponderance of public school teachers have chosen to earn the additional semester hours along with a thesis, or other requirements, to receive a Master's degree. The net result is that all the State Colleges offer a Bachelor of Science in Education degree in the elementary and most of the secondary subject matter fields; and almost all offer the Master of Education degree in certain specified areas. Some are now offering the Master of Arts degree in subject matter fields.

This is a far cry from the three-year Normal School that would accept students from eighth grade, and graduate them in three years with a normal school diploma, or high school graduates who would complete the requirements in two years. All of the colleges are now accredited by the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education, and the Pennsylvania State Board of Education.

Summary

Broad generalizations are difficult since there are many exceptions. However, one cannot avoid having impressions spanning four decades; the State Normal School, the State Teachers College, the State Colleges, and the emerging multi-purpose institutions as universities.

While there has been a decided improvement among students, faculty, and curricular offerings, there has been a lag in the State's financial support; although support has improved in recent years, this area needs further attention. Unless larger amounts of money are available in the form of increased State appropriations, more students cannot be accommodated. If these increased appropriations are to be made effective for educational purposes, the influence of the governing bodies, be they known as Trustees, Regents, Visitors, Overseers, or Directors, must be limited to the development of policy.

The organization and control of Pennsylvania State Colleges has not changed in any perceptible degree in the last half-century; though the matter of organization and control has received some attention in the last decade, attempts at change have been more or less unsuccessful. Overlapping terms for members of the local Board of Trustees are only partially successful, since the filling of vacancies has sometimes been delayed to the point that the majority of the Trustees can be appointed by an incoming governor. The continued influence of the county chairman of the party in power still causes the political affiliation of the Trustees to be one of the determining factors in their appointment.

Growth in numbers also presents problems in preserving or improving a quality of instruction in present and proposed curricular offerings. Graduate programs leading to the Master of Arts, Master of Education degrees, along with transfers of two-year graduates from the Community Colleges may result in greater enrollments in the junior and senior years.

The Pennsylvania State Colleges have made remarkable progress in the last four decades, and they now represent one of the outstanding groups of institutions of higher education in the eastern United States. They have better students, better facilities, and better offerings than ever before.

Forty years ago even the most optimistic prophet hardly would have envisioned the threshold of the future faced by Pennsylvania State Colleges in the nineteen seventies.

The Commonwealth is fortunate in having fourteen such institutions in which its youth may be educated.

RECEIVE WORD DEATH DR., MRS. RUSSELL

Dr. H. Harrison Russell, for many years a valued member of the Bloomsburg State College faculty, died on September 6 at the age of eighty-six at a nursing home at Petone, Ill, following a stroke. Mrs. Russell died in her sleep at the nursing home in the spring of 1967, about two months after the esteemed couple entered the home. Both Dr. and Mrs. Russell took an active role in community life while residents of Bloomsburg.

Thank You

The following are the names, not previously reported, of those who have contributed to the Loyalty Fund up to December 31, 1968. We want to express the thanks of your Board of Directors for your loyal cooperation.

Ex-Faculty—Margaret E. Waldron.

Non-Grad—Francis X. Antonelli

1897—Mrs. Thomas York.

1898—Charles H. Weaver, Mrs. S. L. Richards.

Col. Elwood M. Wagner, BSC graduate and holder of the local alumni Distinguished Service Award, has been named professor of Air Force aerospace studies at The Pennsylvania State University, and has come to the University from Wiesbaden, Germany, where he was assigned to Headquarters, United States Air Force, Europe.

He entered the Air Corps in 1943 after graduating from Bloomsburg State College where he majored in business education. He attended flying school and was then assigned to the China-Burma-India Theatre where he flew 444 combat missions in the Battle of Burma and the "Hump."

Requesting release from active duty in 1946, Colonel Wagner attended graduate school at the University of Pennsylvania while teaching in a private school in Philadelphia. In 1947, he re-entered the Air Force as a regular officer and held various staff positions until 1951 at which time he was assigned to the University of Pennsylvania to complete his work toward a master's degree. His master's degree in education was awarded in 1951.

Colonel Wagner then was assigned to Air Force ROTC at Ohio State University as an assistant professor of air science. He was then assigned to Japan and subsequently to Hawaii where he worked in Statistical Services.

After attending the Air Force Command and Staff College, Colonel Wagner was assigned to the Pentagon as a Data Systems Analysis Staff Officer. In 1964, he was ordered to the Industrial College of the Armed Forces and concurrently pursued graduate studies at the George Washington University where he was awarded a master of science degree in business administration.

After this schooling, Col. Wagner was assigned to Wiesbaden where he remained for three years prior to his assignment to the University.

During this tour there he held a job unique for a military man. He was director, Dependents Education, Headquarters United States Air Force in Europe. In this position he was responsible for the operation of 100 schools located in eight countries, requiring 2,000 teachers and supporting personnel to educate 45,000 pupils.

Col. Wagner's decorations include the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Air Medal and the Air Force Commendation Medal.

Originally from Hamburg, Pa., the Colonel now resides at 643 Wiltshire Road in State College, with his wife, Kay, and son.

BSC OFFERS EUROPEAN TOURS FOR CREDITS

The seventh annual European Culture Tour sponsored by Bloomsburg State College will be conducted this summer from June 30, to August 11. This study project will be devoted to the politics, economics, sociology, history, and culture of nine Western European countries, including two weeks at Oxford University. The program director is Dr. Edson J. Drake, associate professor of history at the college.

This European study project has been planned so that students can review at first hand the remarkable metamorphosis of post-war Europe. In the political sphere they will study governmental systems, shifts in the world power structure and the Communist posture. Economic aspects will stress the common market, co-operatives, and the role of labor against a background of 2,000 years of recorded history. The effort will be made to understand the great trends that are shaping the world. All students, whatever their major fields of interest, will benefit from personal contacts with other civilizations and cultures. The overall goal is understanding . . . a prime requisite for the educated citizens of tomorrow's world.

A total of six credit hours (graduate or undergraduate) may be earned by participants who, in the judgment of the director and deans of the College, qualify on the basis of their academic achievement and personal characteristics.

The countries in which the area of study will be conducted include Denmark, West Germany, East Germany, Austria, Italy, San Marino, Switzerland, France, and England. Students will see many points of interest in these countries and will have many opportunities to observe Europe's famous culture areas.

Attendance at plays and musical performances will provide a cultural view of the life of Europe on an informal level. The effort will be made to provide opportunities for meeting Europeans at student get-togethers, swimming parties and folk-lore entertainment. Housing will be in University residences and standard tourist hotels.

STUDY IMPROVEMENT IN BSC COMMUNICATIONS

The Board of Trustees and the administration of Bloomsburg State College are continuing their study and efforts to improve lines of communication in order to keep abreast of the rapid growth of the entire college community and to accommodate all concerned.

ACTING DIRECTOR OF PLACEMENT AT COLLEGE

Thomas A. Davies has been appointed acting director of placement at Bloomsburg State College. Davis joined the BSC faculty in 1964 as an assistant professor of education with the responsibilities of supervising student teaching. In August 1967, he was appointed assistant director of admissions.

Dr. Marguerite Kehr, former Dean of Women at BSC, is now located at 3824 Vanderbilt Drive, Lake Charles, Louisiana 70601, where she is living with her sister, Mrs. George W. Seveler.

Arthur Schlesinger, Jr., noted historian and adviser to assassinated President John F. Kennedy, spoke to a large audience Thursday evening January 9, in Haas Auditorium at Bloomsburg State College.

His address entitled "Illusion and Reality in Foreign Policy" chronicled the emergence of the United States and Soviet Russia as world powers in the decade following World War II.

Under the Act of March 3, 1879

LOYALTY FUND--THIRD YEAR

When the final figures for the first two years of the Loyalty Fund Campaign were available, the grand total for the period was $20,608.82. Up to December 31, 1968, additional contributions had brought this total up to $25,641.27. We shall need a little less than $5,000 by October 1 to maintain an annual average of $10,000. With the continuing support of the Alumni, we hope to go beyond that goal.

The money received during the second year made possible the granting of six scholarships, the broadcasting of athletic events, and lettering to be placed on the new buildings. Funds have also been set aside to provide for the installation of an FM radio station on campus. Also, a tree-planting project is underway, to provide for the planting of trees and shrubbery where new buildings have been completed.

The first $2.00 contributed by a graduate in any one year will entitle the graduate to full membership privileges in the Alumni Association for one year; any amount in excess of the $2.00 will be put into the Loyalty Fund for projects approved by the Board of Directors. Your Board of Directors will be glad to consider any suggestions as to the manner in which the funds may be used.

Active members of the Alumni Association will be admitted free to the Alumni Luncheon on Alumni Day, on presentation of their paid-up membership card.

Please make your checks payable to the B.S.C. Alumni Association and return with the coupon below. Your contribution will be acknowledged.

Sincerely yours,

TO THE

FACULTY DINNER

MAY 10, 1969

Four decades is a substantial span of time in anybody's life, and after more than forty years in Pennsylvania's State Colleges, I am naturally tempted to look backward. Though it has been said that we talk about the passage of time when we have nothing else to talk about, there is value as well as satisfaction in recalling the past.

So let us only glance back at where we have been to credit those to whom credit is due, but let us look forward in terms of where we are now and where we want to go.

Someone has said that the Andrusses are a State College family. The father and mother of Mrs. Andruss were both graduates of the old Indiana State Teachers College; in fact, he was the first trustee to be appointed from outside the town of Indiana. My brother-in-law, the husband of my wife's twin sister, was for twenty-five years Dean of Men and, later, Dean of Instruction, at Shippensburg State College. I came to Pennsylvania from Illinois in 1926 and joined the faculty of the then Indiana State Normal School. Four years later, I moved to Bloomsburg.

Since I have mentioned my wife, let me say this before I turn to other matters: No man can succeed without a good wife. I have been particularly fortunate. Since she grew up near a college campus, my wife played college girl in the classrooms before she went to public schools. Over the decades, her kindness, sympathy, sense of social values and unwavering loyalty to Bloomsburg State College, its President, and its students has been most noteworthy. I acknowledge this debt before all.

There have been many changes in the State Colleges over the past forty-three years, and though almost all of them can be pin-pointed as progressive, there are certain general attitudes on the part of the public (i. e., taxpayers, citizens, and politicians) that still prevail and color comments that are made from time to time.

1. Since public education in Pennsylvania in the lower schools was meant for "paupers," or children of the poor who were unable to attend private schools, the general consensus is that private education is better because it costs more.

2. Since the normal schools were an extension of the State public school system, and were one-purpose institutions originally for training only elementary school teachers, they became known as little institutions to train teachers of little children.

3. Since these colleges are all state institutions, they are supposed to be the same. Even though all of them educate teachers for elementary and secondary schools, curriculums in such areas as art, physical education, and business were established in only some of these colleges. While the fourteen institutions have uniform control in the form of state appropriations, budgets, and salary schedules, each is affected by the region within a fifty-mile radius of the college. As these regions differ, so do the colleges, particularly in the kind and type of day and commuting students which they attract.

With these general background statements and the perspective of more than forty years, we can look forward with some hope that:

FIRST — All of these colleges will in time become universities in fact as well as in name. To become universities in fact, they must have graduate schools, and offer curriculums leading to more professions than that of teaching. This does not mean that all of them will be renamed or reborn overnight. Up to the present time, the redesignation of a State College as a University has been a result of a political, or more euphemistically, legislative process. This process seems to grow out of getting a Senator, or a powerful member of the House of Representatives, appointed to the College Board of Trustees, and then have him sponsor special legislation, or a change of name, rather than relying upon the State Board of Education for developing a plan for what the college has to do to become a university. Even after the name "University" is authorized, increased financial support must be given for libraries, laboratories, and faculty salaries (this last, so as to be competitive in the educational market.) They will need a forward-looking administration which tries to offer Pennsylvania's youth an opportunity for an education which will make them more useful members of society, as leaders in the community, and at the same time, increase their earning power so that they will be able to pay taxes to the state which made such growth and development possible. So far as Bloomsburg is concerned, the oft-quoted advice that one should "Be not the first by whom the new is tried, nor the last to lay the old aside" seems to be sound and appropriate.

SECOND — The problems involved in the development of a second, or upper, campus at Bloomsburg, not the least of which is the number of students enrolled, will be met and solved. Access is important; Roads to and from this campus must be of sufficient width to accommodate traffic to a campus accommodating 6,000 or more students in a town where the present population, including resident and college students, is only 10,000. The kind and type of building to be constructed on the upper or new campus will require consideration. Dividing physical and recreational activities into intra-mural and inter-collegiate programs may seem simple, but the overlapping of classes in physical education, recreational facilities for all students, team and practice areas, and competition in inter-collegiate sports will need to be given careful consideration. Shall we have only living accommodations for students on the upper campus, that is to say, shall we build only dormitories and dining halls in this area, or shall classrooms and laboratories also be provided? Access to Interstate 80 through Buckhorn, as well as Light-street, is most important. Finally, will some facilities need to be duplicated?

THIRD — Overdue administrative reorganization will take place at Bloomsburg in terms of an undergraduate school, a graduate school, a school of education, and a school of business, with a dean at the head of each, along with a vice-president in charge of instruction.

FOURTH — Earlier faculty recruitment, a necessity, will become easier. At the present time, 161 of a Bloomsburg faculty of less than 250 have served the college for less than five years, and of this group, almost ten percent are lacking in the amount of teaching and or related experience required by law for appointment. Since the State Colleges have been growing at a rapid rate in recent years, requiring greater numbers of faculty in a competitive marketplace, we must develop new procedures to meet today's needs. State Colleges cannot be operated on the same basis as hospitals, prisons, and mental institutions. This is true of budgeting, purchasing, and the appointment of non-instructional employees as well as hiring faculty. Finally, legislative enactments are necessary to provide faculty with greater assurance of continuous employment (tenure) than now

Alumni Day Is Outstanding

Mrs. Vera Hemingway Housenick, class of 1905, who has devoted a full and active life to church and civic activities and who has been a loyal supporter of her alma mater and a member of the board of directors for over thirty years, most of it as secretary, was awarded the Distinguished Service Award of Bloomsburg State College Alumni at its annual dinner meeting.

Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, who will retire this coming autumn, was commended by the association for his two score years of service—thirty as president—in a resolution presented by Clayton H. Hinkel, and was made a life member of the association.

In an address "Looking Forward," he envisioned the progress, demands and problems of the future in the life of the institution and expressed gratitude to the founders and contemporaries at the college, the residents and business of the community, churches, regional school districts, trustees, faculty, college employees, state superintendents and graduates.

Dr. Kimber C. Kuster is chairman of the committee on alumni awards and the presentation to Mrs. Housenick was made by Edward F. Schuyler.

A resident of Bloomsburg since 1897 when she came here with her family from Carthage, Mr., Mrs. Housenick graduated from Bloomsburg High School in 1903 and the Bloomsburg Normal School in 1905. After teaching a year in Mifflinville and three in Atlantic City, she became the bride of the late Charles C. Housenick and has since resided in this community.

A member of the Presbyterian Church since 1897, she taught church school for a number of years, was the first woman named to the board of deacons and the second woman selected for the board of trustees. She has held many offices in women's associations and is a charter member of the Study and Service Literary Club and Delta Literary Club.

She is a member of the Bloomsburg Hospital Auxiliary, on the board of directors of the Public Library, a founder and directors of the Bloomsburg Chapter of the American Red Cross for over forty years, on the committee that founded the Columbia County Council of Girl Scouts and its second commissioner and early in the present century worked for the suffrage for women.

Given an ovation by the graduates,

Mrs. Housenick in her response said she was "proud and humble." She recalled she started in War I days and asserted that "It is a poor citizen who cannot be counted upon when needed." She served as alumni secretary under Bruce Albert, Dr. E. H. Nelson, Fred W. Dichl and the present president, Howard F. Fenstermaker.

Reminiscing, she recalled there were less than 500 students when she was enrolled at Bloomsburg Normal. She spoke of the fitting dedication of the science center to the Hartline family, recalling that Prof. D. S. Hartline was the instructor of Dr. Kuster and the later had been a teacher of the present head of the science department, Dr. Donald D. Rabb. "Each has given inspiration to others."

Renamed to the board of directors for three-year terms were Millard Ludwig, Mrs. Joseph C. Conner, Dr. Kimber C. Kuster, John Thomas and Clayton H. Hinkel.

Earl A. Gehrig reported that during the year ending March 31 the receipts from alumni dues and contributions to the loyalty fund were $13,000, the best since the program was initiated four years ago. There is $43,000 in trust for scholarships and $152,000 in the McNinch fund for student loans. During the past year there were thirty-two regular and eleven temporary loans from the fund and there will be $25,000 available in the coming year for new loans.

Dr. Andruss paid tribute to his wife for her contributions through the years.

He spoke of the changes in his more than two score years in state college education, said that all of the state colleges will in time become universities in name and touched on the rapid growth of the local college.

He said each institution is different because of the region which it serves and that "what Bloomsburg has achieved is the result of the region sending good people to the school who have gone out to do good things."

Dr. Andruss spoke of the fact that bids are to be opened for the new field house and gymnasium, first major development on the upper campus, and of the utility lines that will have to be placed in that area.

The future will bring the need for reorganization, with vice presidents and deans of the colleges of arts and science, business, education and the graduate school.

The year immediately ahead will find 4,000 full and part time students enrolled and this will require the adding of thirty-five to forty faculty members. One of the great problems in securing faculty is that in the past and at the present time college heads have to search for teachers without knowing how much money will be available to pay them. "You can't run a college this way," he declared.

Many of the students today receive aid through grants, employment and scholarships. There are more sources of aid but, he pointed out, there are also more students.

During the meeting the 762 graduates of the past year were voted into association. The roll call of reunion classes concluded the session.

CLASS REUNIONS

Reunions are the reason for alumni day and there were some outstanding get-togethers of BSC grads during the spring festivities that was blessed with exceptionally fine weather.

Among those on campus were Eva Faust McKelvy, 1892; Mrs. Nellie Schweppenheiser Worman, Danville, 1903; Mrs. Lillian Buckalew Rider, 1904; Edwin M. Barton, 1907. Mrs. Clyde S. Shuman, whose husband was a member of the class of 1906 was a guest. These and others of the early classes who were at the luncheon were recognized by Howard F. Fenstermaker, president of the general body.

The oldest class in reunion was 1909. They joined the class of 1919 at the dinner in the College Commons on Friday night, and had a busy day on Saturday. Ten persons were present.

1914

1919

The honor class in reunion, 1919, had an outstanding weekend, opening with a dinner at College Commons on Friday evening, at which the general BSC Alumni Association was host, and following with a breakfast at the Hotel Magee and then activities on campus as the "old grads" marked the numerous changes of the past half century.

Forty-eight were present.

Class of 1924

The class of 1924 had one of the largest turnouts and one of the most active programs of the weekend. There were eighty-five to dinner Friday night at the Hotel Magee, fifty-three at the breakfast and sixty-three at the general alumni luncheon. The class gave $152 to the BSC loyalty fund.

In addition to the always interesting roll call of Friday night, color slides of the forty-year reunion were shown by Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Laise, Little Neck, N. Y. Also shown were films of an African safari taken by Mr. and Mrs. R. Wayne McLaughlin, Staunton, Va.

Mrs. S. L. Wilson, whose husband was the class advisor, was guest of honor on Friday evening.

Frank Buss, Wilkes-Barre, presided at the breakfast. William Partridge, Bethlehem, made the class report at the general meeting.

Members came from California, New York, New Jersey, Virginia, Washington, D. C., and from all sections of Pennsylvania.

There were student guided campus tours during Saturday morning.

Ninety-six participated in the reunion.

Class of 1929

The class of '29 had a splendid turnout of sixty-five. When introduced at the general meeting they waved paper flowers and reported they were the "flower children" of their generation. Fifty-seven members were in attendance for the fortieth year reunion.

Class of 1934

The class of 1934 had forty back for the thirty-fifth year reunion and topped off a busy day with a dinner on Saturday evening in the Keystone room, Briar Heights Lodge.

Class of 1939

The thirty-year class, 1939, had twenty-eight participating in a memorable day climaxed with a get together late Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ruth Dugan Smeal, and then dinner in the Rainbow room at the Elks.

Class of 1944

The class of 1944 was graduated during the World War II years and was small. Classes of that period were reported planning a get together for the spring graduate festivities next year.

Class of 1949

The class of 1949 had a fine representation of some three score. In addition to participating in the general festivities they had an enjoyed dinner on Saturday evening at the Bloomsburg American Legion.

Class of 1954

The class of 1954 marked its fifteenth year reunion with a delightful get together, dinner and program at the Bloomsburg Moose on Saturday evening after participating in activities on the campus through the day.

Twenty-eight members were pres-

Three Buildings Dedicated

The new classroom building now under construction on the BSC campus on a site between Haas Auditorium and Andruss Library will be named the Bakeless Center for Humanities, William A. Lank, president of the board of trustees announced at the dedication ceremonies, in the auditorium, for the Hartline Science Center and the Elwell Residence Hall.

The new building, scheduled for completion in May of 1970 will be named in honor of a family long identified with the institution of higher learning. The late O. H. Bakeless was one of the beloved "Old Guard" of Bloomsburg Normal. Two of his children, John Bakeless, author, journalist and historian and Mrs. Katherine Bakeless Nason, hold the Meritorious Service Award of the Alumni Association.

"Unless a large portion of our ordinary citizens and our leaders in industry and Congress obtain a broad scientific education which will enable them to understand the major issues of our complex, technological society and reach wise decisions, we are in serious trouble," Dr. Edward F. MacNichol, Jr., director, National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Stroke, asserted in his address at the dedication convocation of the science center and residence hall.

In attendance were members of the honored families, Dr. and Mrs. H. Keffer Hartline, New York City, the former a Nobel prize winner in science, and G. Edward Elwell Jr., of Bloomsburg.

Prior to the program the Maroon and Gold Band entertained with a concert. The Rev. Dr. Frank W. Ake, pastor of the Wesley United Methodist Church, gave the invocation and Dr. John A. Hoch, dean of instruction, introduced guests.

Sen. Preston B. Davis predicated a great future for Bloomsburg State College. John Mowery, Bureau of State Colleges and Universities, said that there have been 500 projects of the General State Authority in the past twenty years totalling a half billion dollars.

George Hemingway, vice president of council, said problems between College and town have been satisfactorily resolved from time to time by meeting and discussing the matters and said this method can be employed with profit by other groups. Howard F. Fenstermaker, president of the graduate body, said the buildings have

The class of 1964 had a get-together at 5:30 P. M. at the Elks Club. This was followed by a dinner and dance. A large number participated in the activities.

been named for two families who contributed much to the school. Reinhold Schultz, president of College Council, represented the Community Government Association.

Then came the presentation of the keys, the acceptance by Dr. Andruss and then the acceptance of the buildings by Lank. Dr. Andruss, who has announced his retirement in the coming fall, expressed thanks to the many who have contributed to the advancement of the College. It was noted that the lecture hall in the science center has been named for Dr. Kimber C. Kuster, former head of the science department.

Dr. MacNichol paid tribute to Dr. Hartline who was his instructor while pursuing graduate studies.

He commented that "one of the marks of a great teacher is that he is able to inspire his students towards careers in which they will use their talents to the fullest. Keffer Hartline has done this."

Dr. MacNichol went on to state that Dr. Hartline is a living example of the effectiveness of inspiring our young people with the curiosity about the universe and everything in it.

"It is the citizen through his representatives in Congress who makes the final decision. It is the teacher who inspires others to research and teaching to push forward the frontiers of knowledge or to have an interest in and understanding of our complex society, with its expanding population diminishing natural resources, problems of air and water pollution and wealth enough to have all our citizens healthy and well-satisfied. The importance of a well-educated citizenry cannot be overestimated. Decisions will be wise only if those who will make them totally understand their implications. We must have informed citizens if we are to survive as a nation."

The benediction was by Rev. Joseph T. Kofchok, pastor of St. Columba's Catholic Church.

BSC STUDENTS WIN FORENSIC AWARDS

Tim Shannon, Bloomsburg State College, won a gold medal with a rating of superior in extemporaneous speaking in Pi Delta Kappa's National Forensic Competition at Arizona State in Tempe, Ariz. There were 220 competing in the division.

Another BSC student, Karl Kramer, was awarded a certificate in excellence in discussion with over 166 participants. BSC was one of 186 colleges and universities competing in the national event.

READING CONFERENCE

Dr. Paul Witty, professor emeritus, Northwestern University and Dr. Russell Stauffer, professor of psychology and director of the Reading Clinic, University of Delaware, delivered the feature addresses at the Fifth Annual Reading Conference held on the Bloomsburg State College campus Friday and Saturday, March 28 and 29. Group demonstrations for the first session 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. on Friday were conducted in the Benjamin Franklin building.

Dr. Gilbert Selders, professor of education at BSC, served as overall chairman of the session. Dr. Gilbert Schiffman, Prince George County Schools, Upper Marlboro, Md., showed films on "Teaching Dyslexic Children" which was followed by a discussion period.

The main speaker for the general session was Dr. Witty, whose topic was "Reading for the Gifted and Creative Student." Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president of BSC, spoke at this session. Dr. Charles Carlson, director of graduate studies, BSC, served as chairman.

The featured speaker for the general session Saturday morning was Dr. Stauffer, who spoke on "What is the Future in Early Reading?" Dr. John A. Hoch, dean of instruction, addressed this group.

Send your check for your contribution to the 1969 Loyalty Fund.

Dr. Adelaide Ellsworth Weston '94

Dr. Adelaide (Ellsworth) Weston, 95, of 516 Spring Street, Jamestown, N. Y., a well known physician in Jamestown for many years, died November 11 1968 in W.C.A. Hospital.

Dr. Weston was born December 25, 1872, in North Moreland Township, Wyoming County, Pa., the daughter of Chester L. and Susan White Ellsworth, both of pioneer stock. Her progenitors were of English extraction, tracing their ancestry to Sir John Ellsworth of England, of the time of Edward III. The line in this country began with the Winsor, Conn., colony in 1635, from which they migrated to northeastern Pennsylvania.

After several years of teaching in public schools, she entered the Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia, from which she received her degree in medicine. She served as intern in the Woman's Hospital of Philadelphia and later did postgraduate work at University of Michigan. She was connected with the State Hospital in Warren, Pa. for a number of years.

In 1923 she was married to Dr. Paul G. Weston, and with him came to Jamestown where both doctors practiced for many years. He died in 1939.

Dr. Weston was a member of the American Medical Association, the New York State Medical Society, Chautauqua County Medical Society, and various other medical organizations. She was also on the medical staffs of W.A.C. Hospital and Jamestown General Hospital.

She served for several years on the welfare board under the former Mayor Samuel A. Carlson and was an early president of the League of Women Voters.

Dr. Weston was a devoted member of St. Luke's Episcopal Church and a few years ago provided funds for remodeling, repairing the bell tower and electrifying the carillon of bells.

She was well traveled, a patron of the arts and helped many young people to educations. Her proteges included the fields of music, medicine, dentistry and law.

She added much to the cultural life of Jamestown. She was a member of the Fortnightly; Jamestown Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution; Jamestown Branch, American Association of University Women; the Mozart Club; and the boards of the Agnes Home and Warner Home.

The Chautauqua County Medical Society honored her with a citation for 50 years devoted service in the profession. The Woman's Medical College also gave her a citation for her 50 years in medicine.

Clara Coughlin Roselle '06

Mrs. Clara C. Roselle, 78, of 90 Yeager Avenue, Forty Fort, passed away January 6 at her home after a week's illness. Born in Luzerne, she was educated in the borough schools and was a graduate of Bloomsburg State College. Mrs. Roselle taught in the elementary department of the Courtdale and Kingston schools and was a teacher in the Forty Fort School District from 1942 until retiring in 1959.

A resident of Forty Fort 48 years, she was a member of Forty Fort Methodist Church and the Official Board. Mrs. Roselle was serving as secretary of the Commission of Missions of the church and belonged to the Harmony Bible Class, the WSCS and Adult Fellowship. She was a member of the Forty Fort Women's Christian Temperance Union and the Retired Teachers Association of Luzerne County and Pennsylvania.

Catherine Jameson Burr '11

Mrs. Ralph Burr, a Danville native, was killed instantly March 4 when she was struck by a car while crossing a street in Troy, Pa.

Mrs. Burr, the former Catherine Jamieson of Danville, reportedly was watching a car approaching from another direction when she was struck by a car. Mrs. Burr was the widow of Ralph Burr, a prominent Troy banker and since her husband's death had resided with a sister, Mrs. John Colwell, also of Troy, her only survivor.

Myra S. Sharpless '30

Miss Myra S. Sharpless, a devoted teacher in Columbia County schools for thirty-eight years—thirty-five of those in the Bloomsburg Junior High School—died unexpectedly at Bloomsburg Hospital at 7:30, Saturday, March 1 from a heart attack.

She was a graduate of the Bloomsburg High School and the Bloomsburg State College and took graduate work at the Pennsylvania State University. She started her teaching career in Scott Township High School, now part of Central Columbia, and three years later was named to the faculty of the Bloomsburg district.

She was a member of the Wesley United Methodist Church and the Pals

Sunday School Class of that congregation and often a teacher of that class. Other affiliations were the Woman's Society of Christian Service of her church, the Daughters of American Colonists, the Bloomsburg Business and Professional Women, the AAUW and the handicraft class.

Aula Holter Harman

Mrs. Aula Frances Harman, seventy-one, of 124 East First Street, Bloomsburg, was dead on arrival at Bloomsburg Hospital February 22. She was born October 28, 1897, in Millin, Pa., and had been employed as bookkeeper-accountant at BSC for thirty-seven years. She was retired. She was a member of St. Matthew Lutheran Church.

TESTIMONIAL TO DR. ANDRUSS

Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, who has announced his retirement in the coming fall after thirty years as president of Bloomsburg State College, was honored at a testimonial dinner at Briar Heights Lodge that was sponsored jointly by the Business Division faculty of the College; Phi Omega Pi, the national honor society in business education and Phi Beta Lambda, the student organization of the Business Education Department.

Dr. Andruss, associated with the local institution of higher education for two score years, was the first head of the Business Education Department, a post he occupied prior to becoming dean of instruction and then dean of instruction and then president. Over a hundred attended.

The invocation was given by James Creasy, assistant to the President and a member of the Business Division faculty. Following the dinner Dr. Emory W. Rarig, Jr., director of the Business Education Division, introduced special guests present, including Charles Henrie and Earl Gehrig, former BSC faculty members. Dr. Rarig also read telegrams and letters from Dr. S. Lloyd Toumey and Dr. Thomas Martin, former division directors and from Walter Rygiel, former member.

The first speaker presenting a testimonial to Dr. Andruss was Dr. William Selden, State Supervisor of Business Education, Department of Public Instruction, and a graduate of BSC.

The second testimonial to Dr. Andruss was given by Dr. Rarig H. Cowley, "Name a great American college or university and you will find in its history a commanding leader or leaders who held its presidency," as an indication of truth describing BSC and its president, Dr. Andruss.

Following Dr. Rarig's address, a gift of a portable typewriter was presented to the guest of honor to "assist him in his asserted ambition to do a great deal of writing and traveling in the near future."

Robert Goralski, NBC news correspondent, was the guest speaker at a dinner given by President and Mrs. Harvey A. Andruss, Bloomsburg State College, for faculty members and their wives, and board of trustee members and their wives in the College Commons Saturday evening, March 15. Goralski spoke on "The Changing World and the Challenge to U. S. Leadership."

Bloomsburg State College, in the proposed outlays for colleges compared with estimated expenditures for the current year, will get an increase from the 1968-69 budget figure of $3,237,000 to $5,344,000 for 1969-1970.

FORMER BSC FACULTY MEMBER KNOWN AS 'HAVILAND LADY'

Miss Ethel A. Ranson, for many years a valued member of the faculty of the Bloomsburg State College, and with numerous friends in this area, has attained international fame as "The Haviland Lady" of Orlando, Fla. She now does an international business in Haviland china with regard to replacements in sets and herself owns the largest private collection of Haviland.

She has been the subject of a number of interesting and informative articles. The most recent was published in the Orlando, Fla., Sentinel, with illustrations in color. It was written by Virginia Loog and a copy was sent to us by Ed. E. Hippensteel, Orlando, and a native of this section.

The article follows:

The legend of The Haviland Lady has become a part of the fabric of Orlando. It's woven from bridge club gatherings, parties, from all events over the past 15 years that have brought women together. When a dish is broken, when a guest comments on a china pattern, discussion centers on "The woman with all the china" who can finish out a set or has the replacement for a treasured broken saucer.

When Ethel A. Ranson retired 15 years ago as a teacher at State Teachers College, Bloomsburg, Pa., she didn't want to vegetate so she came to Florida with plans to establish a "little business."

Her experience was nil but she liked antiques. Something in a related line appealed to her, "just a little something to keep mind and time occupied."

The antique business itself was too complicated. It would mean a store, inventory, bookkeeping and lots of other involvements.

Miss Ranson's older sister had a set of "Ranson White" Haviland and was having trouble replacing broken pieces. That's all it took to give the retired teacher her idea, and a business was born.

Little did she dream that her non-involvement enterprise would become what is now the largest private Haviland collection in the world. Nor did she think she would be doing a mail order business that extended around the globe.

Starting with just a few pieces of Haviland the collection now can be counted in the thousands. She has wall-to-wall Haviland almost waist high in her home.

She converted her carport into a storage room, then built a room to the back to her house. The collection spilled out to her garage and finally took over a little house at the back of her property.

Haviland and Co., American, of New York City, refers people every day to the Orlando woman. Every day the mails are filled with requests for pieces to match specific sets. Miss Ranson uses Arlene Schleiger's four books on Haviland as a reference, but they contain only 200 patterns.

PLAN FOR SEVEN NEW BUILDINGS AT COLLEGE

The first in a series of three planning conferences for seven new buildings which are to be constructed on the campus of Bloomsburg State College was held in the Alumni Room at the college.

The seven projects include a classroom building, two residence halls for women, two residence halls for men, a dining room-kitchen, and a maintenance building-garage.

Five of these structures are to be located on the upper campus, formerly the Bloomsburg Country Club and the other two, a classroom building and a dormitory for 300 women are to be located on the lower campus. The estimated construction cost is $9,738,600, according to Boyd F. Buckingham, Director of Development at BSC.

The primary purpose of the pre-planning conference was to gather and discuss information regarding the proposed site of each building and the availability of necessary utilities.

PRESIDENT SPEAKS TO ALUMNI, FACULTY

FIFTH — Fees collected from students shall be related in some ratio to the appropriations made by the state, and not increased from time to time merely to make up for budget deficiencies. We regret that even when legislators cannot seem to find the money to accomodate more students, they still clamor for the admission of certain individuals, especially sons or daughters of their constituents.

In addition to looking forward with hope for change,

We, Mrs. Andruss and I, are grateful for a community such as Bloomsburg which gave birth to the Literary Institute which became the State Normal School, then a State Teachers College, and most recently a State College. The faith of the citizens of this community in the development of the college as it became a state-wide institution, and the patience with which they have looked upon recent changes (even those they have not fully understood), has required confidence and a willingness to accept change at its face value even though sometimes it has meant the taking of private property and an increased demand for such public utilities and services as water, sewage, and police protection.

We are grateful for all of those householders in the town of Bloomsburg who have accomodated students in their homes when dormitory facilities have not been available at the college. In many cases, these homes have provided an atmosphere for college living which has been the most wholesome possible.

We are grateful for the businessmen of Bloomsburg who have adjusted to the college market, by changing their store hours, carrying articles to meet the students' wants as well as those of the ordinary citizen, and showing a willingness to sponsor community activities in which college students participate. In sum, we appreciate their kind understanding of the changes in college policy.

We are grateful for the churches of Bloomsburg who have had to assume an additional burden to accomodate students. In some cases, this has meant that when requests were made of Church officials, in terms of additional finances for personnel who work with college students, the local churches have set themselves to the task of trying to meet these religious and moral needs.

We are grateful for the surrounding schools districts, which have provided playing fields for inter-collegiate contests and other athletic activities while these facilities were being constructed at the college, and have welcomed ever-increasing numbers of our student teachers, offering them an opportunity to observe and participate in the actual teaching process before they embark upon their careers.

We are grateful for

Trustees who have held the college above party politics and personal preference. Almost forty in number over the years they have been affiliated with both political parties, and have given unstintingly of their time, money, and counsel. Supporting policies which were subject to scrutiny, they have been largely responsible for the longest continuous administration in the history of public education in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. The names of Reg. S. Hemingway, Esq., Judge Wm. Kreisher, Mr. Fred Diehl, and Mr. Wm. A. Lank, will be remembered as Presidents of the Board of Trustees for the last three decades. A special and well-deserving tribute is due them, not only from an outgoing President, but from the whole college community.

We are grateful for faculty, past and present, who have served students, not only as instructors, but as mentors and counselors. In time, some of our recent and present faculty will rival the memories and names of Carver, Waller, Sutliff, Hartline, Bakeless, Dennis, Cope, and Albert.

We are grateful for college employees who have made the campus and its facilities a subject of favorable comment by all those who visit our campus. Certainly, the names of Nevin Englehart and Tom Gorrey will be ever green in the memories of those who love grass and trees on our college hilltop. Business Managers Paul Martin, and Chester Hausknecht have piloted us through the shoals between the two rocks of income and expenditures without a wreck or even a threat of breakers.

We are grateful for State Superintendents interested in State Normal Schools and State Colleges. The names of John Alexander Hull Keith, David Jewett Waller, Jr., and Francis Buchmann Haas are recalled in awe, for these men have served as leaders, personal mentors, and examples to many of us.

We are grateful for Alumni, many of whom were students in our own time. These are the candles which we have lighted, and now they shine to cheer us. And we must make special mention of Alumni Association Presidents R. Bruce Albert Elna H. Nelson, and Howard Fenstermaker, for their love and devotion to their Alma Mater can be appreciated but never fully rewarded.

L'ENVOI

"Come, my friends,
'Tis not too late to seek a newer world.

Push off, and sitting well in order smite

The sounding furrows; for my purpose holds

To sail beyond the sunset, and the baths

Of all the western stars, until I die.

It may be that the gulfs will wash us down:

It may be we shall touch the Happy Isles,

And see the great Achilles, whom we knew.

Tho' much is taken, much abides; and tho'

We are not now that strength which in old days

Moved earth and heaven; that which we are, we are:

One equal temper of heroic hearts, Made weak by time and fate, but strong in will

To strive, to seek, to find, and not to yield."

—Tennyson

From "THE PASSING THROG" Column of THE MORNING PRESS, April 28, 1969

No alumni association is what those in charge want it to be or, in most cases, what it should be but most of them are progressing toward that elusive goal and included in the latter category is the graduate body of "the friendly College on the hill" -- Bloomsburg State College.

There will be hundreds and perhaps even a couple of thousand here for all or part of the weekend to participate in the ceremonies either from the status of graduate or husband, wife or offspring of a diploma holder.

BSC has had a graduate body for a long time but it hasn't been so many years since that organization was just one that went through the motions.

A number of things withered and many died during the Great Depression of the thirties but it was in that period that the Bloomsburg State Alumni Association actually came alive and started to go some place.

Up to that time alumni day was one of those occasions when the graduates who cared to come back to the school, they met in the auditorium, elected officers and didn't do a thing from that time until they met on the hill the Saturday prior to commencement of the following year.

The fellow who got the graduate body going was the late R. Bruce Albert. He was a dedicated Bloomsburger and son of one of the institution's beloved "Old Guard" -- Prof. Charles H. Albert.

Things were going reasonably well when the centennial of the institution came along in 1939. Bruce saw an opportunity for the graduates to do something concrete. Up to that time there had been some funds contributed to the alumni student loan fund. Bruce believed that the centennial was the time to build that fund to a point where it had real substance.

A goal was set and the solicitation was on. By and large it was a one-man promotion but Bruce stuck to it and to the total raised, while not up to his expectations, was still substantial and gave the association reason for being.

The organization has been growing in activity ever since. The late Dr. E. H. Nelson, one of the most dynamic and popular grads and teachers of the school, followed Albert as the president. "Doc" had lots of ideas and the ability to make them click.

Upon Dr. Nelson's death, Fred W. Diehl, now retired superintendent of the Montour County Schools, long a trustee at BSC and always a loyal alumnus, took over. He relinquished the post for reasons of health after a successful tenure and the torch was taken up by Howard F. Fenstermaker who has been setting a brisk pace since.

One of the changes of recent years has been the shifting of the alumni festivities of the spring from the Saturday prior to commencement to late April or early May. Considering the time it takes for many to adjust, this shift caused little more than a ripple. We didn't notice any drop in attendance the first year the new date was operative and chances are good that it will lead to a real build up in attendance. Certainly the potential is there.

Along with the change of date has come the establishment of the school's loyalty fund. In this BSC is not a pioneer. Frankly it is copying from other institutions in the conference. The returns have been good but nothing sensational. We have a long way to go to get up to the pace set by some other State Colleges and a much greater distance to travel to get these annual contributions to where they should be. But the move is toward that point.

By the way, that scholarship fund which got to respectable size at the time of the centennial, is now invested and the earnings go to scholarships. In more recent years Miss Mary McNinch gave to the association a huge sum that was to be used for loans, and only for loans. This has been more than adequate to take care of loan demands in this era when there is money available on that basis from federal and state governments.

Office at Bloomsburg, Pa.

THE LOYALTY FUND - THIRD YEAR

The figures below show the amounts of the contributions made in the third year of the Loyalty Fund, up to April 8, 1939, when the copy was submitted to the printer.

Once more we wish to express our thanks to all those who have supported the fund. We hope that those who have done not so will send us a contribution soon.

An Alumni Association that fails to support its Alma Mater has no reason for its existence.

The classes ending in 0 and 5 will have their reunions next Alumni Day. The success of your reunion will be dependent upon the enthusiasm and the efforts of someone who is able and willing to carry the ball.

There will be a new President of the College next year. Let us give him substantial evidence of the fact that we ar behind him.

The Alumni Quarterly

Almost a century and a half of service in the field of education is represented by the above faculty members of Bloomsburg State College, all of whom are retiring this year. Dr. Andruss, President of Bloomsburg State College, has been associated with the College for the past 39 years; (L-R) Miss Mary Macdonald, Assistant Dean of Women and a member of the counselling staff at B.S.C. joined the faculty 20 years ago. Mrs. Elizabeth Williams, Assistant Dean of Women, has been associated with B.S.C. for the past 17 years. Miss Beatrice Mettler, Assistant Professor of Health and Physical Education, has been at B.S.C. for the past 30 years.

NEW PRESIDENT APPOINTED

Dr. Robert J. Nossen, Vice-President of Academic Affairs, State University College, Fredonia, New York, has been named President of the Bloomsburg State College, to succeed Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, who has held the office for the past thirty years.

Announcement of the appointment was made after the printing of this issue of The Quarterly had been completed, with the exception of this page. The December issue will feature the story of Dr. Nossen's background, as no details were available at the time this was written.

The members of the Alumni Association salute the retiring President, Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, and thank him for a job well done. Your Alumni President was a member of the faculty when Harvey Andruss came to Bloomsburg to set up the newly created Division of Business Education. We cannot forget the days of World War II, when three Navy programs were initiated, nor the days after the war when, for a short time, there were 153 students on the campus. Since that time, the growth of the College has been phenomenal. Not only has there been enormous growth in the student body and the faculty, but there has also been a great broadening of the educational facilities of the College. Ten new buildings have been erected, and three more are now under construction.

President Andruss has shown a great capacity for seeing future trends, and for being prepared to meet those trends when they materialized. Therefore BSC as it is today stands as a lasting memorial to a great administrator.

To Dr. Nossen, the new President, we extend our heartiest congratulations and best wishes for a successful administration. No man would accept this office without being conscious of the tremendous challenge that faces him. He will need the support of the student body, the faculty, the general public and last but not least, the Alumni.

We suggest that graduates of BSC write personal letters to Dr. Nossen, extending their congratulations and their pledges of support.

AVE ATQUE VALE!

518 Degrees Are Awarded

A total of 518 received degrees from Bloomsburg State College at commencement exercises held at the grandstand at the Bloomsburg Fair Grounds Sunday afternoon, May 25. Of those twenty-three graduate students received Masters Degrees and the others Bachelor Degrees.

This is the first time the exercises have ever been held at the Fair Grounds. The College now has fine facilities on the campus at Haas auditorium but even that is not large enough to accommodate all who wish to attend. The grandstand seats over 5,000.

Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president of the college, delivered the charge to the class at Commencement, and the Rev. Kermit L. Lloyd, pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, delivered the message for the morning service.

Baccalaureate Program

The program for the baccalaureate service: Processional, "Now Thank We All Our God," Kee; invocation, the Rev. Bernard H. Petrina, Newman campus chaplain at BSC; hymn, "Faith of Our Fathers," Henry-Walton; Scripture, Dr. Andruss; baccalaureate address "We Live With Our Eyes Open," the Rev. Fr. Lloyd; solo, "God Is My Shepherd," Dvorak, Beth Powlus, soprano; benediction, Rev. Bernard H. Petrina; recession, Psalm XIX, Marcella.

Commencement

The commencement opened with the processional, "March," Harris, and the invocation by President Andruss. Elton Hunsinger, dean of students, presented the senior honor list. Dr. John A. Hoch, dean of instruction, presented the candidates for the Bachelor of Science in Education Degree. Dr. Andruss conferred the degrees. The presentation of diplomas was by Dr. Emory W. Rarig, business education; Dr. Royce O. Johnson, elementary education; Dr. C. Stuart Edwards, secondary education and Dr. William L. Jones, special education.

Dr. Hoch presented the candidates for Degree of Bachelor of Arts and Dr. Andruss conferred them. Diplomas were presented by Dr. Alden Bucher. Dr. Andruss then delivered his charge to the graduates.

The presentation of candidates for the degree of Master of Education was by Dr. Charles H. Carlson, director of graduate studies. Dr. Andruss conferred the degrees and awarded the diplomas. The assembly sang "Alma Mater" and the recession was "Fugue in C Major."

Stephen Wallace directed the music; William K. Decker was the organist and James B. Creasy, honorary marshal at both programs.

Fourteen seniors were graduated with academic honors. Thirteen were awarded BSC Service Keys, the highest award given by the college community. Twenty-one were presented certificates indicating their inclusion in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities, and nine lifetime athletic passes were given to senior athletes who had participated in a varsity sport for four years.

Graduating with honors were: Summa cum laude (average ranging between 3.75 and 4.00)—David Feather, Fullerton, B.S. in Business Education;

Magna cum laude (3.60-3.74)—Ann M. Hutz, Wilkes-Barre, B.S. in Secondary Education; Dolores Slavik, West Hazleton, B.S. in elementary education; John Hamblin, Swiftwater, B.S. in secondary education; Charles E. Hestor, Trevorton, B.S. in secondary education; Esther Zabitz, Avenue E, Riverside, B.S. in secondary education, and Leland Smeltz, Lewisburg R. D. 1, Bachelor of Arts in Arts and Sciences.

The Cum laude (3.50-3.59) graduates were: Anna Krushinski, Shamokin, B.S. in secondary education; Darlene Yocum, Catawissa R. D. 3, B.S. in elementary education; Rebecca Gilliam, Danville, B.S. in elementary education; Kathy Hippenstiel, Bloomsburg, B.S. in elementary education; Elaine Mueller, Bloomsburg R. D. 4, B.S. in secondary education; Linda Hellerman, Perkaspie, B.S. in secondary education, and Elaine Zalonis, Bloomsburg, B.S. in secondary education.

NINETY-FIVE PERCENT ARE TEACHING

A recent survey reveals that 95 per cent of the 1968 January, May and August teacher education graduates of BSC available for teaching, have been employed in that profession, according to Thomas A. Davies, acting director of placement at the College.

The total number of graduates of all divisions for 1968 was 709. There were 654 graduates enrolled in education curriculums, 51 in arts and sciences, and 4 in public school nursing and dental hygiene. Of the 654 who were enrolled in teacher education, 59 were not available for teaching duties due to beginning graduate studies, entering the armed forces, or being married; 30 graduates entered into business or other occupations.

Of the 565 graduates who are teaching, 442 or 74 per cent are teaching in Pennsylvania and 127 or 21 per cent in other states.

The salaries of those teaching in Pennsylvania average $5,608; for those out-of-state the average salary is $6,189. This gives a $5,898 average salary for all the graduates teaching and a difference of $581 for those teaching out-of-state over the Pennsylvania teachers.

Dr. Andruss Honored By Legislators

Further evidence of the high esteem in which Dr. Harvey A. Andruss is held by his colleagues was displayed when present and former members of the administrative staff honored the retiring President of Bloomsburg State College with a dinner at Cox's Restaurant, Elysburg.

In addition to a gift presented to Dr. and Mrs. Andruss by the administrative staff, special tributes were also paid by two other guests, Kent Shelhamer, Representative to the General Assembly from the 109th District and Preston B. Davis, Senator from the 27th District.

Dr. John Hoch, dean of instruction, presided as master of ceremonies and presented the gift to Dr. and Mrs. Andruss. Rep. Shelhamer presented Dr. Andruss with a citation from the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth while Senator Davis expressed the appreciation of Dr. Andruss' 39 years of education service to the Commonwealth by presenting a Resolution from the Senate.

Boyd Buckingham, director of development at the college, introduced Rep. Shelhamer and Senator Davis. In addition to Hoch and Buckingham the planning committee consisted of Paul Martin, business manager, and George Birney, personnel director.

FACULTY MEMBERS RETIRE

Two members of the Bloomsburg State College faculty, Miss Mary Macdonald and Miss Beatrice Mettler, retired as of June 1.

Miss Macdonald

A native of Berwick, Miss Macdonald received her Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in Latin and a minor in French from the University of Michigan. She began her teaching career at Harter High School, Plymouth Township following her graduation from the University of Michigan. Two years later, she joined the teaching staff at Berwick High School where she remained nine years. In 1939 she joined the faculty of Winthrop College, S. C., as a head resident on the dean of women's staff.

During World War II she was a member of the first class of women at Smith College to become commissioned officers in the United States Navy. Miss Macdonald held the rank of lieutenant junior grade and remained in the service for 40 months.

In 1946 she went to Barnard College, Columbia University, as a director of resident halls with full faculty status. Three years later Miss Macdonald became associated with Bloomsburg State College where she has been an assistant dean of women and a counselor, and has also taught English. She has headed freshmen orientation and Parents' Day committees and is a past president of the Faculty Association. Her professional memberships include National Association of Women Deans and Counselors, Pennsylvania Association of Women Deans and Counselors, and Pennsylvania State Education Association.

Miss Mettler

Miss Mettler was born in Elysburg, and received her Bachelor of Arts degree in biological sciences at Bucknell University and her Master of Science degree from the University of Pennsylvania in health and human relations. She took additional graduate work at the University of Pittsburgh and the University of Chicago and is a graduate of The Johns Hopkins School of Nursing, Baltimore.

Prior to her joining the faculty of BSC in 1939, she was educational director at the Bloomsburg Hospital for one year and was also associated with The Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore. At one time, she served as a resident director nurse and a coordinator of health at the college and for many years has been an assistant professor in health and physical education.

Miss Mettler holds memberships in Alpha Chi Omega, Order of Eastern Star, Bloomsburg Branch of the American Association of University Women, the Bloomsburg Club of the Business and Professional Women and the Pennsylvania State Education Association.

Miss Macdonald resides in Berwick and Miss Mettler is living at the Mettler farm, Elysburg.

are bidding farewell to Doctor Andruss, a man whose educational abilities have been recognized by his election to Phi Beta Kappa, his fraternal membership having recognized by his being a thirty-third degree Mason, and his civic endeavors having been recognized by his election as a director of the Bloomsburg Hospital and the Bloomsburg Public Library. And further directs that a copy of this citation be delivered to Doctor Harvey A. Andruss.

Resolution

In the Senate, Harrisburg, July 15, 1969.

This year marks the end of an outstanding education career for Dr. Harvey A. Andruss who is retiring after having served as President of Bloomsburg State College for the past thirty years.

Dr. Andruss, an author of several widely read textbooks in the field of business law and accounting has spent the last forty-eight years of his life in education. He has been awarded degrees from the University of Oklahoma, Northwestern University and Penn State. In 1921 he became a principal of an Oklahoma high school. In 1930 he began his career at Bloomsburg and in 1939 he was elected to the presidency.

We here in the Senate are proud of men like Dr. Andruss. He has devoted his life to the teaching of our youth and rightly deserves recognition.

We in Pennsylvania are so much better off because of this great educator; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Senate of Pennsylvania pause in its deliberations to pay its respect to Dr. Harvey A. Andruss for a job well done and to wish him all of the happiness and success possible in his retirement years; and be it further RESOLVED, That a copy of this resolution be presented to Dr. Andruss upon his retirement as President of Bloomsburg State College.

I certify that the foregoing is a true and correct copy of a Senate Resolution introduced by Senators Preston B. Davis and Zehnder H. Confair and adopted by the Senate of Pennsylvania. (Signed) Mark Gruell, Jr., secretary, Senate of Pennsylvania.

George W. Heffner, Pottsville, has been appointed to the Board of Trustees at BSC. He succeeds Judge Harold L. Paul, who has resigned. Mr. Heffner's term will expire in 1973.

ans hospital about one month. Prior to that, he had been a patient for two weeks at Bloomsburg Hospital.

He was born in Newark, N. J., son of Stanley and Vivian Hart. He graduated from Springfield College, Mass., in 1949 and received his M.A. degree from American International College, Mass., in 1956. He received his M.E. degree in 1968 from Temple University.

Before coming to Bloomsburg, he taught high school for three years in Connecticut and five years at Bullard-Haven Technical School in the field of audio-visual aids. He taught summer school at Temple University last year.

Mr. Hart served three years in the Navy during World War II, receiving numerous citations including the Distinguished Flying Cross, Gold Star and Air Medal with three stars.

Dr. Eugene D. Thoenen, fifty-nine, 847 Lower Chester road, Charleston, W. Va., for six years a professor in history at Bloomsburg State College. 1958-1965, died in Charleston on May 31. A native of West Virginia, and the writer of an authoritative book on the History of the Oil and Gas Industry in West Virginia, Dr. Thoenen returned to his native state in 1963, where he last served as director of the Office of Veterans' Training and Education in the West Virginia Department of Education.

Dr. Thoenen attended Swarthmore College and later West Virginia University, from which he received the Ph.D. degree in History. Both he and his wife, Grace, were prominent in the life of the Bloomsburg Episcopal Church.

Mrs. Bessie D. Sked, 85, a retired school teacher and club leader, died February 28 in the Ogden Nursing Home. A former Pennington resident, she lived at 19 Delaware Avenue, Ewing Township.

Mrs. Sked taught in Pennington, Princeton and Milton, Pa. She was a member of the WSCS, United Church Women and the Socialites of Pennington Methodist Church. She was a past president of the Kleio Club of Pennington and had been a district officer in the New Jersey Federation of Women's Club.

George Edward Elwell, Jr., eighty-three, one of the most prominent, best known and active Freemasons in the Northern jurisdiction and long active in the religious, business and civic life of the community died in June in the Bloomsburg Hospital.

His last public appearance was at the Bloomsburg State College, of which he was a graduate, during the Alumni Day festivities on Saturday, April 26, and when one of the features was the dedication of Elwell Hall, named in recognition of his family's contributions to the development of the College. His grandfather and father both were trustees of the school and he was a faculty member for some years early in the present century.

A native of Bloomsburg, he was born April 19, 1886, the son of George Edward and Mary A. McKelvey Elwell. He was of the sixth generation in direct line of descent from Jabez Elwell who, like his son, John, was active in the defense of the Colonies during the Revolutionary War.

He was a grandson of Judge William Elwell, twenty-six years president judge of this judicial district, and one of the state's foremost jurists. His father, a lawyer and newspaper publisher, was long a leading citizen of Bloomsburg.

He received his early education under private tutors and was graduated from Bloomsburg State College and later from Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., in 1909 as a Bachelor of Arts. He was active in many extracurricular activities at Trinity where he was a member of the Delta Psi fraternity.

Upon his return to Bloomsburg he became associated with his father in the commercial printing business, established in 1837 and the oldest business house in Bloomsburg. His father from 1872 to 1910 had also published a weekly newspaper "The Columbian." He took an active and continuing interest in Bloomsburg's intellectual life, and for nine years taught French at BSC.

He made a hobby of collecting rare autographs or letters of every head of government having to do with America, from Ferdinand and Isabella to the present administration. In 1958 he presented the entire collection to Caldwell Consistory.

He served for around a dozen years on the Bloomsburg school board, during which time he held the offices of both president and treasurer, and also served on town council.

For many years he was junior warden of St. Paul's Episcopal Church and senior warden for six years. He was a vestryman for a long period.

He was married December 12, 1911 to Sara B. Milleisen. Her death occurred in Key West, Fla., on February 18, 1956.

In Freemasonry he held the treasurered Thirty-third degree, and was a past commander-in-chief of Caldwell Consistory. During his term as commander-in-chief Caldwell observed its diamond anniversary. In 1966 he was chairman of the Caldwell Centennial observance and the class received at that time was named in his honor.

A span of 46 years of working with school children in the Sunbury area came to a close in June with the retirement of Miss Grace S. Beck, 1014 E. Chestnut St., who retired as elementary principal. Shikellamy Schools.

She had been a public school teacher since 1923 and an administrator since 1934 in the former Sunbury School District and since July 1, 1965, has served as elementary principal of the Shikellamy School District.

She is the dean of elementary school principals in the Central Pennsylvania area, and is widely known throughout the state for her interest in the elementary curriculum.

In her associations with young people, area educators said that Miss Black has done much to influence and guide young people in their education endeavors. Shikellamy Area elementary teachers hold her in high regard.

Miss Beck attended Shamokin Twp. elementary schools and was graduated from Shamokin High School in 1921. She was graduated from Bloomsburg Normal School in 1923, and began teaching in Sunbury that year.

She later received a bachelor of science degree in education at Bloomsburg State College in 1940, and master of science degree in education from Bucknell University, Lewisburg, in 1952.

She holds an elementary principal's certificate and a supervising principal's certificate. She was cited in 1964 in that year's edition of "Who's Who in American Education." She was listed in this book because of her outstanding work in education.

Starting in 1923, Miss Beck taught in elementary grades four to eight until 1934, when she was named elementary principal at Maclay School. She served in this position until 1947.

From 1947 to 1961, she served as elementary supervisor in the Sunbury District. In 1961, she was named director of elementary education and curriculum coordinator of the Sunbury School District. During this period, she developed two curriculum guides for kindergarten through 12 grades, and guides for language arts and social studies.

She was also an instructor in summer school and extension classes for Bucknell from 1949-1961.

In 1963, she was named elementary principal of the Sunbury district.

The thirtieth reunion of the Class of '39 was attended by 39 members and friends of Class of '39. A fine time was had by all who attended the various events on the campus. At the dinner $55.50 was collected and turned over to the Alumni Fund for restoring trees to the campus.

Some of those who were not in attendance sent us information about themselves, and I will pass it on to you.

Colonel Victor Ferrari will be stationed at Wright Patterson Air Force Base in Ohio after July, 1969. He is a professor of aerospace studies in the United States Air Force.

Willhelima Peel Scheffler is living in Indio, California where she is employed as a teacher of the mentally retarded.

Dick Nolan is living in Salinas, California where he is employed as an office manager. He is a retired Army officer after serving 22 years.

Roy Evans will be moving to Easton, Pa., where he will be teaching at the Churchman School of Business.

Harriet Kocher is living in Springfield, Virginia and has opened her own business called "People Incorporated" dealing in placement and resorts.

Sister Laurentia (Helen Mayan) is an elementary principal at Pocono Central Catholic School in Cresco, Pa.

Peggy Johnson Davis is living in Paget West, Bermuda, and invites all of us to stop in to see her sometime.

Eddie Mulhern is living in Rockville, Maryland. Eddie received a prize at the reunion for the most children. Would you believe ten? I also noticed that Mulhern's record for the 440 established in 1939 is still standing. He ran the distance in 50.0. Also, the one-mile relay, of which he was a member, still stands at 3:23.2. I also notice that the 100-yard dash record of 9.7 set by VanDevander in 1939 still stands.

If you have any news, please send it on and we will see that it is properly taken care of.

Sincerely yours,
Willard A. Christian

OPPORTUNITY PROGRAM

In September the Bloomsburg State College initiated an Educational Opportunity Program for high school graduates from economically deprived backgrounds. The group admitted consists of approximately twenty-five individuals, both Negro and white, who have been selected by the college in close cooperation with high school guidance counselors.

Plans for the Educational Opportunity Program were initiated in August, 1968, when a special committee was appointed by Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president of the College, to "survey and make recommendations for promoting more opportunity for economically deprived students at Bloomsburg State College."

The committee consisted of Dr. John A. Hoch, Dean of Instruction; Dr. H. M. Afshar, chairman, Department of Education; Dr. Lee E. Aumiller, Coordinator of Field Experiences; Dr. Robert Miller, director of federal programs; John Scrimgeour, director of student financial aid, and John Walker, director of admissions. This committee met bi-weekly throughout the winter months to consider all aspects of the program. In order to have a better overall evaluation of prospective students, it was decided that insofar as possible all students would be contacted through high school guidance counselors.

The program will be partially funded with Economic Opportunity Grants. Work-study programs, provided by the college, will be initiated during the summer of 1969. Special courses to improve communication skills will be available during the summer, and tutorial services will be available if requested.

All students admitted under the Educational Opportunity Program will be required to maintain the same academic standards as other students, although the time usually required for completing the degree programs may be extended from four to five years.

RECEIVE AWARDS AT MAY COMMENCEMENT

Twenty-two BSC seniors received special awards at the May commencement exercises at the Bloomsburg Fair Grounds.

Thirteen were presented service keys which are given for "outstanding service to 10 per cent or less of the senior class who accumulate a minimum of 20 points for participation in various activities during their four years of college." This is the highest award given by the college community.

Recipients of the key were: Sandra M. Eckberg, Glenolden; Connie Marlene Fike, Warminster; Robert T. Hauck, Mifflinville; Mary Kay Keys, Hatboro; Gail Bower Landers, Williamsport; Virginia E. Lesevich, Catawissa, R. D. 2; Frank L. Mastroianni, Scranton; Antoinette P. Matulis, Philadelphia; Barbara J. Russell, Jersey Shore; Reinhold A. Shultz, Hatboro; Nancy K. Strauss, Lansford; Russell W. Walsh, Levittown; and Robert L. Wynne, Bangor.

Nine lifetime passes, given to senior athletes who have participated in a varsity sport for four years, were presented to Charles Bowman, Bloomsburg; Thomas Castrilli, Bath, N. Y.; Gerald Fulmer, Bloomsburg; Wayne Heim, Columbia; Dale Houck, Williamsport; Edward McNertney, Hazleton; Douglas McRoberts, Hegins; Frank Mastraianni, Scranton and Roy Smay, Clearfield R. D. 1.

Twenty-one recipients of certificates, indicating their inclusion in the publication "Who's Who in American Colleges and University," were announced.

ITEMS PLACED IN BOX OF HARTLINE SCIENCE CENTER

A number of current and recent publications at Bloomsburg State College, a student directory, along with several newspaper items pertaining to Dr. Halden Keffer Hartline were placed in a copper box which was placed behind the date stone in the new Hartline Science Center on the BSC campus.

Similar boxes containing various materials for posterity were placed behind the date stones on other recently completed buildings, including the Andruss Library, Elwell Hall, Haas Auditorium, and South Hall.

In the box are 1968-1969 student directory, 1968 Obiter, 1968-1969 College calendar, 1968-1969 Student Pilot, 1968-1969 BSC General catalog, 1968-1969 BSC graduate catalog; 1968 fall sports brochure, 1967-1968 sports brochures, 1968 spring and fall letters to alumni, 1968 Olympian, Sept. 18, 1968 Maroon and Gold student newspaper, 1968 placement brochure, Sept. 1968 Alumni Quarterly, Oct. 19, 1967 issue of The Morning Press concerning Hartline Nobel Prize; May 10, 1965 issue of The Morning Press showing Dr. Hartline receiving BSC Alumni Award; 125th anniversary brochure, Campus Guide, Bloomsburg State College in brief, Columbia County tourist brochure and Homecoming Football Program. The cost of construction of this building is $1,894,000.

BSC FACULTY HAS ARTICLE PUBLISHED

Dr. Donald A. Vannan, professor of education at Bloomsburg State College, has an article entitled "The Teaching-Bulletin Board" which was published in the March, 1969 issue of Audiovisual Instruction. The article deals with the methods used by a classroom teacher to construct a bulletin board which can be used for teaching concepts and later as a drawing which can be used in testing situations for identification purposes.

Thaddeus Piotrowski, of the Audiovisual Material Center at the College, has a fine review of "The Practical Audio-Visual Handbook for Teachers" which appears in the February, 1969 issue of Audiovisual Instruction.

The Audiovisual Instruction is a monthly educational media publication which is an organ of the National Education Association.

PRE-SESSION

A total of 1,500 undergraduates and graduate students registered on the opening day for the first three weeks of the 1969 summer session at Bloomsburg State College. Late registrations were expected to boost the total to nearly 1,550 which will be the largest pre-session enrollment in the history of the college.

There were 618 men and 591 women undergraduate students. Graduate students total 291 with 152 being men and 139 women. Of the 1,209 undergraduate students, 977 were students who were enrolled at BSC during the previous semester.

Over 400 men and women were housed in campus dormitories and were served their meals in the College Commons. There were 390 day women and 413 day men undergraduate students.

MANY CHANGES IN COLLEGE PRESIDENTS

The frustration of working under the state's bureaucracy and red tape is causing an alarming turnover among presidents of the 14 state owned colleges, Pennsylvania's Commissioner of High Education says.

Dr. Frederick K. Miller said new presidents must be found within 18 months at West Chester, Kutztown, Bloomsburg, Lock Haven and California.

Within the past year-and-a-half, new presidents were named at Slippery Rock, Indiana, Kutztown, East Stroudsburg and Mansfield.

Miller noted that two of the vacancies were caused by deaths and some by old age. But there was no mistaking the fact that the usual complaints about bureaucratic state government played a big part, he said.

In addition to the state college presidents, Dr. Eric A. Walker of Pennsylvania State University, has announced he will retire at the end of June 1970. Miller emphasized that he did not feel presidents of the state-related institutions like Penn State had as many bureaucratic troubles as the state college presidents.

"Private schools recruit faculty from October to January for the following September," Dr. Miller said. But state colleges might not know until later what their budgets will be like. Here, they're admitting students and are never sure they're going to have enough faculty.

"It takes long to process purchases," he said. "And then there's the whole capital building program. The average time it takes to get a dorm is four to five years from the time need is established. By that time you have a whole new generation of students in the school."

Finally, there was the comparison of salaries, which at state colleges are in the $20,000-$29,000 range, Miller said. The state official said this range was "not to be compared with private institutions," which pay more.

"You'll never find a private college president taking over a state college," he said. "It would be to Pennsylvania's advantage to upgrade the state-owned institutions. There is a growing awareness of raising faculty and administrative salaries."

The problem, Miller said, is the current budget squeeze. In his proposed 1969-70 budget, Gov. Shaffer recommends $131,341,000 for the 13 state colleges and Indiana University—up 26 million from the previous year.

The governor recommends considerable increases, but there's no chance in this session of the legislature," Miller said. "Yet in order to recruit and retain a properly qualified administration and faculty, salary and fringe benefits must be greatly increased."

ANNOUNCE LOW BID FOR NEW BUILDING

The General State Authority in Harrisburg announced the unofficial low bids totalling $2,435,787 on the field house-gymnasium complex planned for the upper campus at Bloomsburg State College.

The new complex will house a full size basketball court with a fixed seating capacity of 2,600 and room for folding bleachers, at either end, to accommodate another 2,000 to 3,000 spectators.

In addition, the plans call for a six-lane swimming pool with a seating capacity of between 500 and 600.

There will be two handball courts and space for at least twelve officers for faculty use.

The new field house will have four locker rooms for the college and visiting varsity and jayvee teams as well as storage space for uniforms and training room.

Several buildings are under construction at present at the college's main campus, but the field house-gymnasium will be the first construction on the upper campus — known locally at the Golf Club, a tract of land that was acquired some years ago for future expansion.

If accepted by the General State Authority the upper campus complex will greatly enlarge the athletic facilities of Bloomsburg State College and will eliminate much of the parking problems now encountered at sports events on the hill.

Due to the increased enrollment at the college the present facilities are inadequate to take care of all the athletic programs being scheduled.

ONE HALF STUDENTS RECEIVING AID

Approximately 1,500 or nearly one-half of all undergraduate students at Bloomsburg State College received some kind of financial loan, amounting to a total of $1,037,121, during the 1967-68 college year, according to John Scrimgeour, director of financial aid.

Loans which include National Defense Loans, Alumni Loans, and State Guaranty Loans, accounted for the largest percentage of the financial assistance with a total of $518,318. There were 251 recipients receiving a total of $114,800 in National Defense Loans for an average of $457 per student; 39 students received Alumni Loans amounting to a total of $13,295 or a per-student average of $341. State Guaranty Loans, which are not obtained through the college but by the student himself, totaled $390,223 for 461 recipients or an average student loan of $846.

The next largest amount of financial aid was the scholarships and grants area which amounted to $321,900. Of this total, $256,850 in Pennsylvania State Scholarships, administered by the Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency, was awarded to 518 students for an average of $496 per student.

Educational Opportunity Grants totaled $49,200 for 101 students at an average of $487; another $49,200 was available in EO Grants through matching funds from the Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency, National Defense Loans, student employment, and private outside sources. BSC Alumni Scholarships awarded in the Spring of '67 for use during '67-68 totaled $3,225 for 23 individuals or a $140 per student average.

Employment was available in three areas for Bloomsburg State College students and this amounted to a total of $196,903, broken down as follows: Pennsylvania State Student Employment program—$100,467 for 296 students for a $339 average; work study—$80,723 for 296 students for a $300 average; graduate assistance—$15,713 for 21 recipients for a $747 average.

Statement of College Policy

Bloomsburg State College is proud of its history and traditions, its faculty and student body. A statement at this time does not indicate any special concern in regard to possible activities on our campus such as have been witnessed on college campuses across the country. However, in view of the temper of the times, we believe it proper to reassure our students, faculty, alumni, and friends by a clear statement relative to the following:

1. Bloomsburg State College is a State-owned and State-operated college. It has grown and expanded through the years with State funds. In accordance with State law, its management and control is the responsibility of the Board of Trustees.
2. Bloomsburg State College proudly affirms its belief in, and support of, the philosophy of individual freedom and responsibility. Academic freedom is not academic license, and the right to criticize and protest is not the right to disrupt or interfere with the freedom of others. Bloomsburg State College believes in a government of law and not of men. It is the right of any citizen to criticize, protest, and attempt to change the law in accord with constitutional procedures. It is not his right, however, to disregard or disobey the law even under the excuse of his own conscience.
3. A student enters Bloomsburg voluntarily. He applies presumably because he wishes to further his education and because he believes Bloomsburg State College, with its traditions and reputation, is capable of advancing his intellectual development. Any student who is not in agreement with the rules and regulations, traditions and policies of the College is always welcome to suggest changes in an orderly manner; however, having been accepted and having decided to enroll, he is expected to abide by the laws of our nation and comply with the rules and policies of Bloomsburg State College until change is accomplished by proper procedure.
4. Moreover, the administration of the College pledges unequivocally to give full and prompt attention to proposals presented in a serious and orderly manner. The use of violence, disturbances, or force of any kind—whether by a single student, a minority or a majority group—will not be tolerated.

Accordingly, the Board of Trustees formally announces this College offers no sanctuary to any individual or group which condones, advocates, or exercises the taking over, or damaging, of Commonwealth property or the use of intimidation or physical force. Any who engage in such activities will be held legally and individually responsible. Corrective steps may include suspension, expulsion, and/or prosecution in the court of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES

BLOOMSBURG STATE COLLEGE

LOYALTY FUND -- THIRD YEAR

Since the Loyalty Fund was initiated in October, 1966, contributions to the Fund have amounted to $28,000, in round numbers. Some of this money has been used to defray the expenses, including printing of The Quarterly, salary of the office secretary, Loyalty Fund publicity, dues to the Association of Teachers Organizations and the Council of Alumni Associations, telephone, and office supplies, and the sponsoring of broadcasts of athletic events. Increasing costs have made it necessary to dip more deeply into the Fund than we had originally intended. We believe that these expenses are necessary in order to prevent the Association from going out of business as an active organization.

Seven Alumni scholarships were presented last Spring. Four were in the amount of $300 each, two to the amount of $200, and one to the amount of $100. The recipients were carefully screened by a faculty committee.

We wish to express our thanks to all those who have contributed to the Fund. However, when you read the tabulation of gifts by classes, you can easily see that only a small percentage of the Alumni have been involved. Although larger gifts would be appreciated, what we most desire is more givers.

We hope that the classes in reunion in 1970 will give serious consideration to a substantial gift when they meet in reunion.

LET'S KEEP THE BALL ROLLING.

The Alumni Quarterly

Shortly after assuming his duties as the new President of B. S. C., Dr. Robert J. Nossen visited the Alumni Room to view the trophy shelves with Mrs. Nossen.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Not very many years ago, a state college essentially served a limited geographic region, its graduates were prepared for a single occupation, and for the most part they continued to live in the area served by the institution. Currently, of course, virtually every state-operated college recruits its students from a wide population, prepares its graduates for diverse roles in society, and finds its alumni scattered throughout the nation. The era, therefore, of cohesive alumni units is gone; it has become increasingly difficult to establish and to maintain traditional alumni loyalties. Contact, for the most part, is continued through publications such as this.

If, however, close community of interest has faded, there remains for every graduate a responsibility for participating, even remotely, in the continuing operation of his college, by supporting alumni programs.

One need not be reminded of the rapid rise of costs for higher education; yet even with increased fees, the current student pays less than 25% of the annual operating costs for Bloomsburg State College, exclusive of capital construction. In all probability, you paid a lower percentage of the instructional costs for your education. The demand for college opportunity has hardly abated; rather, the need for scholarship aid, loan funds, and grants-in-aid becomes increasingly important. Today's student should be able to look to alumni for such assistance, as they, in turn, should help those who follow. Again, with needs for more sophisticated facilities and equipment, essential for effective and efficient operation, and with necessary limitations imposed upon the use of available state funds, the need for unrestricted, discretionary funds becomes increasingly important. The college itself should be able to look to alumni for such assistance.

I have been particularly aware of the fine Alumni Office at this college, and I have watched its Board of Directors give of their time and assume responsibilities designed to fulfill the objectives of the Association. The entire college community joins in thanking them, and in hoping that you will support their goals.

In order to keep the alumni abreast of college philosophy and college operation, I believe it appropriate to comment briefly upon the so-called Moratorium held on October 15. On that occasion classes were not dismissed, nor was there any disruption of the normal instructional program. On the other hand, students organized and ran a series of panel sessions throughout the day dedicated to a review of questions relating to military activity and foreign policy, featuring participants representing a wide variety of attitudes and approaches. The events were peaceful, constructive and represented an academically sound review of matters pertinent to common welfare.

The college can and does have no official position in matters of controversy. It should, however, provide a forum for intelligent and objective review of pertinent issues. The date of October 15 provided one such opportunity.

ALUMNI SEE BSC PROGRESS

Alumni of Bloomsburg State College returning for homecoming festivities saw more students and more new buildings.

The latter, of course, were the most obvious with virtually every segment of the campus experiencing the construction of new buildings to meet the needs of expanding educational opportunities.

The total cost of construction under way is $12,500,000.

Four structures are already scheduled for completion in 1970. A dining hall-kitchen, facing East Second Street, is expected to be ready for use in January, 1970. The dining areas are completely air-conditioned and will seat 1,000 students and feed 2,000 at each meal. The present College Commons was built in 1956 to accommodate only 720 students but is currently serving more than 1,700.

The maintenance building-garage which is to be completed in April, 1970, will provide offices, working areas, and storage space for the growing number of personnel who must maintain the campus for use during the entire year. The building is being constructed on the site of the former Heiss property facing Light-street Road.

A new classroom building which will become the Bakeless Center for the Humanities, is located between Haas Auditorium and Andruss Library. Completely air-conditioned, the Center will provide 36 classroom or seminar rooms, offices for 66 faculty members, a faculty lounge, and storage areas. Occupation and use of the building are expected to begin during the 1970 Summer Sessions.

Most of the steel has been erected for a nine story residence hall to house 400 women, four resident advisers, and a member of the student personnel staff. Lounges, study rooms, and storage areas are a part of the residence hall which is expected to open its doors next August.

Final plans for a student center are expected before the end of 1969 with beginning construction anticipated in the spring of 1970. The three-story structure will be air-conditioned and will house a formal lounge, the College Store, a snack bar and dining area, space for four bowling alleys, lockers and mail-boxes, a multi-purpose room, a TV room, a listening room, an infirmary or health center, officer for a variety of student organizations, a recreation or game room, offices for student personnel staff, a vending machine area, and storage areas.

One of the major projects on the Upper Campus will provide both roads and utilities for residence halls, a dining hall, classroom buildings, and auxiliary facilities. Engineers are currently putting the finishing touches on prefinal plans. This project must be designed and coordinated with the design and construction of all future structures on the Upper Campus.

New quarters for some members of the administrative staff will be located on the site now occupied by the former Dillon House. Prefinal plans are nearing completion, and construction could begin during the summer of 1970. In addition to the air-conditioned office area, the project will house a central receiving, supply, and storage area.

The area extending east of Dillon House to the new maintenance building will become the site of eighteen all-weather tennis courts, a baseball diamond, and a football-soccer field. This area is to be used by health and physical education classes and for recreation activities. Preliminary plans for these facilities and for a new road and parking areas have been completed by the project engineer. The completion date has not been determined.

The multi-level parking area in the vicinity of Penn and Second Streets will feature a new concept for parking cars at BSC. Its purpose is to provide a maximum number of spaces on a minimum amount of site space. It was also felt that a parking garage, carefully designed to blend with existing terrain, will be more attractive than the usual amesited parking areas.

Pre-planning for the additional seven buildings is nearing completion. Nearly $10,000,000 will be needed in the next several years to construct a classroom building and another residence hall for women on the Lower Campus, two residence halls for men and one for women on the Upper Campus, a maintenance building-garage and a dining hall, also located on the Upper Campus.

To fulfill the provision of the Campus Plan to accommodate an enrollment of nearly 6000 in the 1970's, there will be need for other buildings on the Upper Campus. These will include a research and learning center, a science laboratory building, general classroom and library facilities.

ALUMNI MEET DR. NOSSEN

Alumni returning for homecoming activities at Bloomsburg State College had the opportunity of meeting the institution's new president Dr. Robert J. Nossen, who September 5 succeeded Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, whose tenure covered a thirty year span and who was on the faculty ten years earlier.

Dr. Nossen came to Bloomsburg from Fredonia, N. Y., where he was vice president for academic affairs of State University College in that community.

Dr. Nossen was also the first Dean of Liberal Arts and Sciences at Fredonia. From 1954 to 1960 he was professor and chairman of the English Department, Lamar State College, Beaumont, Texas. From 1950 to 1954 he was an assistant professor in English at Creighton University, Omaha, Neb. from 1948 to 1950 and he was an assistant professor of English at Northwestern University.

Dr. Nossen was born in San Francisco, Calif., and received his early education in the California school system. He received his B.A. degree from the University of California in 1944, his M.A. degree from Northwestern University in 1948, and his Ph.D. from the same university in 1951.

Dr. Nossen has served as a college consultant for the New York State Education Department and for the Bureau of Teacher Education, and the Bureau of Higher Education. He has also had experience in working with State Colleges in Pennsylvania through the Middle States Commission.

Mrs. Nossen is an educator in her own right, having served on faculties at the secondary and college level. She is the author of numerous articles in the field of English Literature. She holds A.B. and M.A. degrees.

BRINKLEY SPEAKS AT COLLEGE CONFERENCE

"The answer to our problems is reform within the existing structure; we need a peaceful resolution to make the present system work because it is still the best in spite of its faults," David Brinkley, nationally known news analyst and commentator, asserted at Bloomsburg State College recently. He addressed around 1,500 educators in Haas auditorium on the BSC campus.

Brinkley's address was a highlight of the Twenty-Third annual Conference for Teachers and Administrators sponsored by the College. He spoke on "The State of the Nation."

ALUMNI DAY

April 25, 1970

Class ending in 5 and 0 will be in reunion.

Dr. Nossen Outlines His Policy

Asserting there is no standing still, Dr. Robert J. Nossen, new president of BSC, addressing the members of the faculty and administrative staff asked that faculty and students join with him in a review of every phase of the operation of the College.

The educator said he will review some of the more pressing problems of education including the "so called campus unrest, its causes and factors involved in resolution, society's expectations from the colleges and universities and the responsibilities of higher education to society. Finally, I will review the possible application of some of these to Bloomsburg."

Tribute was paid to the marked advancement of the college under Dr. Andruss by the new president who declared "The roles that this College must play must be factored into its long-range academic plan, and that plan must be up-graded at least annually."

Dr. Nossen prefaced his remarks with this statement, "I wish to express my appreciation to the Board of Trustees, for whom I hold great respect; to the faculty members and students who worked with the trustees during the long, difficult, and sometimes tedious process of selecting a president; and to all — and they are encouraging, numerous, and from all areas of the College and the region — who have made us feel fully welcome to Bloomsburg."

"I am indeed pleased and proud to be a part of BSC and the Bloomsburg Area community. We have not been here long, yet we already feel close to both."

Dr. Nossen continued his address by noting that, "Dr. Andruss accomplished many things during his tenure: the College will long be grateful for his years of effort, but I most appreciate his leaving a campus well along in the making, the buildings and grounds that reflect care and nurturing and, above all, a fine staff with whom to work."

"Assuming a new role is never easy: the difficulties have been minimized, thanks to those whose presence here assures a relatively smooth period of transition."

"The past decade has been one of rapid change in higher education, and Bloomsburg State College reflects, in many ways, the nature of such change. There is no standing still, even though some find comfort in a status quo."

"I ask only that faculty and students join with me, and let me join with them, in reviewing every phase of the operation of the College, every practice, every tradition, every concept. When a new approach seems warranted, let's approach it carefully, but deliberately; whatever doesn't fulfill our expectations, let's discard and try an alternative.

"There are a number of areas which I hope will be among our primary considerations. Many of these have already started and this statement will simply be a reaffirmation; others will demand new consideration and, perhaps, renewed tolerance from you."

"Full procedures for faculty participation in governance, the role of students in College operation, curricula revision, the use of Library of Congress classification in the library, new instructional configurations and techniques, the implementation of a pass-fail option and, of course, challenge procedures and an administrative reorganization are just a few of the considerations we must confront openly and objectively."

HOW NEW PRESIDENT WAS CHOSEN

Dr. Robert J. Nossen, the new president of Bloomsburg State College, was elected in a manner differing from that of his predecessors. Both faculty and students had a part in this election.

When Dr. Harvey A. Andruss announced his intention early this year of retiring after thirty years as president, the Board of Trustees decided both students and faculty should have a part in naming his successor.

As a result, they invited the faculty to name three instructors and invited the student body to name three students to serve, along with three trustees, as a "screening group."

The nine had an opportunity to meet with the leading candidates from the field of sixty who applied for the post. There were interviews in which all took part. At the end of the last interview the nine voted by secret ballot for the top five. Dr. Nossen received the top number of votes.

The entire Board of Trustees, of which William A. Lank of Bloomsburg is President, then met with the two top-rated candidates and their respective wives. They recommended Dr. Nossen as first choice to Governor Raymond Shafer. The latter announced his approval, Thursday, August 7, 1969.

To give to a college is to invest in humanity—to offer health to the sick, justice to the oppressed, opportunity to the underprivileged, a richer and fuller life to all —and to build for oneself a memorial carved in the most enduring of all materials, the hearts and minds of men.

He served with the 312 Machinegun Bn. 79 Position, AEF in World War I and was wounded in action in France.

He was employed by Firestone Tire and Rubber Company for thirty-eight years, retiring in Florida ten years ago. He was a member of the Pasadena Community Church, St. Petersburg; Loyalty Lodge 645, Akron, O.; Rajah Temple of Reading and Ben Franklin Consistory, Philadelphia.

William H. Rowlands '49

William H. Rowlands, a teacher at Northwest Area High School, died at the Wilkes-Barre General Hospital on October 8. He graduated from Harter High School in 1936, and also from Bloomsburg State College and Bucknell University.

He was a member of PSEA, local and state chapters; National Congress of PTA, St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Plymouth; Shawnee Post 463, American Legion, Plymouth and Pennsylvania State Association of Township supervisors. He was a veteran of World War II in the U. S. Army.

Dr. E. Paul Wagner

Dr. E. Paul Wagner, professor of psychology and director of testing program at BSC, died at his home, 140 East Twelfth Street, Bloomsburg, September 1. He was born in Charleroi, a son of the late Henry N., and Adna Martin Wagner.

He earned his bachelors, master and doctor degree from Penn State University, and also attended Washington and Jefferson College.

He taught physical education and coached the track team at Donora High School, prior to serving as a naval officer in the South Pacific in World War II. Following the war he taught at State University College, Utica, N. Y., and was athletic director there before coming to BSC in 1950.

He was a member of the American Legion Post 273; Bloomsburg Elks; National Rehabilitation Association; Donora Lodge 626 F and AM; Coudersport Consistory; Irem Temple, Wilkes-Barre; Pennsylvania State Education Association; Association of Pennsylvania State College and University Faculties; Bloomsburg State College Faculty Association; American Psychology Association; Phi Delta Kappa Fraternity; Kappa Sigma Fraternity; and chairman of the scholarship committee of the Jacques Weber Foundation.

Dr. Wagner coached the BSC baseball team to a State College championship in the middle 1950's.

During the second semester of 1968-69 Dr. and Mrs. Wagner toured the South Pacific area during the professor's sabbatical leave from the college.

Harriet Bittenbender '01

Miss Harriet Bittenbender, Berwick, died September 7. She was born in Nescopeck township and resided in the Berwick area her entire life.

She taught school at Nescopeck and Berwick for 55 years, retiring in 1956. A member of the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, Berwick, she was a member of all the women's coordination functions of her church.

Harriet McAndrew Murphy '16

Mrs. Harriet M. Murphy, 76, a Washington area resident for 32 years, died August 21 in Doctors Hospital. She had undergone surgery two weeks before. Mrs. Murphy was the former Harriet McAndrew. She was a graduate of Bloomsburg State Teachers College and had taught school in Hawley, Pa.

She was a member of the Ladies Guild of the Sisters of Our Lady of Africa, Blessed Sacrament Catholic Church, its Sanctuary Sodality and also the Christ Child Society. Her husband, George W., an attorney, died in 1952.

Anna Kane Crosby '24

Mrs. Vincent Crosby, the former Anna Kane, of Frackville, a former teacher in the West Mahoning Township schools, died July 21. Mrs. Crosby was employed by the Lebanon Valley school district at the time of her death.

Rose E. Monahan '96

Miss Rose E. Monahan, 91, of 440 Carey Avenue, Wilkes-Barre, retired Wilkes-Barre City school teacher and an active Girl Scout leader for many years, died in the Sunnyside Nursing Home, where she had been a guest the past few months.

Miss Monahan taught in the Wilkes-Barre City School District for 48 years. She was a teacher at both the Parrish and Henry M. Hoyt schools.

A Girl Scout leader 41 years, she was the founder of Girl Scout Troop 17, of St. Aloysius Church and previously had been a leader for the Girl Pioneers, a forerunner of the Girl Scouts.

She had been a member of the board of directors for Wyoming Valley Girl Scout Council. In 1962, she was selected to appear on the cover of the annual report of the Wyoming Valley Girl Scout Council which marked the 50th anniversary of Girl Scouting. She was honored at a "Honor Your Founders" dinner in October, 1960.

Miss Monahan was a member of St. Aloysius Church and its Altar and Rosary Society. She served as the superintendent of St. Aloysius Sunday School and also was a Sunday School teacher at St. Leo's Church, Ashley. She served as district deputy of the Catholic Daughters of America for several terms and also was grand regent for Court Gate of Heaven, CDA.

The Wilkes-Barre Times Leader had the following editorial comment:

"The death of Miss Rose Monahan, South Wilkes-Barre, recalls the tremendous contribution she made to youth during a long career spanning nine decades. She was an outstanding figure in Girl Scouting, education and religion."

Theron Watts

Theron Watts, 74, Bloomsburg, died during the summer of a heart attack at his home. A receiving clerk at BSC for thirty-three years, he retired twelve years ago. He later operated the Watts Evergreen Nursery in Benton Township. He served as part-time policeman for thirty-five years.

3856 ENROLL AT COLLEGE

A total of 3,559 undergraduate students completed registration for the 1969-1970 college year at Bloomsburg State College, according to Robert Bunge, registrar. In addition, 297 graduate students are enrolled at the college, which give a grand total of 3,856 undergraduates and graduate students, the largest enrollment in the history of the college.

Of the 3,559 undergraduate students, 1,884 are men and 1,675 are women. The graduate student total of 297 breaks down into 137 men and 160 women.

Approximately 1,695 men and women are housed in campus dormitories and will be served their meals through the facilities of the College Commons.

Paul S. Riegel, former Dean of Students at BSC, and Dean of Student Personnel at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, has been named to the newly-created position of assistant vice chancellor for administrative affairs.

ALUMNI DAY

April 25, 1970

Class ending in 5 and 0 will be in reunion.

MRS. WILLIAMS RETIRES

Mrs. Elizabeth Williams, Assistant Dean of Women at Bloomsburg State College, retired at the end of August after thirty-eight years in the field of education.

A native of South Williamsport, Mrs. Williams received her early education in the schools of that community and earned a Bachelor of Science degree in education from Slippery Rock State College where she majored in English and social studies. The Pennsylvania State University awarded her a Master of Education degree with a major in psychology and student personnel work. She has taken additional graduate work in psychology at Bucknell University and in student personnel work at Syracuse University.

While at Bloomsburg she taught psychology and sociology, chaired orientation programs and Parents Day for many years, served as President of the Faculty Association at the college and President of the Bloomsburg Branch, American Association of University Women. She has served on the executive board of the Pennsylvania Association of Women Deans and Counselors and holds memberships in the Pennsylvania State Education Association, the National Education Association, and the Order of Eastern Star 321.

NEW DEPARTMENT

HEADS ARE NAMED

Dr. Martin Satz, a member of the BSC faculty since 1958 and a professor of psychology, has been named acting chairman of the Department of Psychology, replacing Dr. Merritt Sanders, who has become the new director of Research and Evaluation Center.

Dr. Edwin Drake, a member of the staff since 1964 and a professor of history, has been named director of arts and sciences succeeding Dr. Alan J. Buker, who accepted a position of dean of liberal arts at Robert Morris College, Pittsburgh.

The former Department of Social Sciences, chaired by Dr. William Carlough, has been split into two departments — the Department of Philosophy, Dr. William Carlough, chairman, and the Department of Sociology, Dr. Ralph Ireland, chairman.

The former Department of Physical Science, chaired by Dr. Norman E. White, has also been divided into two departments—the Department of Physics, Dr. Halbert Gates, chairman, and the Department of Chemistry, Dr. Norman E. White, chairman. Increases in enrollment and expansion of curriculum has necessitated the dividing of these two departments.

Robert C. (Bobby) Wilson, former star athlete at Bloomsburg High School and Bloomsburg State College and one time teacher and coach of the Bloomsburg High football team, retired after almost three decades of service with the State Department of Education.

Wilson, chief of the Child Accounting Division, Bureau of School Administrative Services, is credited with the development of the child accounting forms presently in use throughout the division.

A resident of 3514 Schoolhouse Lane, Harrisburg, the former local resident was honored in special retirement ceremonies held during a general staff meeting of the department.

In his twenty-seven years of service he was a child accounting advisor and school business specialist. The retirement certificate was presented by Secretary of Education David H. Kurtzman.

Wilson in his years in Bloomsburg was an all around athlete at the Bloomsburg High School and also active in varsity athletics at Bloomsburg State College. Early in his career in education he was a member of the faculty of the local high school and coach of the Panther football team. He left here to begin his successful career in the State Department of Education.

The retired educator plans to occupy the majority of his free time with his favorite hobbies—bowling and flower gardening.

FOCUS ATTENTION ON NEEDS OF STUDENTS

Education is more than just the pursuit of academic excellence at Bloomsburg State College and takes place not only in the classroom but in all places where students interact. Campus life includes residence hall and dining room experiences as well as all of the various social and cultural events in the co-curricular activities program.

Consequently, almost all of the 3,650 students at BSC are afforded an opportunity to explore their individual potential and find a place for the expression of their talents so that they may better understand themselves.

The members of the Dean of Students' staff focus their attention on the needs of the individual student as well as the entire community with the intention of assisting young men and women to more fully develop their potentials as they progress towards their various goals. Thus, this large staff of qualified personnel is responsible for student activities, housing, food services, counseling, health, athletics, student financial aid, student government, and many related areas. Above all, they are responsible for maintaining an environment which emphasizes integrity and consideration of others.

Russell E. Houk, athletic director at Bloomsburg State College for the past twelve years, has been named Chairman of District 19 of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics. District 19 includes Eastern Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Delaware and Maryland.

In addition to serving as District 19 Chairman, Houk was reappointed last spring to the Executive Committee of the National Olympic Wrestling Team for the 1972 olympics; he is vice president of the Pennsylvania Conference, a member of the Executive Committee of the AAU Wrestling Committee, and is a consultant to the newly formed Wrestling Federation.

HOMEcomings

A colorful parade, well executing the general theme of "Our American Heritage," the football game with West Chester, get togethers of alumni and two dances were among the features of the most successful festivities of the Bloomsburg State College's outstanding forty-second Homecoming weekend, with the weatherman cooperating fully.

Townpeople joined with the grads and other visitors of the days to view the exceptionally fine parade of the morning, now Bloomsburg's largest procession.

Many of the graduates were on hand for festivities on Friday evening but the majority came on Saturday and the campus was alive with activity throughout the day and evening.

There were get togethers for the grades following the game and two dances in the evening. Open house was observed over the weekend and the BSC concert choir entertained on Sunday evening.

West Chester Rams, aiming to move back to the top of the Pennsylvania State College grid conference used a balanced attack and proved to be opportunists of first rank as they moved a step closer that goal on Saturday when they bested Bloomsburg Huskies, 38-13, at Athletic Park in the sports attraction of Homecoming.

Preliminary plans were approved recently by Dr. Robert J. Nossen, president of Bloomsburg State College, for a multi-level garage to be located on a site bounded by East Second Street, Penn Street, Pine Avenue, and Thornton Avenue. The new parking facility will accomodate approximately 210 cars. A portion of Penn and Second Streets will be widened to improve traffic circulation in the area.

The project, for which $400,000 has been allocated, also includes a road which will connect the Upper Campus with Arbutus Park Road. The new road will facilitate the flow of traffic to and from varsity athletic contests when the Athletic Field and the gymnasium are completed on the Upper Campus.

NINE AT COLLEGE ARE ON SABBATICAL LEAVE

Nine members of the Bloomsburg State College faculty are on sabbatical leave of absence either all or part of the 1969-1970 college year.

Five members who will be on sabbatical leave for the entire college year are Mrs. Mary Lou John, Department of Foreign Languages; Eli W. McLaughlin, Department of Health and Physical Education; Miss Susan Rusinko, Department of English and Tobias F. Scarpino and David A. Superdock, Department of Physical Sciences.

Richard C. Savage, Department of English, and Robert R. Solenberger,

Department of Social Studies, are on sabbatical leave during the first semester and James B. Creasy, assistant to the president, and Dr. Royce O. Johnson, Director, Division of Elementary Education, will be on leave the second semester.

COMMUNICATION DISORDERS CENTER AT BSC APPROVED

Notification has been received from Dr. John W. Keys, chairman, Professional Services Board, American Board of Examiners in Speech Pathology and Audiology of the American Speech and Hearing Association, that the Center for Learning and Communication Disorders at Bloomsburg State College has been approved as a public service facility, according to Richard M. Smith, administrator of the Center.

This accreditation permits the BSC Center to be listed in a national directory of Clinical Services which insures the general public that the professional services available at this center are of the highest quality. Dr. William L. Jones, director of the Division of Special Education at BSC, stated that initial plans for the Center were started as an outgrowth of the former facilities of the Division of Special Education, and that the realization is something that the staff members of the Center and the faculty of BSC can be justly proud.

IS SOMEONE ELSE PAYING FOR YOUR QUARTERLY?

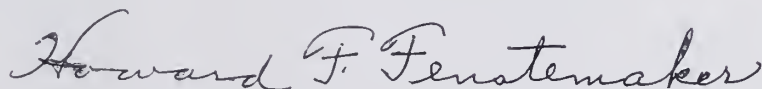

11,119 copies of the September Quarterly were sent out in the mail. The cost of printing and mailing the Quarterly is over $4000 a year. The loyalty of those who have contributed $2.00 or more per year has made it possible for us to send the Quarterly to all Alumni.

The activities of the Alumni Association have not been subsidized by the College. We would not have it any other way. We do not wish to give funds to the College with one hand and get it back with the other.

We are not asking for extremely large gifts, but we do hope that more graduates will participate.

We also urge all the representatives of classes in reunion on Alumni Day, April 25, 1970, to see that their classes are well represented in the list of contributors.

Let's show President Nossen that we are behind him!

President, Bloomsburg State College Alumni Association

LOYALTY FUND

The Loyalty Fund Campaign is now entering its fourth year. Contributions received during the first three years are as follows:

First Year -----	$10,223.12
Second Year -----	$10,382.70
Third Year -----	$11,473.57
Total -----	$32,079.39

Some of this money has been used to defray the expenses, including printing of The Quarterly, salary of the office secretary, Loyalty Fund publicity, dues to the Association of Teachers Organizations and the Council of Alumni Associations, telephone, and office supplies, and the sponsoring of broadcasts of athletic events. Increasing costs have made it necessary to dip more deeply into the Fund than we had originally intended. We believe that these expenses are necessary in order to prevent the Association from going out of business as an active organization.

Seven Alumni scholarships were presented last Spring. Four were in the amount of $300 each, two to the amount of $200, and one to the amount of $100. The recipients were carefully screened by a faculty committee.

We wish to express our thanks to all those who have contributed to the Fund. However, when you read the tabulation of gifts by classes, you can easily see that only a small percentage of the Alumni have been involved. Although larger gifts would be appreciated, what we most desire is more givers.

We hope that the classes in reunion in 1970 will give serious consideration to a substantial gift when they meet in reunion.

LET'S KEEP THE BALL ROLLING.

FROM PRESIDENT NOSSEN

This, indeed, is a propitious time for accounting and stewardship—for both you and me.

I have been granted the opportunity to serve in a leadership role at this college; I am proud of the association and I am pleased with the challenge. I have the responsibility to help this college develop during the coming years, not along the lines of so-called conventional universities, but as an institution dedicated to students on the undergraduate level essentially, and as a college with a potential for distinctive service.

My colleagues and I need to remember that state colleges today enroll 21 per cent of all students in higher education, and that between 1954 and 1966, while overall enrollments grew by 141 per cent, state colleges grew by 266 per cent.

My colleagues and I in American higher education must prepare, by 1980, for 11.5 million students as opposed to 7.5 million today; for a faculty that will require 1.1 million qualified professionals, as opposed to the current 785,000; for proportionate costs in salaries and libraries and construction and as yet unidentified new programs, and new techniques of instruction, and new objectives to fulfill.

Your responsibilities are no less awesome. I call upon you to work with us, individually, and collectively within your various groups, to support this college and to uphold the values of higher education.

I ask you to question those that preach the doctrine of a generation gap that "can't be bridged." Not the young only want to throw back the veil of hypocrisy and treat the ills of society. Not the young only are searching for service to the public interest; but those of us at every age level who care—and there is no dividing line on an age basis for this quality.

I call upon you to recognize with us that educational institutions cannot yield to every demand, many of which have been presented without prior careful thought; that a healthy institution cannot reject admissions qualified or ignore methods of recording achievement; that it can neither practice nor preach a philosophy that students are freed from those moral restraints to which the rest of society is subject.

I call upon you to continue to learn, with a restless spirit; to first attempt to identify that which is evil, then oppose it; in your learning, I ask you to develop a sympathy with human endeavors and an empathy with other men and women. I ask you to reaffirm the truth that a life worth living demands restraints, that freedom, to be actual and to survive, must conform to laws that must be higher than human whim.

Finally, I call upon you for your understanding and support, when this college and those within its faculty and administration make appropriate efforts to institute changes that are meaningful and valid, and opposing forces rise in indignation and condemnation. The building of a better college is not an easy process, or even one designed to assure popular support. But if you, and the other thousands of alumni with whom you join, are with us, we can, both of us, indeed stand with pride in our accountability and our stewardship.

Mid-Year Commencement

"There shines forth fleetingly the ever-threatened truth that each and every man builds for all," Dr. Robert J. Nossen, president of Bloomsburg State College, told the 151 members of the graduating class at the winter commencement in Haas auditorium at BSC and pointed out that "It is not only the young who are searching for service to the public interest, but also those of us at every age level who care — and there is no dividing line on an age basis for this quality."

One hundred thirty-one Bachelor and twenty Master's Degrees were awarded.

In his discussion he asserted that change is necessary but "must be controlled for a specific purpose, and not simply as a reaction to threat or force"; participation does not and cannot mean domination — or control; curriculum relevancy "does not mean a curriculum without basis in sound practice; conformity with the whim of the moment or a program devoid of discipline" and "there are many in current higher education that are worth preserving, that we can build upon to effect our changes and our improvements."

Referring to his topic, the educator said, "A young man visited me in my office a few days ago, to review with me what he considered the ills of the college. I listened, perhaps not as patiently as I might; and I responded, perhaps a little more vigorously than I should have. But he said a number of things, based essentially upon validity, but distorted in his understanding. He said many things that have been repeated so often, without analysis, that they have become ingrained in the popular conception, and accepted it as verified."

Change Must Have Purpose

"He believed that change in higher education is necessary, and so, of course, do I. An education based upon the study of the classics, a mastery of Latin and Greek, the standard of a few decades past, does not begin to fulfill the needs of those crowding our colleges today. An education designed essentially to train clergy, the goals of an era not too far from our time, would hardly fit into the 1970's. Change has indeed been with us in higher education since the first students gathered at Bologna or Oxford. And the period of the sixties set the stage for some of the most dramatic changes that higher education has ever seen. Changes will continue to come, but each must be controlled and for a specific purpose, and not simply as a reaction to threat or force."

Participation Not Domination

"He stated he thought that students should share in planning, and be heard in various facets of administrative decisions -making, and so do I. At Bloomsburg, students participate in such varied responsibilities as the selection of a president, as advisor to the Board of Trustees, in service on a variety of faculty committees. Perhaps the basis for participation can be broadened, but the precedent and the practice have been established. But, participation does not and cannot mean domination — or control. I hear every so often the term 'student power,' or 'faculty power,' and must wonder if those upholding such have given thought, deep thought, to the function and purpose of higher education, which must operate less on a concept of power and antagonism, and ever more on the concept of constructive cooperation."

Relevancy With Discipline

"He stated his conviction that curricula need to be relevant, and so do I. But, curriculum relevancy does not mean a curriculum without basis in sound practice; it does not mean conformity with the whim of the moment. It does not mean a program devoid of discipline, of the need for intensive study and mastery of basic subject matter. It does mean that one gains, even today, his understanding of the man-ness of man, his concept of human dignity and human worth (even in a world beset with manifold ills) from a study of the past, from a study of literature and philosophy, from a variety of studies of man's activities in the world. It does mean, too, that one is surely at a loss to grasp his world without a basic understanding of mathematics and the natural sciences."

"So this young man and I agreed on many points, insofar as ends are concerned, though we interpret them quite differently; we shared little in common with regard to means. Were I to follow his thoughts, there is nothing of value in the current structure of this college and of higher education in general; only through its destruction could it, Phoenix-like, arise from the ashes in a new and more meaningful and more effective form."

"Perhaps, despite a so-called generation gap, I can perceive his motivation. I, too, live in his world, and I, too, can recite the litany of pollution and corruption, crime and hatred, continued warfare among peoples, poverty and ignorance. I, too, regret that in most of higher education there is a lack of flexibility in program, there are faculty members disdainful of teaching and advisement, and courses are taught that are long outmoded."

Need Constant Reform

"There are abuses of society and of the academic community, and as such they are in need of our constant efforts for reform. But we needn't, in this, as in any other age, conclude that because there are wrongs, everything is wrong; or that in destroying that which is, we can somehow, contrary to all human experience, reconstruct from ruins that which is better."

"There are many things that are right in society, and I am sure all of you can well enumerate them. There are many things in current higher education that are worth preserving, that we can build upon to effect our changes and our improvements. There is much at Bloomsburg State that all of us can share a pride in, and I believe that each graduate before me can and would testify to that."

"In short, you are important, each of you, personally and individually; let me share with you the words of that fine French novelist, Albert Camus:

"Great ideas, it has been said, come into the world as gently as doves. Perhaps then if we listen attentively, we shall hear, amid the unroar of empires and nations, a faint flutter of wings, the gentle stirring of life and hope. Some will say that this hope lies in a nation; others, in a man. I believe rather that it is awakened, revived, nourished by millions of solitary individuals whose deeds and works every day negate frontiers and the crudest implications of history. As a result, there shines forth fleetingly the ever threatened truth that each and every man . . . builds for all."

The Program

The invocation was given by the Rev. Craig J. Dorward. The Concert Choir sang "Hallelujah Amen," Handel. Dr. John A. Hoch, dean of instruction, presented candidates for the Bachelor of Arts Degree and the degrees.

The degrees were conferred by Dr. Nossen and the diplomas awarded by William A. Lank, president of the trustees, assisted by Edson J. Drake, director of Arts and Sciences.

The candidate for the Bachelor of Science in Education Degree were then presented by Dr. Hoch to Dr. Nossen and in presenting them Lank was assisted by Dr. Emory W. Rarig, director of Business Education; Dr. Royce O. Johnson, director of Elementary Education; Dr. C. Stuart Edwards, director of Secondary Education, and Dr. William L. Jones, director of Special Education.

Dr. Charles H. Carlson, director of graduate students presented the candidates for the Master of Education Degree to Dr. Nossen and Lank awarded the diplomas. Miss Beth Powlus, soprano, sang "Father of Heaven," Handel. After the address the program concluded with "Alma Mater" and the recessional.

Representatives from 18 Pennsylvania colleges and over 50 Pennsylvania school districts from central Pennsylvania attended the Central Regional Meeting of the Pennsylvania Association for Student Teaching held at Bloomsburg State College on October 29.

Gov. Shafer Pays Visit To BSC Campus

GOV SHAFFER VISITS CAMPUS

Governor Raymond P. Shafer paid a visit to the BSC campus recently, and among the various features was a press conference. Because, as is usually the situation in such circumstances, things were behind schedule and the hour conference was limited to forty minutes.

The questions were in the usual areas. Since he was at a State College most of the student queries were similar to those asked by students on campuses of similar institutions. When the reporters had their inning their questions were built largely around things they usually inquire about. The tenor of the session was made pertinent by question that were formed so they included current developments.

As to a query about putting all the State Colleges under one board of trustees, the Governor does not believe that this would enhance the political influence of appointments. He said there would be no basic change in appointment which would continue to be made by the Governor and approved by the Senate. He felt mentioned amendments would cause non basic change and mentioned an act of earlier in the day of placing the student government presidents of each college on the board of trustees, a move he holds will be a step toward the eliminating of lack of understanding and communication.

Support of Colleges

He mentioned that he had proposed $83 millions for the State Colleges and the Legislature had cut that to $68 millions. As to why this Commonwealth gives so much aid to private institutions, he said this is unique in Pennsylvania and he believes it is sound. The Governor said that state has more private colleges, on basis of population, than any other state and "it makes sense to aid them to keep operating and is certainly cheaper than to build state schools from scratch to replace them."

Complaint was raised about segregation in the state colleges. Showing a slight irritation at the statement Shafer replied that any who held that opinion was "either misled, misguided presenting a wilful untruth." He said the Colleges are not segregated or separated. He said it is a fact the Negro enrollment is low "but we are attempting to bring more blacks in."

A student brought up the matter of individual rights believed violated at the College and the Governor told him "I just don't believe it." He added that there are local rules at institutions and when an individual enrolls he must accept them "and if you don't like them then work to change them."

Future Tuition Increases

Asked if there would be future increases in tuition at the State Colleges,, the Governor said he could not answer that stating it would depend on future costs and action of future Legislatures.

His trip around the Colleges, he said, was to learn first hand from students, faculty, administration and trustees. Told about Akron U. students seizing a building and asked what he would do if that happened in this state, he said he would take such steps as required to remove the students. "Such acts as seizing buildings violate rights of others and also those of the perpetrators."

INSTALLATION FOR DR. NOSSEN WILL BE APRIL 18

The new president of Bloomsburg State College, Dr. Robert J. Nossen, will be inaugurated at a convocation to be held on Alumni Day, April 18.

The Trustees approved the naming of an inaugural planning committee at its September meeting. The committee is comprised of representatives of the college faculty, the community, the board of trustees, the student body, and the Alumni Association.

Serving along with Creasy as associate chairman is George G. Sradtmann, associate professor of mathematics. Representing the community are Frank Burnside, president, Fowler, Dick and Walker, Wilkes-Barre; and John A. Ekey, manager of the Sears and Roebuck Company store in Bloomsburg. Other members include E. Guy Bangs and William E. Booth, trustees; Dr. Lee E. Aumiller, faculty; Samuel T. Trapane and Anne D. Peacock, student body; Mrs. Joseph C. Conner and Dr. Kimber C. Kuster, Alumni Association.

DR. ANDRUSS RETURNS FROM TRIP

Dr. and Mrs. Harvey A. Andruss have returned from a three-month camera safari in South and East Africa. Their main mode of transportation was the "African Mercury," of the Farrell Lines, which called at the ports of Cape town and Durban, South Africa; Lourenco Marques, Mozambique; Dar-es-Salaam, Tanzania, and Mombasa, Kenya.

After landing at Cape Town, Dr. and Mrs. Andruss flew to Johannesburg and proceeded by safari car with courier to the Kruger and Hluhluwe Animal Parks. They re-boarded the ship at Durban, where they observed the Zulu dancing competition which involved five teams. In Swaziland they were delayed four hours by the flooding of the Komati river and experienced another delay at the border of the Transvaal, South Africa.

Arriving at the Portuguese colony of Mozambique, the Andrusses proceeded on the Incomati River to take pictures of hippos and crocodiles.

A ten-day delay in the return of the ship afforded the local couple an opportunity to spend some time in the Tsavo National Park with a party of five other people. This is one of the largest national parks in the world, and covers more than nine thousand square miles in the shadow of Mount Kilimanjaro.

Although being chased by a rhino and followed by elephants added zest to photography in the African game preserves where lions, hippos, leopards, wildbeasts, and antelopes abound, returning to America was a most welcome experience for the Andrusses.

FOCUS ATTENTION ON NEEDS OF EACH OF BSC STUDENTS

Education is more than just the pursuit of academic excellence at Bloomsburg State College and takes place not only in the classroom but in all places where students interact. Campus life includes residence hall and dining room experiences as well as all of the various social and cultural events in the co-curricular activities program.

Consequently, almost all of the 3,650 students at BSC are afforded an opportunity to explore their individual potential and find a place for the expression of their talents so that they may better understand themselves.

The members of the Dean of Students' staff focus their attention on the needs of the individual student as well as the entire community with the intention of assisting young men and women to more fully develop their potentials as they progress towards their various goals. Thus, this large staff of qualified personnel is responsible for student activities, housing, food service, counseling, health, athletics, student financial aid, student government and many related areas. Above all, they are responsible for maintaining an environment which emphasizes integrity and consideration of others.

BSC IN SPAIN

The Bloomsburg in Spain program, conducted by the Bloomsburg State College during the past summer, was one of the most successful study abroad programs that has been conducted by the college over the years. The main objective was to provide the future Spanish teacher, as well as the experienced classroom teacher of Spanish, a better knowledge of the people of Spain and their culture, ideas and customs.

The trip to Spain was from June 30 to September 4 and, in addition to the study at the University of Madrid, the students travelled to Toledo, Valle de los Caidos, Monasterio del Escorial, and they also attended a bull fight in Madrid.

Dr. Alfred E. Tonolo, chairman, Department of Foreign Languages at BSC and his wife, accompanied the group.

'BUCKALEW PLACE' IS HISTORICAL SITE

Although the development of Bloomsburg State College in the future may require the construction of a home for the President on the newer or Upper Campus, at the present time the President's house or residence on Lightstreet Road will continue to be occupied for the purpose for which it has been used for more than half a century.

Some years ago Dr. John J. Serff, then chairman of the Department of History, did the research that resulted in an aluminum plaque which appears on the lower end of the front of the house and reads as follows: Buckalew Place — Homes of Charles R. Buckalew 1821-1899; State Senator, 1850-1858; U. S. Minister to Ecuador, 1956-1861; U. S. Senator, 1863-1969; Member of Congress, 1877-1891; Trustee, Bloomsburg State Normal School, 1874-1890.

The original part of this house was constructed of brick and several additions have been made to it. Local historians want to determine the date of the first construction, but the facts are fairly clear that U. S. Senator Buckalew occupied his home during his term of service in Washington (1863-1869.)

The Board of Trustees entered into an agreement of sale to purchase the Buckalew Place on July 17, 1908 at a price of $6,000. The next reference regarding the sale is several months later and deals with the seeking of a right-of-way from the Dillon family for the "recently acquired Buckalew Place."

The affixing of the plaque to the house is to preserve the historical nature of the structure for the College and the community of Bloomsburg.

BSC WILL HOUSE HISTORICAL ITEMS

The Columbia County Historical Society has approved an agreement for affiliation with the Bloomsburg State College.

According to this agreement the valuable collections of the Society, while remaining in the full possession of the Society, will be housed, cared for, and exhibited by the College, using its personnel. All of these services will be at no expense to the Society.

Dr. Frank C. Laubach, world-famous missionary-educator, who observed his 85th birthday anniversary, received a telegram of congratulations from President Richard Nixon.

New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller and Lowell Thomas are other national figures who sent personal congratulations. Syracuse's Mayor William Walsh proclaimed the birthday "Dr. Frank C. Laubach Day" for his city.

The President's telegram read: "On the occasion of your 85th birthday, I want to join the many friends and admirers who salute your long years of devotion to learning.

"Eight and a half decades are a milestone in any life. But when filled with enduring service to your fellow citizens, they are worthy of our special admiration and gratitude. May this day be a most happy one for you, may the year ahead bring you the fullest measure of the contentment that derives from such a full, productive life."

Dr. H. Keffer Hartline, Bloomsburg native and 1967 winner of the Nobel Prize in medicine, and Senator Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, newly elected leader of Senate Republicans, were featured speakers at Lafayette College, Easton on October 24 and 25.

Dr. Hartline, a 1923 graduate of Lafayette spoke on October 25 at the ceremony dedicating Lafayette's new biology building in honor of Dr. Beverly Waugh Kunkle. Dr. Hartline is now a biophysicist at The Rockefeller University.

Dr. Hartline won his Nobel Prize for his research on the optic nerve. His research began at Lafayette 50 years ago when he studied the reactions of animalsto light under the late Dr. Kunkel.

When Dr. Hartline and Dr. Kunkel were honored by Lafayette alumni at a dinner in New York in 1968, Dr. Hartline lauded Dr. Kunkel as a man whose "work showed that intellectual integrity whiclc is now short in supply. His was a grim science, but one full of zest and enthusiasm."

Dr. Kunkel, who died March 6 at the age of eighty-seven, taught biology at Lafayette for 37 years. He achieved the rare distinction of teaching two Nobel Prize winners in medicine—Dr. Hartline and the late Philip S. Hench, the winner in 1950 for his work with cortisone.

He returned to Johns Hopkins in 1949 as a professor and chairman of the department of biophysics. In 1953 he joined the faculty at The Rockefeller University.

Dr. Hartline is the author of more than 550 articles and has won many honors and awards for his scientific contributions. Lafayette awarded him an honorary Doctor of Science degree in 1959.

The following is part of an article concerning a recipient of the Distinguished Service Award at BSC. The article appeared in the Indianapolis Star:

Can Purdue humanities majors be taught biology by reading the poet Carl Sandburg or examining the plays of Edward Albee?

Dr. J. Alfred Chiscon of the Department of Biological Sciences thinks so.

Chiscon, who spent last year on sabbatical at the Carnegie Institute of Terrestrial Magnetism at Washington, D. C., returned to Purdue University last fall and designed a biology course only for humanities students called, "The Social Impact of the Biological Sciences."

"I read a great deal during my sabbatical," Chiscon said, "and came to the conclusion that most of our broad social problems are biologically based."

Some of the problems he plans to study with his students are genetic technology, population explosion, organ transplants, biological warfare, space exploration, pollution, conservation, drugs and the process of aging.

In a day when students all over the United States are asking for "relevance" in their coursework, Chiscon is trying to provide it.

NAME DINING HALL AT BSC FOR SCRANTON

A new dining hall nearing completion on the BSC campus will be named for William H. Scranton, Governor of Pennsylvania from 1962 until 1966.

Expected to be ready for occupancy by February, 1970, present plans call for the facility to be dedicated during the week of April 12-18, 1970, in conjunction with the inauguration of President Robert Nossen, and will be officially designated the William H. Scranton Commons. Former Governor Scranton has been invited to participate in the dedication and the trustees are hopeful that his calendar will permit him to be on campus at that time.

The new Commons will include two new large dining areas which can be divided into four smaller areas, each having its own serving equipment.

The seating capacity will accommodate 1,000 students and the food preparation area is designed to serve 2,000 students at each meal. The Commons also includes several offices, lobbies, a dining room for faculty and another for food service employees, a bakery, walk-in refrigeration storage units, a loading dock and receiving area, employee locker rooms, and general storage areas. All areas except the kitchen are air-conditioned. The cost of construction is approximately $1,645,000.

TEST CENTER AT BSC

Bloomsburg State College was designated as a test center for administering the National Teacher Examination on January 31. Arrangements for this center were made through the efforts of Dr. Stuart Edwards, Director of Secondary Education, and Dr. Merritt W. Saiders, Director of the Research and Evaluation Center. The number of Bloomsburg State College seniors finding need for the scores has been increasing. The establishing of this center will lessen the need for travel to other centers for these tests.

The designation of Bloomsburg State College as a test center for these examinations will give prospective teachers in this area an opportunity to compare their performance on the examinations with candidates throughout the country who take the tests.

Leonid Hambro, famous pianist, appeared at Bloomsburg State College on November 13, in Haas Auditorium at 8:15 p.m. under the sponsorship of the Artists and Lecture Series of the college.

ALUMNI DAY APRIL 28, 1970

ASSISTANT TO BSC PRESIDENT

John Robert Quatroche, assistant director of admissions at the State University College, Fredonia, N. Y., has been named assistant to the president at Bloomsburg State College. The appointment, approved by the Board of Trustees, was announced by Dr. Robert J. Nossen, president of BSC.

Quatroche, who will assume his new position February 2, will succeed James B. Creasy, who has held the position since the post was created in August, 1964. Creasy has been granted a sabbatical leave of absence to continue his graduate studies at The Pennsylvania State University during the second semester of the 1969-1970 college year.

Quatroche, a former resident of Southampton, Long Island, was appointed to the admissions staff at Fredonia in September, 1964; named assistant director in 1967, and promoted to associate director in 1968. He received both his bachelor's and master's degree from the College at Fredonia.

A veteran of four years service in the United States Air Force, Quatroche has also taught English at Fredonia and Mayville Central Schools. He is a member of the New York State Personnel and Guidance Association, the Western New York Personnel and Guidance Association, and the Chautauqua County Counselors Association.

Dr. S. Lloyd Toumey, formerly Director of Business at Bloomsburg State College, has been appointed President of Goldey Beacom Junior College, Wilmington, Delaware.

Dr. Toumey was at Bloomsburg from September, 1962, to June, 1967, when he was appointed Academic Dean of Goldey Beacom. He was made vice president of the college in 1968.

He received his Bachelor's Degree from the University of Georgia, Athens, Georgia. He is a Lieutenant Colonel in the United States Air Force Reserve.

His present residence is Newark, Delaware.

Phillip D. Stern, nationally known astronomer, lecturer and author, spoke on the topic "Beyond the Beyond" in Hartline Science Center on October 29, under the auspices of the Department of Geography and Earth Science and Gamma Theta Upsilon, international geographical fraternity of the college.

The musical organizations of the College presented their annual Christmas Concert Sunday, December 7, in Haas Auditorium. Participating in the program were the Madrigal Singers, the Men's Glee Club, the Women's Choral Ensemble, the Brass Sextet, and the Concert Choir.

NEW CAMPUS PLAN

A campus plan that will provide accommodations on the two campus areas (main campus and former country club property) of 133 acres for 6,000 undergraduate students, plus graduate and part time students at Bloomsburg State College, has been approved by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction and the executive director of the General State Authority. Judged by past experiences this enrollment should be attained by 1975.

The final signatures of approval were affixed this month. The plan had been given preliminary approval by the BSC board of trustees last September. The plan was developed by Price and Dickey, Media architects.

This is the fourth in a series of campus plans which had their beginning in 1941. The first plan, developed by McCloud and Schatchard, Architects, provided for 1,200 full-time students and used only the land which extended from Penn to Chestnut streets.

Sixteen years later in 1957, John Schell, Bloomsburg architect, developed a plan to accommodate an enrollment of 2,000 on the present campus which then had less than 60 acres. This was the first plan for any of the fourteen State Colleges in Pennsylvania.

A third plan was developed four years later by Esbach, Pullinger, Stevens, and Bruder, Philadelphia. While in the process of completing plans, the anticipated enrollment was increased from 3,000 to 4,000 and provided for the purchase of the Bloomsburg Country Club property. The capacity was subsequently increased to 4,800.

With two purchases adding 68 acres to the present campus the development of another plan was necessary. Before the firm of Price and Dickey proceeded with plans for both the lower and upper campus, a committee of three college administrators made certain recommendations to the Superintendent of Public Instruction. They were Dr. Harry W. Porter, provost, State University of New York; Dr. Charles E. Bull, Plant Planning Coordinator, State University of Buffalo, N. Y., and Dr. Thomas Robinson, president of Glassboro State University, N. J. After giving consideration to the plan since September, 1967, the BSC trustees gave their final approval in early April of last year.

SWIM COACH TAKING SABBATICAL LEAVE

Eli McLaughlin, Associate Professor of Health and Physical Education and coach of the Bloomsburg State College swimming team for the past ten years, is on sabbatical leave during the 1969-1970 college year pursuing his doctor's degree at the University of West Virginia.

SPECIAL TRIBUTE TO DR. ANDRUSS

As a special tribute to Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, former president of Bloomsburg State College, in whose honor the new college library was named at dedication ceremonies in 1967, a special collection bearing his name is being established.

The collection, according to James B. Watts, director of library services, will be comprised of books, articles appearing in magazines and journals, pamphlets, and other materials containing Dr. Andruss' extensive writings in the fields of business education, college administration, and higher education.

At present a number of items that will go into the collection are in various stages of processing. When processing has been completed, the materials will be placed in a special section of the reserve area where they will be available to patrons of the library. Some consideration is being given to the possibility of microfilming the collection in the interest of long-range preservation and probable loans to other college libraries.

A unique feature of the Andruss Collection will be publications and other papers related to the First American Army University, located at Shrivenham, Berkshire, England; Shrivenham Post (student newspaper), and Shrivenham Silhouettes (edited by President Andruss and including The Shrivenham Newsletters). Dr. Andruss served on the faculty of the university, which was founded by directive of General Dwight Eisenhower.

When the special project has been completed, it is planned that a comprehensive bibliography of the Andruss Collection will be issued.

The Bloomsburg State College Concert Choir under the direction of Mr. William Decker, held its fourth annual "Pops Concert" October 12, in Haas Auditorium. For the past several years the choir has been extremely active, making appearances at several high schools, on television, and on the college campus.

Pennsylvania's Auditor General, Robert P. Casey, spoke in Hartline Science Hall on October 16. His appearance was sponsored by the Young Democrats of Bloomsburg State College.

Bramwell Fletcher, international star of theatre, television, and motion pictures, presented his nationally acclaimed Bernard Shaw in Haas Auditorium at Bloomsburg State College on October 8, under the auspices of the Artists and Lectures Committee.

Til Smith, Northeastern Pennsylvania's only accredited and licensed National Aeronautics and Space Administration newsman, recently presented a lecture at Bloomsburg State College, on "The Space Program."

After giving a few brief introductory remarks, Smith began a slide lecture where he took the audience on a journey through the space program from the first Mercury flight up to Apollo 11 and a glimpse of what is to come in future Apollo missions.

Gov. Raymond Shafer has asked the Senate in Harrisburg to confirm the appointment of Frank D. Croop, of Berwick, as a member of the Bloomsburg State College board of trustees.

Croop will succeed J. Howard Deily for a term which expires in January, 1975.

Notification has been received from Dr. John W. Keys, chairman, Professional Services Board, American Board of Examiners in Speech Pathology and Audiology of the American Speech and Hearing Association, that the Center for Learning and Communication Disorders at Bloomsburg State College has been approved as a public service facility, according to Richard M. Smith, administrator of the Center.

Bloomsburg State College was host at the annual fall meeting of the Marine Science Consortium of Pennsylvania Colleges and Universities on October 27 in Hartline Science Center. This is one of only four such consortia in the U. S. and is represented by the following institutions: Bloomsburg State College, Edinboro, S. C., Kutztown S. C., Millersville, S. C., Slippery Rock S. C., West Chester S. C., and Indiana University of Pennsylvania.

Paul H. Anderson, the Dickinson College registrar, began a two-year term as treasurer of the Middle States Association of Collegiate Registrars and Officers of Admission on February 1.

He was elected at the association's annual meeting recently in Atlantic City to succeed George E. Oettinger, of Quen College, Flushing, N. Y. Sherman Stanford, Pennsylvania State University, was elected president.

The Middle States Association, comprising Delaware, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia, is part of a nation-wide organization and leads all other regional groupings in size of membership.

Anderson plans to attend the national meeting in New Orleans in April. A Bloomsburg State College graduate, he holds a master's degree from Southern Illinois University and took his present Dickinson position last June after several years as the Trenton State College registrar.

ALUMNI DAY

SATURDAY, APRIL 25, 1970

Events scheduled for the week-end of April 25 will mark this year's Alumni Day as a very special occasion. The program includes the Inauguration of Dr. Robert J. Nossen as the new President of BSC, the dedication of the new Commons, to be named after William Scranton, former Governor of Pennsylvania, the annual Alumni Luncheon and Business Meeting, and reunions of classes of the years ending in 0 and 5.

Alumni graduating before 1920 are invited to be the guests of the Alumni Association at the dinner honoring the class of 1920, the fifty-year class. Those bringing guests are requested to pay for the guest's dinner.

It is very important that every one attending the 50-year dinner and the Alumni Luncheon should make reservations by April 15, in order that all the necessary arrangements may be made.

If your class is not in reunion this year, it will be worth your while to come back to the campus and participate in the activities.

We shall be expecting you on Alumni Day!

LOYALTY FUND

PROGRAM OF ANNUAL GIVING

The response to our October appeal was $1740.50. The number of contributors was 219. At this rate, we shall be far short of our goal of $10,000 by October 1. It has been gratifying to note, however, that a greater proportion of gifts was $5.00 or more. The per capita giving in previous years has been one dollar for each of the Alumni whom we have been able to contact.

With many thanks to all those who have supported the Loyalty Fund Program of Annual Giving, our special appeal at this time is to those who have made no contribution to the fund since the campaign was started. We hope that you will join the list of those who, we feel sure, have derived great satisfaction from having supported their Alumni Association and their Alma Mater.

Academic tradition has established a pattern whereby a president is not inaugurated until several months after he assumes office. Many have questioned the rationale, and I, too, will admit to concern during these past few months as we have tried to meet the usual succession of major and minor crises. But there are reasons, good reasons, for the pattern, and I for one am grateful for the interval. I have, during this period, come to know my colleagues, those with whom I work each day; and hopefully, they have come to know and to some extent at least, to understand me, and the philosophy and the system of values by which I hope to conduct my office. By virtue of the time lapse, therefore, I come to this occasion not as a stranger. By this time, I have become personally and professionally identified with the College, involved with it, concerned about it in a way that could not have been last September or October.

An academic community, a college community cannot exist without tensions. Far more dangerous would be complacency, self-satisfaction, fear of struggle, or desire for escape. But conflict must be constructive; it must be based, ultimately, upon mutual respect within the academic community, upon tolerance, and upon understanding.

We have much to do as all of us settle down to our daily responsibilities. Our reach will, indeed, exceed our grasp, and the heaven of academia will continue to be on a distant shore. We will have conflict leading to inevitable tensions during those years given to us as students, faculty, alumni, administrators, and trustees, and as those who represent us and work for us beyond the confines of the campus; we will have, too, I know, our pleasures derived from the contributions we make, however small, to the growth and welfare and functioning of Bloomsburg State College.

DR. ROBERT J. NOSSEN

Dr. Nossen Is Installed As 12th President of College

"Academic communities and college communities cannot exist without tensions. Far more dangerous would be complacency, self satisfaction, fear of struggle, or desire for escape. But conflict must be constructive, it must be based ultimately upon mutual respect within the academic community, upon tolerance, and upon understanding," stated Dr. Robert J. Nossen after being installed as twelfth President of Bloomsburg State College Saturday afternoon, April 18.

Presiding since September 1969, he was formally installed during ceremonies conducted by Pennsylvania Secretary of Education David H. Kurtzman.

Dr. Nossen built his address around the word "Tensions," stating "Conflict must be constructive. It must be based ultimately upon mutual respect within the academic community, tolerance, and understanding."

He added, "There is as little justification to adopt policies or practices based upon immature or irresponsible demands as there is to retain a status quo for fear of changes." He pledged his use of college resources to reach educational goals as efficiently as possible.

Dr. Oscar Lanford, President of State University College, Fredonia, N. Y., stated, "Although higher education in the decade of the sixties can be characterized by the word 'change' it has changed perhaps less during the immediate past than many other aspects of our society.

"If higher education is to continue to be one of the main driving forces of our society, then it must change much more rapidly in the decade ahead than it has during the decade just entered. Critics of higher education, both friendly and otherwise, have asserted that while colleges and universities have been the principal agent in social and political reform, the University itself is very slow to change or as one has put it . . . well-nigh impervious to change.

"It is clear that the demands for reform of higher education are to a considerable degree justified. Questions concerning the objectives of various levels of education; the varying of abilities, motivation, and learning methods; administration policies; courses examination procedures; the maturity of today's high school graduate; and the intergrading of constituent groups of college communities into decisions regarding policies, call for answers, and the answers call for major change or reform.

"It is to the state colleges and universities that the nation will turn to an increasing degree in meeting the needs of the last quarter of the twentieth and the first part of the twenty-first centuries."

After an initial processional of faculty and dignitaries, the invocation was given by the Rev. James T. Berger, St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Bloomsburg.

William A. Lank, President of the Board of Trustees of BSC, presided.

Dr. Nossen further commented, "Tensions do exist among the younger people for whose education we are responsible. There have been 'changes,' many of them good, and there will be others, inevitably and necessarily, but hopefully, they will be constructive. There is as little justification to adopt policies or practices based upon immature or irresponsible demands as there is to retain a status quo for fear of changes.

"We have much to do as we settle down to our daily responsibilities. Our reach will, indeed, exceed our grasp, and the heaven of academia will continue to be on a distant shore. We will have conflict leading to inevitable tensions during those years given to us as students, faculty, alumni, administrators, and trustees, and as those who represent us and work for us beyond the confines of the campus. However we will have, too, our pleasures derived from the contributions we make, no matter how small to the growth and welfare of the functioning of Bloomsburg State College."

One hundred and ninety delegates represented colleges, universities, and learned societies throughout the country in the procession along with other members of the college community.

Nearly 1,000 guests attended a luncheon in Scranton Commons prior to the inauguration. At this function, Dr. Nossen recognized distinguished guests and especially relatives and personal friends with whom he has been associated in his career.

Edwin M. Barton, of the Columbia County Historical Society, spoke briefly, commenting on the Society's pleasure in its new affiliation with the college and of the Society's entrusting its historical collections to the college's care.

Benediction was made by the Rev. Frank W. Ake, president of the Bloomsburg Area Community Ministries.

Singing of the Bloomsburg State College Alma Mater concluded the program. An afternoon tea was held at the college Commons, followed by the Inaugural Ball Saturday evening, both being well-attended.

SCRANTON COMMONS DEDICATED

"I am delighted and proud to have a building named for me where men and women can 'come and get it,'" concluded William W. Scranton, former governor of Pennsylvania, at the dedication program at Bloomsburg State College for the William W. Scranton Commons and the renaming of several residence halls.

He added, "Let us not be too provincial and think of Bloomsburg State College in terms of just the community. We are trying hard to change our state institutions to multi-type institutions and we must adopt broad scope thinking and objectives.

"For generations people have underrated members of the teaching profession. In the Soviet Union teachers are held in high respect. We still have this to learn. They should have our full support and understanding in their efforts to make a better and more informed America."

Pledging his full support to the college's new president Dr. Robert Nossen, Scranton concluded, "Let us never forget this college was dedicated to the teaching profession."

Accepts Building

In accepting the Scranton Commons William A. Lank, president of the Board of Trustees, spoke of occasion as "one honoring a man who has contributed so much to the education of Pennsylvania and who has given so generously of his time for others."

Board members presented were: William E. Booth, Danville; E. Guy Bangs, Millville; Gerald Beierschmitt, Mt. Carmel; Edgar E. Fenstermacher, Berwick; Frank D. Croop, Berwick, and George W. Heffner, Pottsville.

Dr. Nossen paid tribute to the efforts of former Governor Scranton and former President Harvey A. Andruss in the development of plans which have become a reality. He concluded, "I am proud to be in Bloomsburg making this college a credit to all of us, the Commonwealth and nation."

Aware of Needs

In extending greetings from the General Assembly, Representative Kent Shelhamer observed, "Our educational program is a passport to the future for youth. In Harrisburg we are aware of the continuing needs of our schools, and I wish to commend the men on this hill with the vision to make possible buildings such as the Scranton Commons."

Congratulations from the community were extended by C. Martin Lutz, mayor, and Dr. George W. Hoffman, director, Bureau of State Colleges and Universities, Pennsylvania Department of Education, who compared the growth of state colleges in the past nine years.

Howard F. Fenstemaker, president of the General Alumni Association, brought greetings from the 11,000 membership and pledged support of the Association to Dr. Nossen.

Fulfilling Responsibility

Senator Preston B. Davis spoke of the new Commons as "visible evidence of the State's determination to fulfill its responsibility as rapidly as possible in the development of its college system." He paid tribute to Governor Scranton's interest in the education and the progress the system made during his tenure.

Greetings were extended from the College Council by Jean Reese, secretary. Other student participation involved the naming of Columbia Hall, Anne Peacock; renaming North Hall Northumberland Residence Hall, Stanley Rakowski; renaming South Hall to Luzerne Residence Hall, Linda Szoke; renaming East Hall to Montour Residence Hall, Renee Zimmerman; renaming West Hall to Schuylkill Residence Hall.

Cindy Gross, with Frank S. Davis, Jr., director, computer service, outlined the purposes of this new center.

The Madrigal Singers, under the direction of William K. Decker, presented four numbers, while the invocation and benediction were offered by the Rev. Benjamin Jacobson, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Robert Miller, chairman, Committee on International Education at Bloomsburg State College, accompanied a team of Latin-American Development Specialists to the State of Bahia, Brazil, to explore possible new programs of cooperation between Bahia and Pennsylvania on behalf of the Pennsylvania-Bahia Partners of the Alliance, and the Committee on International Education at BSC. The visit was to result in the investigation of new projects and the assessment and development of education projects which have previously been identified.

3 AWARDS TO ALUMNI

Nearly all the events scheduled for BSC's Alumni Day drew capacity crowds as nature provided benevolent weather for the weekend activities.

Class reunions — featuring the class of 1920's Fiftieth get-together and presentation of three Distinguished Service Awards—marked the two day affair.

Festivities began Friday night with various classes assembling for dinners, dances and informal at-homes.

The full schedule Saturday began with an informal get-together for alumni and faculty in the morning and ended with the play, "The Doctor In Spite of Himself," by the Bloomsburg Players in the evening.

Dr. John Magill, superintendent-elect of the Bloomsburg Area School District and an alumnus of BSC, spoke to the annual meeting of the Alumni Association. He reviewed the number of BSC students and graduates who entered the services during World War II and called the roll of twenty-seven names of those who sacrificed their lives during that conflict.

He closed with a prayer written by a Dutch girl, read at Margraten Military Cemetery, Holland, last Memorial Day, dedicated to the twenty-seven and all others buried there.

Two lifelong educators and a former editor of The Morning Press were presented the Bloomsburg State College Alumni Association's Distinguished Service Award at the luncheon.

Miss Grace Beck, Sunbury, class of 1923, was cited as a "distinguished alumnus", who was a "dynamic teacher and administrator in elementary education for forty-six years, a member and officer of civic and professional organizations in her local community and state, loved by students and colleagues everywhere."

Miss Beck received her B.S. from BSC in 1923 and her Master's from BSC and Bucknell University.

Wesley E. Davies, Shavertown, class of 1919, was cited as a "career educator, teacher and administrator for forty-three years in Pennsylvania, an enthusiastic leader in civic, church, and professional activities of his home, community and state, and highly esteemed for loyal friendships and applied Christian ethics."

Davies received his graduate degrees from Pennsylvania State University.

He was associated with the Luzerne county superintendent of schools office for thirty-five years, as assistant superintendent and for four and one-half years before his retirement in 1969 as superintendent of schools.

Edward F. Schuyler, former editor of The Morning Press, class of 1924, was cited as a "former member and secretary of the Board of Directors of the Alumni Association, a dynamic church school teacher, and reporter and editor of The Morning Press, where his untiring influence was directed toward the progress of the community and the college."

Schuyler worked on The Morning Press staff forty years, the last twenty-one as editor. He retired April 1. Prior to presenting Schuyler's award, Howard Fenstemaker, president of the Alumni Association, said Schuyler had been recommended for the DSA many times, stating, "We've been trying to give Ed a DSA for about five years now."

Schuyler accepted the award, stating, "I don't deserve this award. I do appreciate it. Thank you."

Change In Constitution

Howard Fenstemaker announced a proposed change in the Association's constitution. This would install a as an ex-officio member of the Association's Board of Directors. No action can be taken on this proposal until it is published four times in the Alumni Quarterly.

Finances Good

Financially, the Association is in good shape, although costs of operations is slightly more than income. This was attributed to the cost of printing the Alumni Quarterly and distributing it to every member for whom the Association has an address. It was announced dues were being raised from $2.00 to $5.00 and that $25,000 would be available in the Mary McNinch loan fund this year.

Dr. Robert J. Nossen, BSC's twelfth president, said BSC had undergone many changes this year and would undergo many more in the years to come. He mentioned the constant process of reevaluation and revision college policies and structures receive.

He mentioned some possible future changes. They included a calendar change that would prevent the fall semester from running into January, more emphasis on the arts and sciences without de-emphasizing teacher training, programs in health related areas, such as nursing and medical technology.

He concluded "You're all a part of the 'now' of BSC."

Pass Resolution

The Association passed a resolution supporting Dr. Nossen, Board of Trustees, and college administration in their leadership in all aspects of BSC's growth and change in these "troubled times" for college campuses.

Officers elected to the Association's Board of Directors: President, Howard F. Fenstemaker; Vice President, Millard Ludwig; Secretary, Col. Elwood Wagner; Treasurer, Earl A. Gehrig.

CLASS OF 1920 HONORED

The class of 1920 was honored on Friday evening, April 24, by being the guests of the Alumni Association at the annual dinner held in the new William W. Scranton Commons. Howard F. Fenstermaker, President of the Alumni Association, acted as Master of Ceremonies. The invocation was given by the Rev. Foster L. Pennybacker, husband of Grace Gotshall Pennybacker, a member of the class.

Dr. Robert Nossen, new President of the College, was presented to the guests and addressed the group. Leroy Creasy, president of the class, gave the response for the class.

Also joining with the class of 1920 were members of the classes of 1905, 1910, and 1915.

Special guests of the dinner were former recipients of the Alumni Distinguished Service Award, including the following: Mrs. Vera Hemingway Housenick '05; Dr. Kimber C. Kuster '13 and Fred W. Diehl '09. Dr. Kuster and Mr. Diehl were accompanied by their wives.

DR. ANDRUSS NAMED PRESIDENT EMERITUS

"No governing body of this college has been faced with more problems than the present Board," Dr. Harvey A. Andruss declared as Bloomsburg State College bestowed the title of "President Emeritus" on him.

In his response he said "... I fervently beseech every one to support the new administration and the Board of Trustees from this day forward so that Bloomsburg, as it becomes bigger will also become better."

Dr. Andruss was honored in the climaxing event of the first day's activities marking the formal inauguration of Dr. Robert J. Nossen as new president of the college.

Dr. Andruss was cited during an Awards Convocation in Haas auditorium in a ceremony in which over 100 students were recognized for their achievements at the college. The title was bestowed on Dr. Andruss by William A. Lank, president of the Board of Trustees who gave Andruss "most of the credit for the development and expansion of a small teachers college into a substantial institution of higher learning."

"Under his guidance and foresight," Lank said, "our college has grown to a multi-million dollar educational institution, supported by a faculty of approximately 275 members and serving as a medium for the training and development of 3,700 members of the student body."

In his response, Dr. Andruss said he was "duly impressed" noting that the only other recipient was the late Dr. David J. Waller who had served the former Normal School a total of 27 years.

"This presentation fills me with the deepest emotion which is equaled only by my gratefulness to the Trustees for this consideration and mark of continuing confidence. No governing body of this college has been faced with more problems than the present Board. These Trustees inspire trust and merit the confidence of the college community."

Dr. Andruss pointed out that in the last three decades there have been 30 or more trustees who were all good men, putting the college and its policies above personal or private considerations. He indicated many of them have given not only their time, but also their means to serve the college.

Dr. Andruss mentioned that the late Reginald S. Hemingway Esquire, Judge C. William Kreisher, Superintendent Fred Deihl all past presidents of the Board of Trustees and Lank, the current president, deserved special commendation from everyone. He said that he was happy to have the opportunity to voice it publicly.

Dr. Andruss continued, "A few days ago, running my finger along a set of books, I paused at the Russian novel Turgenev's 'Father and Sons' written over 100 years ago. The title recalled to my mind the modern 'generation gap.' More than that, it brought to mind the use of the term 'nihilist' in the present day in conjunction with some of the younger generation. Turgenev did not originate the epithet 'nihilist' but he did give it more than the usual political connotation in Russia at the time the freedom of the serfs was about to take place. Nihilist as a word can be defined in almost as many ways as those who try to give this Latin word modern meaning. Originally, nihil meant 'nothing' so those youth in Turgenev's day were said to 'accept nothing' or 'respect nothing' by those who wanted the status quo to be continued or to be changed more slowly.

"Certainly there is visible evidence here today in the attendance of these selected students and their parents that there still continues an appreciation of scholarship, service and unselfish devotion to this college which bids fair to offset the publicity given by the newspapers, radios, and television, to those who want change, want it right now, and have no conception how the desired change is to take place, what it will entail, and how it is to be financed.

"A college is a community organized for living and learning. This week marks the formal beginning of a new administration. It is my fervent hope and expectation that it will surpass the past. This is possible only if all concerned including alumni, townspeople, students, faculty and legislators support of the Board of Trustees and the new president.

"While expressing gratefulness of this honor accorded me today, I fervently beseech every one to support the new administration and the Board of Trustees from this day forward so that Bloomsburg as it becomes bigger will also become better."

INAUGURAL WEEK IS MARKED BY ACTIVITIES

The Inaugural Week at Bloomsburg State College was ushered in on Sunday, April 12 with an Awards Day Convocation and dinner, and a concert by the BSC Maroon and Gold Symphonic Band. In addition to the numerous other events that were held, the week was climaxed by the Inaugural Convocation held at 2:30 p.m. Saturday, April 18, at Haas Auditorium.

The Awards Day Convocation was held in Haas Auditorium at which time Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, who served for 30 years as president of BSC and retired last September, was presented a President Emeritus Certificate by William A. Lank, president of the Board of Trustees.

Service Keys

Also featured at the convocation was the awarding of service keys to sixteen seniors. These keys are given for "outstanding service to 10 per cent or less of the senior class who accumulate a minimum of 20 points for participation in various activities during their four years of college." This is the highest award given by the college community.

Twelve lifetime passes were given to senior athletes who have participated in varsity sports for four years. The thirty-one recipients of certificates, indicating their inclusion in the publication "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities," were recognized.

Fourteen BSC scholarships were awarded and twenty-one students were recognized for academic honors.

The convocation was followed by a dinner for college administration personnel, the recipients of the awards, and their parents.

The day was concluded with the concert by the BSC Maroon and Gold Symphonic Band under the direction of Stephen C. Wallace.

Other Activities

Other activities during the week included Tuesday, April 14 — exhibit of Pennsylvania Landscape Artists with an accompanying talk by Andrew Hudson; Wednesday, April 15 — the dedication of the new William W. Scranton Commons, the naming of the new nine story women's residence hall, the dedication of the new RCA Computer Center, and the renaming of four residence halls on campus at a special dedication luncheon, attended by the former Governor of the Commonwealth, William W. Scranton, along with other dignitaries.

Friday, April 17 — an outstanding cultural presentation featuring Dr. Frank Pallano, baritone, and Dr. Robert Marvel, pianist, both of State University College, Fredonia, N. Y., appearing in concert; Saturday, April 18 — an inaugural luncheon for invited guests; the Inaugural Convocation and an Inaugural Ball that evening; Sunday, April 19 — the week's activities concluded with a performance by the Concert Choir of BSC in Haas Auditorium at 7 p.m.

AWARDS DAY DURING INAUGURAL WEEK

"Inaugural Week" was personally dedicated as "Loyalty Week" by the college's president, Dr. Robert J. Nossen.

Nossen used the term during the course of his remarks in the "Awards Day" ceremony in which a number of students were honored and Dr. Harvey A. Andruss was designated "President Emeritus."

The new president stated, "To see that for which we exist take place and to see those who understand what education is for, is to understand why we exist."

Turning to the honored students, he said, "This college exists for purposes of sound education. You students who are being honored are the culmination of our efforts."

"We want parents to participate in activities of the college and we want students to honor their parents . . . for the many kinds of support given students by their parents."

Debt Is Owed

"Things don't happen by accident. Dreams are worthwhile but must be fulfilled with much hard work and sacrifice. We have a great debt to the people of our commonwealth who are willing to tax themselves to support our colleges and universities. We appreciate the interest and support of our alumni."

"You worked hard and learned in campus facilities. I hope you will look back and say 'thanks' to all those who helped make your college possible."

"All life is based in some way on disappointments. Each of us falls short of the goals we set. That doesn't mean we should give up and say that our life was not worthwhile."

Dr. Nossen referred to serious and difficult problems "but we have much on which to build. We can work in a creative sense. There is no hope in working in a negative sense."

He said the country is in a time of stress and "some fail to stand up for our country. If we are unwilling to work for our country, it can only become worse."

'Don't Sell Short'

"There are some who would destroy our civilization. In the history of mankind, nothing great has come out of ashes. This has happened only in mythology."

He declared, "I am personally dedicating this week as 'Loyalty Week.' Loyalty to several concepts — to the College, to your parents, to the Bloomsburg area."

"Don't sell BSC short . . . and don't apologize for it. If you have no pride in BSC, you can have no pride in yourself. If you wouldn't have come here, you would have paid far more than you did or than you might have been able to afford."

Dr. Nossen introduced William A. Lank, president of the Board of Trustees, who also paid tribute to the students who received honors and awards.

Elton Hunsinger, dean of students, presented "Who's Who Certificates and Service Keys" to twenty-seven students who demonstrated ability, scholastic achievement, personal traits, leadership, potential usefulness to society and professional promise.

Lifetime athletic passes were given to twelve athletes, each of whom earned a major award during his college career in one specific sport. These awards were made by Russell Houk, director of athletics.

Scholarship awards made on academic achievement in specific areas were made to fourteen students by Robert Duncan, director of financial aids.

Dr. John Hoch, dean of instruction presented academic honor awards to twenty-eight students who had attained at least a 3.5 cumulative average for the duration of their college career.

CHOIR CONCERT CONCLUDES WEEK

The Bloomsburg State College concert choir performed Handel's oratorio "Judas Maccabaeus" Sunday evening, April 19, to conclude the week of celebration for President Robert J. Nossen's inauguration.

The performance, conducted by William K. Decker, chairman of the music department, was attended by a large audience including several choral conductors from throughout Pennsylvania. A professional orchestra, including string players from Philadelphia and Washington, collaborated with the choir to present Handel's work in his original orchestration.

Soloists were Mary Decker, soprano; Beth Powlus, mezzo-soprano; Richard Stanislaw, tenor; Timothy Hoffman, bass, and Lois Sturgeon, harpsichordist.

Highlights of this very long work were "Hail, Judea Happyland," "See the Conquering Hero Comes," "O Wretched Israel," and "Hallelujah, Amen."

The performance was extremely successful and the audience responded by giving the singers and orchestra a standing ovation.

Dr. Charles H. Carlson, director of Graduate Studies at Bloomsburg State College, has been elected president of the Pennsylvania State College and University Graduate Deans Association. Dr. Carlson joined the faculty of Bloomsburg State College in 1959 as associate professor of music and was elevated to a full professorship of Music in 1962. He was named acting director of graduate studies in June, 1967 and was named director of graduate studies in October, 1968. Dr. Carlson served as chairman of the Music and as a director of the Marching and Gold Band and Studio Band.

PLEASE GIVE THIS YOUR ATTENTION

Throughout the years, all alumni who showed a paid-up dues card were admitted free to the Alumni Luncheon, and the College paid the bill. We have been informed that the College is now obliged to discontinue this policy, and that the Alumni Association will have to bear the expenses incident to the luncheon.

Accordingly, the Board of Directors, at their meeting on Alumni Day, voted to raise the Alumni dues from $2.00 to $5.00. The first $5.00 of your gift to the Loyalty Fund will be set aside as dues, and any amount above that will be put into the Loyalty Fund for scholarships and other projects approved by the Board of Directors.

Proposed Amendment to Constitution

(To be voted on at 1971 Alumni Meeting)

TO: Secretary, Alumni Association of the Bloomsburg State College

1. At present, Section 2, Article II, reads as follows:

The Board of Directors shall be fifteen in number, five of whom shall be elected each year from the membership of the Corporation to serve for a term of three years. Said Directors shall be elected at the annual meeting, and shall be organized immediately thereafter and elect their officers aforesaid.

2. To effect closer working relationships with soon-to-be and graduates of the college, we propose that Section 2, Article II read as follows:

The Board of Directors shall be sixteen in number—fifteen elected members and one ex-officio member. Five Directors shall be elected each year from the membership of the Corporation at its annual meeting to serve a term of three years. At said meeting, a representative elected by the current graduating class of the college, will be invited to serve as an ex-officio member of the Board until the next annual meeting of the corporation. Said Directors shall be organized immediately after the annual meeting and elect their officers aforesaid.

A highlight of the festivities of Inaugural Week at Bloomsburg State College was a joint concert by Dr. Frank Pullano, Baritone, and Dr. Robert Marvel, pianist-composer, on Friday, April 17, in Haas Auditorium. Both artists are members of the faculty of State University College, Fredonia, N. Y.

CGA PRESIDENT

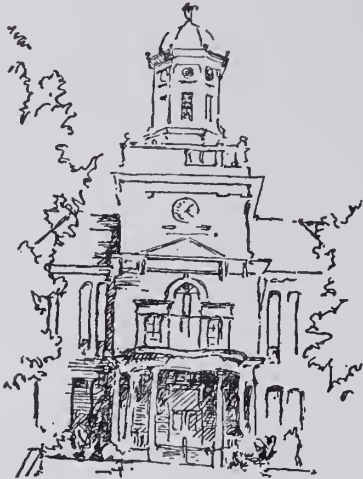

Mike Pilligalli, of West Chester, was elected president of Bloomsburg State College's Community Government Association (CGA) by a vote of 861 to 729 over Dudley Mann. He and other officers were installed at the final CGA meeting this year. Their terms expire in May 1971.

A total of 1,590 students, faculty and administrators cast ballots.

Mike Hock, current editor of the college newspaper, won the vice presidency by a vote of 766 to 721 for Marty Morgis. Jodi Kohler ran unopposed for recording secretary. Janet Boyancowski defeated Jack Feddock for the position of corresponding secretary 818-608. The new treasurer, Anne Peacock, won by 852 to 617 for Tom Baltuskonis. Mark Foucart ran unopposed for parliamentarian.

An article entitled "Subjectivity in the Art of Eighteenth Century Biography: Johnson's Portrait of Swift" by Dr. Jordan Richman, Associate Professor in the Department of English at Bloomsburg State College, has been accepted for publication in "Enlightenment Essays," a journal published by the University of Illinois at the Chicago Circle and dedicated to inter-disciplinary scholarship of the 18th century.

RESOLUTION

The following resolution was adopted at the meeting held on Saturday, April 25. It was approved by a unanimous standing vote.

- Whereas: Dr. Robert J. Nossen was formally inaugurated as President of Bloomsburg State College on April 18, 1970, and
- Whereas: Dr. Nossen brings with him a wealth of experience as an educator and administrator, and
- Whereas: He was selected for his high position by a committee composed of students, faculty, and trustees, confirmed by the Board of Trustees, and recommended to the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania for appointment, and
- Whereas: The members of the Alumni Association of Bloomsburg State College reflect with nostalgia on their days as students and are becoming increasingly aware of the unrest pervading college campuses, and recognize that constructive criticism, peaceful demonstrations, and legislative changes may contribute to the growth of a great institution, and
- Whereas: The members of the Alumni Association view with concern the disruptive forces which have torn some campuses asunder, and
- Whereas: The said Association has as its primary objective the support of its alma mater in developing a dynamic educational program and that such a program be the first and common responsibility of all members of the college community

Be it resolved, therefore, that the Board of Directors and members of the Alumni Association along with all graduates of Bloomsburg State College support President Nossen and the Board of Trustees in their efforts to develop and implement policies and procedures which will coordinate the revision and expansion of the program of instruction, the recruitment and retention of dedicated and able faculty members, the construction and maintenance of necessary physical plant facilities, and the relationships and activities of members of the college community in order that each student may achieve his greatest potential growth and educational development, and

Be it further resolved that alumni, individually and collectively, express their support by communicating their feelings in writing to President Nossen, and

Be it also resolved that this resolution be approved at the annual meeting of Bloomsburg State College on April 18, 1970, and minutes of the meeting and be published in the next issue of the B.S.C. Alumni Quarterly.

Signed: The Committee
Elwood Wagner, Chairman
Mrs. Charlotte McKechnie

Final plans have been completed for a new Administration Building at Bloomsburg State College. When completed at an estimated cost of $1,350,000, the structure will provide offices, conference rooms, and work areas for the college business office, members of the Dean of Student's staff, the Dean of Instruction's staff, college duplicating services, college mailing room and post office, and complete facilities for the Purchasing and Receiving Department. With the exception of the large storage area, the building will be completely air conditioned.

The summer months have been particularly full ones. Once again, the college offered three sessions, and enrollment in each continued to increase over previous sessions. In addition, the college welcomed about 250 students representing the Pennsylvania Association of Farm Cooperatives, two groups from abroad representing the Experiment in International Living, and four groups of incoming Freshmen, with their parents.

Summer sessions provide an excellent opportunity for acceleration, for make-up, and for enrichment. Starting this year, each offering is calculated to meet a specific student need, and is being integrated into a two-year plan of courses for each department. Insofar as is possible and feasible, professors from other campuses are brought in for these sessions to provide a greater breadth of learning experience.

Once again, the college offered a wide range of summer lectures and artists. Of special significance was the appearance in July of Miss Lynn Bari in a production of The Little Foxes, and of David Birney in Hamlet. These, like productions of previous summers, were directed by a member of the college faculty and, except for the lead, utilized college players.

The Farm group spent four days on campus in early July. Highly selected, highly motivated, these young people were capable of restoring anyone's faith in our public schools and in our students. Particularly concerned with cooperation, they demonstrated the pleasures such a group can derive from learning together, working together, singing together, and losing themselves completely in an array of activities. All who had any association with this group hope that the organization will return to the Bloomsburg campus in subsequent years.

Bloomsburg State College has become increasingly concerned with International Education, and, therefore, particularly welcomed the first two foreign groups to visit the campus through the Experiment in International Living. The initial group included eleven students and teachers from Japan; the second, a group of thirteen teachers from Germany. Each attended classes of their choice, visited a number of faculty homes, and lived with and studied with regular Bloomsburg students. All reports verified the success of the program both for the visitors and for our own campus community.

And, finally, the college initiated this year Freshmen Summer Orientation. Replacing the usual rather hectic and certainly crowded, traditional fall Orientation, students and their parents were invited to the campus for a three-day period in groups of about 250. They were addressed by members of the Administrative staff and faculty, engaged in a number of activities, underwent the usual testing, and were assisted in preparing their fall schedules. Special programs were held for the parents with emphasis upon student personnel services.

• • • • •

The college has announced its new Administrative Reorganization. Following a year of study, a plan has now been developed which will provide a reorganization of responsibilities, the development of new titles, and a flexibility which should serve the college well during the coming years of expansion and development. Further details will be carried in a future issue of the Quarterly.

Among the new programs for the fall will be one in Medical Technology offered in connection with the Geisinger Medical Center.

Although the 1970-71 budget year will be a particularly tight one, the college, nevertheless, will welcome approximately 4,000 students to the campus. These students, as I am sure you have already heard, will be paying an additional $200.00 per year in fee costs.

• • • • •

The much discussed Bloomsburg Foundation is now becoming a reality. Formally approved through all legal channels, the final proposal was presented to the Board of Trustees at their July meeting. The Foundation will enable the college to engage in meaningful educational projects which cannot or should not be supported by state funds. Again, in a later issue, we will provide further details about the Foundation and about its relationship to the total college operation.

524 IN GRADUATING CLASS

"You will have your achievements if you have a world of sufficient order in which to live—if you preserve the basic freedoms you have inherited—if you pay and pay, in money and self, for schools, roads and hospitals—if you continue to fight against tyranny and hatred—if you hold as inviolate the doctrine that men and countries can survive and develop only under law."

This was the challenge presented by Dr. Robert J. Nossen, president, during Bloomsburg State College's commencement convocation held at the Bloomsburg fairgrounds.

There were fifty-three candidates for the Bachelor of Arts Degree, 475 for bachelor of Science Degree, nineteen for Master of Education Degree, and one for a Master of Arts Degree.

Participating in the commencement program were: invocation, Father Bernard H. Petrina, Catholic campus minister; presentation of candidates, John A. Hoch, dean of instruction; conferral of degrees, Dr. Nossen; awarding of degrees, Edgar A. Fenstermacher, of the Board of Trustees, assisted by Edson J. Drake, director, arts and sciences; Emory W. Rarig, acting director of elementary education; C. Stuart Edwards, director of secondary education, and William L. Jones, director of special education.

The response for the class of 1970 was given by John M. Dalfovo, president. The benediction was offered by the Rev. Vincent R. Siciliano, First English Baptist Church.

Taking as his theme "It's Your Move," Dr. Nossen stated in part:

"The American Bar Association in its report of the Commission on Campus Government and Student Dissent, included the statement 'freedom of dissent, freedom from disorder.' We are just now completing a spring that has seen dissent, intensive dissent, unfortunately erupting in various forms and degrees of disorder. We have been through not only a struggle to establish a philosophy or ideology, but a constant threat of or attempt to force confrontation. We have read or received a super-abundance of analysis or information, and have emerged, I am sure, with about the same amount of confusion.

Concerned With Future

"But I'm not talking this afternoon about freedoms or causes or necessary changes. I'm concerned simply with prospects for survival—my survival and yours, but especially yours, because the coming several decades belong to you, not me; the survival of higher education, not to protect me or to educate my children, but you and your children; the survival of this country, this land which, despite all of its problems, represents the best achievement of economic strength, of personal hope and personal freedom, of idealism towards a better world for the threatened and the oppressed everywhere, that the world has yet known. I am concerned not for my economic security or personal safety, but for yours and for that of your children.

"This is a time rather to ask you, graduating in 1970, moving into occupations which will inevitably demand from you leadership—on a variety of boards, in economic organizations, in government, in business and industry—what are you going to do with your world? Despite the repeated claims of your disaffection, what are you going to do now for America? Because you have reached not a someday in the future, but a now, and it's your move!

"At a speech at Kent State University several weeks ago, Jerry Rubin said, 'Until you people are prepared to kill your parents, you aren't ready for the revolution.' Well, some of you are already parents, and most of you will be before too long. How are you going to handle this situation?

It's Your Move

"Mr. Rubin said further, 'The American school system will be ended in two years. We are going to bring it down. Quit being students. Become criminals. We have to disrupt every institution and break every law.' So, for most of you, after this hour you are no longer students. But what position will you take? What do you want? What will you stand for? It is, indeed, your move.

"I have given and I believe that most of my generation have assured your rights, under reason and law, to dissent, and the full right to work for changes as you have viewed their needs, or to review that which should be subject to review. But a mob, no matter what the original intent of those who have organized it and lead it, degenerates inevitably into anarchy. And through anarchy nothing can be changed, or developed, or improved in this world.

"We, too, had and have our ideals, and many of my age have given fully of themselves for their philosophies. But we had and continue to have, I believe, ultimate faith in the economic, social and political structure of this country. If you lack that faith, the result will be simple and inevitable; as the country passes over into your hands, it will be destroyed. It's really that simple; if you want to destroy America, you will have full opportunity when those of your generation control it.

"We, too, wanted to improve higher education when I and my contemporaries were students, and in the years since. We saw and see inequity, injustice, and weaknesses of all kinds. And, like you, we still work and hope for what might prove to be at least a partial answer. But you cannot improve an institution that doesn't exist, and if Jerry Rubin is right, American education has but two short years of possible lead time. How are you going to spend them?

Confidence in Class

"I think you'll make it. I think that, in spite of all our educational shortcomings, we have given you a basis for values and that we have assured you of something of value upon which you can build.

"I think, ultimately, you will stand for this country, and defend it. I think you will be proud of this College and of the American system of education, despite its never-ending need for improvement.

"I think you'll see, ultimately, what it is many of us have been trying to tell you. Then it'll be your turn to tell others. It is now, and for the next few years will continue to be, your move until the following generation needs the kind of analysis and understanding you'll be trying to impart to them.

"The decision you make, then, will affect not only all of us, but those generations yet to have their time upon this earth."

BACCALAUREATE

The Bloomsburg State College baccalaureate service was held Sunday, May 14 in Haas Auditorium. It was sponsored by the Community Ministries, a group of nine local congregations banded together to do ecumenical work.

The Rev. Dr. Gustave W. Weber, president of Susquehanna University, Selinsgrove, spoke on "The Inevitable Corruption."

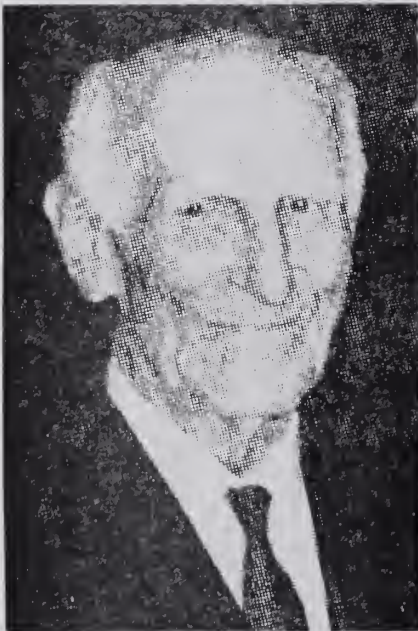

Liturgists for the baccalaureate service were Dr. Robert Nossen, president of Bloomsburg State College; the Rev. Bernard Petrina, Roman Catholic College Chaplain, and the Rev. Craig J. Dorward, pastor of St. Matthew Lutheran Church, Bloomsburg, chairman of the service committee in charge of arrangements. William Decker, B.M., M.M., head of the music department, BSC, was the organist playing "Darwell" by Willan and "Fugue in G. Major" by Buxtehude. Miss Beth Powlus, mezzosoprano, sang "Thou Shalt Bring Them In."

A grant of $58,800 has been awarded to Bloomsburg State College in an educational opportunity allocation to benefit 107 students. The fund will provide for grants ranging from $200 to $1,000 for each academic year of study up to a maximum of four years for students of exceptional financial need who are eligible for the program. BSC is to determine the recipients.

Dr. Frank C. Laubach '01

Dr. Frank C. Laubach, Benton native credited with lifting millions from the morass of illiteracy, died June 13 of acute leukemia at the age of eighty-five.

Death occurred unexpectedly in Crouse-Irving Memorial Hospital at Syracuse, N. Y. In apparent good health, he had visited in Benton over the weekend.

The son of the late Dr. John Britain and Harriet Derr Laubach, the world-acclaimed educator was a graduate of Benton high school. He received his bachelor's degree from Princeton University in 1909. In 1913 he was graduated from Union Theological Seminary and he was awarded his master's and Ph.D. degrees from Columbia University in 1915.

Following his graduation from Princeton, he heard the late Missionary Harry Edwards, also of Benton, tell of the need for missionaries and decided to enter that field.

He was ordained a minister of the Congregational Church and went to the Philippines in 1915. He taught at the Union Theological Seminary in Manila and in 1929 he began his literary work with the Moro tribesmen.

Finding the Moros had no written language, Dr. Laubach adapted the alphabet into the Maranaw language and started a folk school to teach them to read. Within a few months, there were 50 teachers on the staff.

During the Depression, the project was threatened by lack of funds. A Moro chief said, "Literacy is the best thing that ever came to Lanao. Everyone in my village who knows how to read must teach someone else." This gave rise to the "Each One Teach One" program which spread literacy to an estimated 70 million persons.

In addition Dr. Laubach developed teaching materials for use in 103 countries and 312 languages. Five biographies were written about him and he authored fifty-six books. His most recent, "Forty Years of the Silent Millions," was released on June 22.

He founded Laubach Literacy, Inc., with headquarters in Syracuse. Decorated by two nations, he was awarded seven honorary degrees. From 1941 to 1954, he was missionary-at-large for the National Council of Churches and in addition did literacy work for the United Nations, Scientific and Cultural Org. (UNESCO), the U. S. State Department, and the Peace Corps.

Dr. Laubach's "home church" was the Benton United Methodist Church where he was the featured speaker Sunday June 7 as the congregation marked its centennial year.

Dr. Laubach was a recipient of the Alumni Distinguished Service Award in 1961.

Russell C. Zimmerman '16

Russell Carling Zimmerman, 401 East Fifth Street, Berwick, died recently at the Berwick Hospital following a prolonged illness. Born in Shickshinny, he had spent most of his life in Berwick.

A dedicated educator, many of his former students credited his guidance in the choice of their life's work. One of his outstanding ideas was to use the illustrated work of his students in the actual vespers at First Methodist Church, Berwick, when the Rev. Aurance Shank, minister, gave his evening vespers.

A graduate of Berwick High School and Bloomsburg Normal School, he received a BS degree at Bucknell University. He attended Pennsylvania State University and received a master's degree at New York University. His teaching career included subjects from mechanical drawing, finance and business, art, penmanship and, at retirement, he was art consultant in the Berwick Senior High School.

Following retirement he accepted a position as art director of the Colwyck Junior High School, New Castle, Del., where he taught for two years. At Wilmington, Del., he was associated with the art department of Wanamakers. Owing to ill health he was forced to return to his home.

A member of the First United Methodist Church of Berwick, he was also a member of Knapp Lodge, No. 462 F and AM of Berwick and Caldwell Consistory of Bloomsburg. He was a member of Berwick Historical Society and Columbia County Mental Health Association.

Jeanne Stroh Walsh '20

Mrs. Jeanne S. Walsh, seventy, of Bloomsburg R. D. 3, died at Bloomsburg Hospital on June 5.

Born in Bloomsburg she was active in the Daughters of the American Revolution, was formerly a member of the Order of Eastern Star, and was a retired elementary school teacher. She was a member of the Lutheran Church, Mainville.

Dorothy Barton Cherrington '23

Mrs. Dorothy Lucille Barton Cherrington died June 17 in the Bloomsburg Hospital. She was born July 22, 1904, a daughter of the late Harry S. and Mable Peacock Barton.

She was a member of the Wesley United Methodist Church and a graduate of Bloomsburg High School and Bloomsburg State Normal. She taught in Hershey and Bloomsburg prior to her marriage. Her death breaks a marital span of forty-four years.

Laura Stevens Graham '26

Mrs. Laura Graham, sixty-four, of 145 East Sixth Street, Bloomsburg, died May 17 at the Bloomsburg Hospital. She was born in Bloomsburg, April 1, 1906. She was a member of the Church of Christ and active in church work.

Raber Seely

Raber S. Seely, 87 Clifton Avenue, Kingston, N. Y., a former resident of Berwick, died on May 6.

A former coach at BSC, he was an all-around athlete and had captained both the basketball and football teams at Gettysburg College from which he graduated. He also attended West Point. He graduated from Berwick High School in 1926.

Elmer J. McKechnie has retired as Superintendent of the Berwick area schools. The Morning Press recently had this editorial comment:

Retirement July 1 of Elmer J. McKechnie, superintendent of Berwick Area School District since 1956 and associated with Berwick schools for 33 years, will be a distinct loss to the system. He plans to travel and write.

School Board President Dan DeFinnis appropriately described the superintendent as "dynamic and hardworking." McKechnie's devotion to his work resulted in an extended illness some time back. Naturally he wants no recurrence.

Administering a large area district is a far more demanding job than was the supervision of a teaching staff years ago. Problems multiply with the size of the school.

Berwickians familiar with his community activities as well as his school duties hope that McKechnie's devotion to travel and writing will still allow his participation in civic projects and that he will remain in the community. The schools are losing a good man.

Announcement was made in the July Quarterly that Alumni dues had been raised to $5.00. Further study of our constitution indicates that dues must be approved at a meeting of the General Alumni Association. Consequently, the change will not go into effect until it is approved on Alumni Day, 1971. Since the College will no longer pay for the Alumni Luncheon, some change will be necessary. The other alternative would be to keep the Alumni dues at $2.00 in which case those attending the luncheon will pay for their luncheon tickets. We invite your comments on the proposed change.

DR. ANDRUSS

TO BE HONORED

The Pennsylvania Department of Education will honor Dr. Harvey A. Andrus, retired president of Bloomsburg State College, during the 49th Education Congress banquet in October.

The letter from D. David H. Kurtzman, secretary of the department in Harrisburg, to Dr. Andrus stated:

"I am pleased to announce that a Pennsylvania Department of Education certificate of appreciation will be presented to you for your many years of dedication and service to education.

"In honor of the occasion, we plan to include the ceremony as part of the 49th Education Congress Banquet. The affair will be held on October 6, 1970 at the Penn Harris Motor Inn, Camp Hill, Pennsylvania. We will assemble in the Keystone Room at 6 p.m. prior to dinner.

"You are cordially invited to be my guest for the evening, and I am looking forward to your appearance.

"In the event that you are unable to attend, please let me know so that other arrangements can be made."

TWO TEACHERS ARE HONORED

Two Bloomsburg State College faculty members, Mrs. Iva Mae Beckley and Miss Beatrice Englehart, who will retire prior to the start of the next college year, were honored with special citations for faithful service at the final faculty meeting of the current college year.

Mrs. Beckley, Assistant Professor of Education, will retire at the end of the present college year. Mrs. Beckley received her Bachelor of Science degree in education from Lock Haven State College, her Master of Education degree from the Pennsylvania State University, and has taken additional graduate studies in supervision in elementary education at Teachers College, Columbia University. Before joining the faculty of Bloomsburg State College in 1943, she was an elementary teacher for nine years in the public schools of Tyrone.

She has served as consultant and conducted workshops during summer sessions at BSC, as consultant at county institutes and for various Parent-Teacher Association groups throughout the area. She organized and directed the Head Start Program of Columbia County during the summer of 1965, and the following summer directed the program in the Bloomsburg area. When a regional training office for the Head Start Program was approved at Bloomsburg State College in March of 1968, Mrs. Beckley was selected as a regional training officer. From 1966 to 1968, she served as a consultant for the ESEA-Title I program in the public schools of Mount Carmel.

She is a member of the National Council of Teachers of English, International Reading Association, American Association of University Women, National Education Association, Pennsylvania State Education Association, Susquehanna Valley Supervisors, Columbia County Mental Health Association, and has served as Director and Chairman of the committee on Childhood Mental Illness.

Mrs. Beckley is a past president of the Central Region Pennsylvania Association of Student Teachers, Susquehanna Valley Reading Council, BSC College Faculty Association, and the Business and Professional Women's Club of Bloomsburg.

BSC Graduate

Miss Englehart is an Associate Professor of Education and retired at the end of the 1970 summer session. Prior to joining the faculty of Bloomsburg State College in 1956, Miss Englehart had taught for a two year period in the primary department of Abington Township Schools in Montgomery County.

She began her teaching career in Mays Landing, N. J., in 1927, after completing her teacher-certification at the then Bloomsburg State Teachers College. In 1929 she returned to Bloomsburg to teach in the public elementary schools, and during that period completed the requirements for the Bachelor of Science degree in Education.

Miss Englehart was awarded the Master and Education degree at Bucknell University in 1953 and qualified for the Elementary Supervisor's and Principal's Certificates. During the same year she accepted an appointment as Instructor in the Early Childhood Elementary Education Department at Temple University and devoted part of her time to the supervision of student teachers in the public schools of Philadelphia. Her career as a teacher spanned a period of forty-three years.

Her professional affiliations include membership in the Pennsylvania State Education Association, the National Education Association, the Association of Childhood International, the Association for Student Teaching, and Delta Kappa Gamma Fraternity.

Citation

IN RECOGNITION of almost three decades of faithful service to Bloomsburg State Teachers College and Bloomsburg State College, We, the faculty of Bloomsburg State College desire to accord this tribute to

IVA MAE BECKLEY

WHEREAS, Mrs. Iva Mae Beckley has devoted twenty-seven years to the teaching of children and the supervision of student teachers in both the Campus Laboratory School and the area Public Schools, and

WHEREAS, she has made notable contributions as an instructor in virtually every phase of Elementary Teacher Education, and

WHEREAS, she was instrumental in initiating the first Head Start project in Columbia County, as well as serving as Regional Training Officer for the program for North Eastern Pennsylvania, and

WHEREAS, her complete trustworthiness and loyalty, her persistent demand for excellence, and her unqualified dedication as an educator, serve as an inspiration to all those who know her.

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that this citation be spread upon the minutes as a permanent record of this May 14, 1970, Bloomsburg State College College Faculty Meeting.

Expression of Appreciation

In recognition of fourteen years of faithful service to Bloomsburg State College as a teacher and a supervisor of student teaching, as a friend and counselor of students and faculty, as inspirational leader among early childhood specialists, and in recognition of many additional years as a teacher in the elementary schools of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, this tribute is presented to by her grateful colleagues upon the commencement of her retirement, May 14, 1970.

TREASURER'S REPORT

The following is a summary of the report presented by Earl A. Gehrig, Treasurer of the Alumni Association, at the annual meeting of the Alumni Association on Alumni Day.

During the period April 1, 1969 to March 31, 1970, Loyalty Fund and dues collected totaled $8,699.53. During the same period, expenditures totaled $10,310.28, leaving us with a net decrease in equity of $1,160.75. The largest area of expenditures has to do with the printing and mailing of the Quarterly to all graduates of the College, whether or not they are currently contributing to the Association.

In the area of scholarships and grants, out total income for the year ended March 31, 1970 was $1,356.91 of which $1,300.00 has been awarded in the form of grants.

Equities

Principal Bequest	128,758.70
Additions	25,748.29

Total Equities 154,506.99
Student loans, totalling $41,601.46 were outstanding on March 31, 1970. During the year April 1, 1969 to March 31, 1970, a total of 53 loans was made to students.

Approval of three new Master of Education degrees has been received by Bloomsburg State College from the state Department of Education, according to Dr. Charles Carlson, director, division of graduate studies at BSC.

The new degrees to be offered will be the master of education in physical science, master of education in chemistry, and master of education in physics.

LEGISLATION ON FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE

As a result of recent legislation enacted by the Pennsylvania General Assembly, amending the law which affects the Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency, Dr. Robert J. Nossen, President of Bloomsburg State College, signed an agreement with the PHEAA which affects the continued eligibility of students attending the college.

In a letter from Kenneth R. Reeher, Executive Director of PHEAA to Dr. Nossen (preceding the signing of the agreement by Dr. Nossen), an extract from the amendments enacted specify that The Agency may deny all forms of financial assistance of any student:

"(1) Who is convicted by any court of record of a criminal offense which was committed after the effective date of this act which, under the laws of the United States or Pennsylvania, would constitute a misdemeanor or involving moral turpitude or a felony; or

(2) Who has been expelled, dismissed, or denied enrollment by any approved institution of higher learning for refusal to obey, after the effective date of this act, a lawful regulation or order of any institution of higher learning, which refusal, in the opinion of the institution, contributed to a disruption of the activities, administration or classes of such institution; or

(3) Who has been convicted in any court of record of any offense committed in the course of disturbing, interfering with or preventing, or in an attempt to disturb, interfere with or prevent the orderly conduct of the activities, administration or classes of an institution of higher education.

(b) Each institution of higher education shall immediately furnish to the Agency, the name and address of any student who is a resident of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania who is expelled, dismissed or denied enrollment for the reasons set forth in clause (2) (of subsection (a) of this section) or of whom the institution of higher education has knowledge that he has been convicted of offenses as set forth in clauses (1) and (3) (of subsection (a) of this section.)

(c) Nothing in this section shall be construed to limit the freedom of any student to verbal expression of individual views or opinions.

(d) Any institution of higher learning which refuses to execute an agreement with the Agency to comply with subsection (b) of this section shall be denied the status of an approved institution under the provisions of this act."

Mr. Reeher also requested that the college begin providing the Agency with the name and address of students as required in subparagraph (b) of the quoted legislation. The effective date of the legislation was October 29, 1969. A decision as to eligibility of such students for loans or scholarship assistance will be made upon completion of the Agency evaluation of each individual case.

The provision for denying an institution approval to participate in either the PHEAA Scholarship or Loan Guaranty Program will be effective from the 1970-71 academic year. Scholarship awards or loan guaranties or any renewal thereof will not be issued to applicants for the 1970-71 academic year unless the institution they plan to attend has executed the attached agreement.

COLLEGE INSTALLS NEW SYSTEM FOR EDUCATION

The Department of Education of Bloomsburg State College has installed an auto-tutorial educational media laboratory in Hartline Science Center.

The system, which utilizes audiovisual material in a carrel setting will allow large numbers of students to receive necessary instruction in audiovisual machine operation and production techniques. Teachers need to be familiar with the latest equipment and materials in education and the new system allows each student to receive individualized instruction moving him at his own pace.

The system is essentially a programmed instruction system that utilizes slides, 8mm films, and other visual media that are accompanied by an audio tape. To learn a particular machine or production procedure, a student merely seats himself at a carrel, presses the appropriate buttons and the program is delivered to him. He may review the program as many times as he likes, until he feels competent in the operation. Professional assistance is continually available and the student is responsible for demonstrating competency to his instructor in an exam setting.

Although the concept is not new, this system represents the first time that such a system has been utilized at Bloomsburg State College. The system allows the student to come to the laboratory and have his instructor prescribe for him those experiences which are appropriate to his needs rather than receiving the mass type instruction. Such systems have been successfully employed at Purdue University, at Michigan State University to teach educational media and at numerous other institutions of higher education to provide instruction in a variety of subjects.

The particular system for Bloomsburg State College was conceived and designed by Raymond E. Babineau, assistant professor of education. Babineau was a participant in an institute and was one of the members who designed the proto-type for the carrel that is being used in the new system.

His system incorporates 15 carrel experiences in which the student progresses through experiences that are designed to increase his levels of competency in educational media. The installation of the system culminates a year of planning that commenced when Babineau joined the BSC staff last July.

Administration support for the plan was provided by Dr. H. M. Afshar, chairman of the education department and Dr. John Hoch, dean of instruction. Technical assistance was provided by Thaddeus Piotrowski, director of the audio visual materials center. The system will become operational during the Main Summer Session. Interested teachers from the local area are invited to visit the facility in Room B-79 of Hartline Science Hall.

BSC BUILDING PROGRAM

The 1975 projection of Bloomsburg State College, involving both the lower and upper campuses, is one of 6,000 students.

To achieve that objective four projects will be completed this year and during 1970 final designs are expected to be completed and ready for bids for the following projects: an athletic field, a student center, recreation areas, a multi-level parking garage, and administration building and complete utilities for the upper campus.

It is hoped construction on these projects, involving an expenditure of $13,000,000 will begin during the 1970 calendar year. Four projects will be completed in 1970. Food service began in the new College Commons sometime in February. A maintenance building-garage was completed and the Bakeless Center for the Humanities was ready for occupancy in June. A nine-story residence hall for 400 women will be used for the first time in September. Both the new College Commons, which was named for former Governor William Scranton, and the Bakeless Center, will be completely air-conditioned.

Construction has begun on a new fieldhouse-gymnasium on the upper campus.

Preplanning has been completed for a new classroom building, two residence halls for women, 2 residence halls for men, a dining hall-kitchen, and a maintenance building. Preplanning is expected to begin in the near future for another residence hall for women and for an extension of underground facilities.

Progress is the keynote at BSC and should continue at a steady rate throughout the next few years with the enrollment being regulated by the growth of the physical plant as well as the expansion of curriculum necessary to fulfill the needs of students of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. The college pledges a continuation of improved service and progress in 1970.

BSC WILL GET

STATE INCREASE

Bloomsburg State College's state share will rise by $338,000 for 1970-71 despite the state budget allotment of $73,018,000 for all the state colleges and Indiana University as proposed by Governor Shafer.

The total amount for all the state colleges will remain the same, according to the austerity budget submitted by the Shafer administration, at $73,018,000.

Due BSC under the new budget is $4,973,000 for the coming year, while it received $4,635,000 in the past budget.

However, seven of the 14 institutions in the system will be cut in their funds from the state.

The three state-related universities — Penn State, Pitt and Temple — will receive the same amount as last year.

Dr. Harry Gasser, a former instructor and supervisor of student teachers at Bloomsburg State College, has been named associate professor of educational administration and supervisor in the Graduate School at Villanova University.

Dr. Gasser is currently assistant county superintendent, Montgomery county, Norristown, a position he has held since 1956. He was a member of the faculty of BSC from September, 1950, serving as supervising teacher, Grade 5, in the Benjamin Franklin Elementary Laboratory School.

STUDY COVERS SIXTY SCHOOLS

Dr. Royce O. Johnson, Director of the Division of Elementary Education at Bloomsburg State College has been visiting more than sixty experimental and innovative elementary schools in twenty-eight states as part of a project sponsored by the Pennsylvania Department of Education. Dr. Johnson, who was on sabbatical leave from his college position, was accompanied by Mrs. Johnson who was on leave from her teaching position in the Millville Area Elementary Schools.

Upon his return to Bloomsburg, Dr. Johnson wrote descriptions of the schools for use in catalog of the Project to Utilize Resources in Education (PURE). The information will then be made readily available to school boards and administrators who wish to visit places where experimental and innovative ideas are in successful practice. Dr. Johnson will also send a summary of his findings to the more than 700 educators throughout the nation who assisted by recommending schools for visitation.

The Johnsons have visited schools in states on their way to Florida, westward through Texas and Arizona to California.

They visited in Oregon and proceeded through Washington and then started their homeward trip via Utah, Colorado, Wisconsin, Illinois and Michigan.

Warren I. Johnson, Supervisor of Student Teachers of the elementary division, served as Acting Director of the Division of Elementary Education during the second semester.

Where Are Our Local Branches?

An item of mail from the General Alumni Association of the Shippensburg State College indicates that during the months of February to July, nineteen local branches were scheduled to hold meetings. Eight of these were out of the state, and included Ohio, Chicago, Michigan, Florida, Delaware, West Virginia, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

During the past year, only three local branches of BSC have been active. Eight other areas, once active, have been inactive for several years. It has been the opinion of your Board of Directors that the local branches should stand on their own feet, without continuous prodding from Alumni headquarters.

We should like to hear from interested Alumni, and learn their opinions of the advisability of reactivating the local branches, and what should be done.

Lists of names of people living in your area may be obtained from the Alumni Office.

It is the opinion of your Editor that the time has come when Alumni should support their Alma Mater in as many ways and through as many channels as possible. During these days College administrators need to know that the Alumni are behind them.

Who will be the first one to start the ball rolling?

The new Student Center will include a formal lounge, snack bar, multi-purpose rooms, the College Store, the student bank, a game room, an infirmary, an information center, mail boxes for students, a locker room for commuting students, offices for administrative personnel who work with student publications and the Student Union Board, a TV room, a music listening room. The Student Center will be constructed on a portion of the terrace area between Waller Hall and Montour Hall.

By the time you read this, the first semester of the 1970-1971 academic year will be nearing its end. So far it has been a good semester, marking a number of achievements—and bringing, of course, a number of problems. For the first time an all-college senate is in operation; coupled with the new administrative organization, college governance is undergoing significant change. For the first time, too, the Foundation becomes a reality, and you should be hearing much about its activities during the coming months and years.

The maintenance building was put into service during late October, and plans now call for the opening of Columbia Hall, a residence for 400 women, immediately after Thanksgiving. Bakeless was dedicated in an impressive ceremony in connection with the annual Education Conference in late October, and the field house is rising from the ground on the new campus site. November marked the opening of bids for the Administration Building, and construction should begin prior to the end of the year. Of the planning for and the starting of building projects there is no immediate end in sight, as the college gears itself to carry its share of the growing number of students expected throughout the Commonwealth during the '70's.

On the negative side, the college found it necessary to take immediate and decisive action against two professors who, for reasons essentially known only to them, decided they did not have to fulfill their contractual obligations. Faculty and administrative officers spent an inordinate amount of time in attempting reconciliation prior to dismissal action. During the critical period the campus remained calm, the instructional program continued unimpaired, and members of the campus community showed remarkable unanimity in their opposition to the threat of those who challenged the orderly and professional conduct of campus affairs. In this case, as with any other relative to the operation of Bloomsburg State College, the integrity of operation and the fulfillment of declared educational objectives remained paramount and governed all decisions and actions. While the incidents in themselves are regrettable, it would, of course, be intolerable should we fail to meet directly our responsibilities.

Returning to the affirmative and the constructive, the college continued to evaluate phases of its curricular organization, its calendar of operation, its admissions program, and numerous other matters. While the summer sessions for 1971 will remain 3-6-3, Mr. James Creasy, Director, has announced that a 6-6 organization will be instituted for 1972.

Numerous efforts are being made to expand the role of the college in community services and in continuing education. A major undertaking, that of long-range planning, is well under way, and the college, in all probability, because of its resources and its favorable location in relationship to outstanding medical facilities will further develop its role in the health-related sciences and services.

On November 14, I participated in a panel discussion at Shippensburg on the role of the alumni in governance of colleges. This is being written prior to that date, and I plan to report to you in the next issue on some of the conclusions. In the meantime, we can point at Bloomsburg to an alumni director serving with the Trustees, and to two members of the Association participating as members of the Foundation. Regardless however, it is apparent that those who carry the Bloomsburg degree can continue a role at the college by their interest in and support of their Association, by assisting the admissions officers, and by writing, on occasion, to any of us offering your views and your suggestions.

Homecoming 1970

Activities for the 43rd annual Homecoming Celebration at BSC got under way with the Big Name Entertainment Committee of the College Community Government Association presenting a concert package. On Thursday, October 15, Charles Byrd, one of today's outstanding Jazz guitarists, performed in Centennial Gymnasium at 8:00 p.m. During the intermission of the latter, the Homecoming Queen was crowned.

The Homecoming Parade began the festivities on Saturday, October 17, at 10:15 a. m. with a line-of-march from Centennial Gymnasium, down Second and Main streets to Market street, and south on Market to Town Park. Jack Mulka, Director Student Activities, awarded prizes for the best decorated seven floats, three off-campus houses, and a men's and women's residence hall on campus.

A luncheon for alumni and visitors was held in the Scranton Commons at 12:00 noon, Saturday. A record crowd was present at Bloomsburg's Athletic Park at 2:00 p. m. to see the Huskies of BSC entertain the Marauders of Millersville State College in an eastern division Pennsylvania State College Conference game. In a closely contested game, BSC defeated Millersville with a score of 23 to 17.

A cafeteria dinner for alumni and visitors followed in the Scranton Commons. Saturday evening activities featured two semi-formal dances held at separate locations. Beginning at 8:30 p. m., "Hot Buttered Funk" played the latest music for students and recent graduates in the West Dining Hall of Scranton Commons, while at the same time in the East Dining Hall, Lee Vincent's Modernaires furnished the music for the faculty members and less recent graduates.

Alumni remaining on campus Sunday, October 18, along with students, faculty members, and the general public were able to attend a "Pops Concert" presented by the College Concert Choir under the direction of Richard Stanislaw in the Haas Auditorium at 8:15 p. m.

Boyd Buckingham, Associate Vice President for Development and External Relations was chairman for the festivities.

AMENDMENT TO CONSTITUTION

An amendment to the Constitution of the Alumni Association, approved by the Board of Directors, will be voted on at the next general meeting of the Association on Alumni Day, Saturday, April 24, 1971. This amendment would install a member of the graduating class as an ex-officio member of the Board of Directors, to serve for one year.

BAKELESS CENTER IS DEDICATED

The Bakeless Center for the Humanities, completed earlier this year on the campus of Bloomsburg State College, was formally dedicated during the luncheon of the 24th Annual Conference for Teachers and Administrators held at Bloomsburg State College Saturday, October 24.

This fine educational structure, which was first used during the summer sessions, 1970, is named for two generations of the Bakeless family, all of whom are graduates of Bloomsburg State Normal School.

The late Professor O. H. Bakeless, a member of the Class of 1879, was a faculty member from 1890-1892 and 1902-1929. Extremely interested in students, he was principal for many years of the Model or Training School on campus, and taught courses in psychology and history of education. Professor Bakeless solicited $25,000 from students, faculty, and other donors to purchase Tiffany stained glass windows in 1920. The windows were installed in Waller and Noetling Halls, and were removed and placed in Andrus Library when it was constructed in 1966.

The late Sarah Harvey Bakeless, Class of 1884, was the wife of O. H. Bakeless. She served as a faculty member from 1885-1892 and was a teacher in the Model School.

Dr. John Bakeless, Class of 1913, is the son of O. H. Bakeless. He has gained an international reputation as an educator, scholar, and Army Colonel. A review of Dr. Bakeless' recent book, "Spies of the Confederacy," was in the September 13, 1970 issue of the New York Times Book Review. His wife, Katherine Little Bakeless, Class of 1915, is a noted authoress and musician.

Mrs. Katherine Bakeless Nason, Class of 1918 and daughter of O. H. Bakeless, is an educator, artist, and benefactress to the College.

Dr. and Mrs. John Bakeless were present at the dedication ceremonies. Mrs. Nason is traveling abroad and was unable to attend.

Centrally located in the academic area of the campus, the Bakeless Center for the Humanities is the first building on campus to feature wall-bearing construction with re-enforced concrete floors. The exterior walls consist of concrete block with brick veneer facing.

Included in the three and a half story building are 36 classrooms, three seminar rooms, offices for 66 faculty members, secretarial areas, a faculty lounge, storage areas, and an automatic elevator. All classrooms and offices are air conditioned.

The three large classrooms on the third floor are illuminated with skylights and will be used by the Art Department. Language laboratories will be installed in the large classrooms on the second floor. The stair tower was specifically designed to enhance the aesthetic qualities of the new center and also provides wall space to be used as an area for paintings. A portion of the building has currently been designated as the center for the Columbia County Historical Museum, which will be used jointly by the college community and members of the Historical Society.

The architectural firm of Milton Schwartz and Associates, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania designed the Bakeless Center for the Humanities, completed on July 15, 1970. Boyd F. Buckingham, Associate Vice President for Development, co-ordinated the planning meetings between representatives of the college, the architect, and the General State Authority during the design and construction stages. Dr. Francis Radice, Professor, School of Business, served as chairman for the dedication.

The master of ceremonies at the dedication luncheon was Dr. Stuart Edwards, Dean of the School of Professional Studies. Speakers were President Nossen, William A. Lank, Chairman of the Board of Trustees, and Dr. John Bakeless.

DR. NOSSEN ADDRESSES FRESHMEN-PARENTS

"There are many who wish to give you advice. A true test of wisdom is how to choose your counselor wisely," Dr. Robert Nossen, president of Bloomsburg State College stated in an address to freshmen students and their parents during the seventeenth annual freshmen-parents day activities in the campus. Approximately 1,100 parents, students, and faculty attended.

In a statement directed to parents, Dr. Nossen added, "This is the most important advice I can give young people. I would urge you as parents to be aware of it and to repeat it often."

Speaking of those who counsel or advise students, Dr. Nossen continued, "There are those who come to the campus to lead persons to take action that the counselor wants them to take for his own narrow purpose.

"There are those who print underground or unofficial papers in the hope that they can influence students.

"There are those, well-meaning, of really good intent, who will interpret events at they see them, but don't understand them.

"All of these influences are on this campus. Every student here will be subject to them. The careful choice of an advisor will be important to you both now and for years to come."

Dr. Nossen also discussed plans made by student leaders from the thirteen State Colleges and Indiana University to declare October 15, as State College Day. The students will rally in Harrisburg to call attention to the true needs of these institutions of higher education.

Dr. Nossen noted that plans for October 15 have been developed by responsible student leaders, spokesmen for the Board of Presidents, and perhaps, Gov. Shafer.

"It is a form of protest, but responsible and guided protest, to help others understand the importance of these colleges," Dr. Nossen said.

"We will not close; we will not put aside our academic program for any reason over which we have control. But in spirit, we will give our support insofar as ends remain constructive and means remain objective, responsible, and valid," Nossen said.

Dr. Nossen expressed his faith in Michael Pilligalli, president of the community government association, and other students at the college.

"They have given me little reason to feel otherwise," he said.

John S. Mulka, director of student activities, presided during the program.

He reminded those present "Success in life may be characterized as a two-way street.

"For example, every human being has certain rights and privileges, but accompanying these are responsibilities which must be fulfilled," he said.

Michael Pilligalli, CGA president, explained the October 15 student movement referred to earlier by Dr. Nossen.

Students are going to Harrisburg not to protest or act unlawfully, but as responsible adults who want to impress State officials with the need for the State Colleges and Indiana University, he said.

Elton Hunsinger, vice president for student affairs at the college, said, "Our college youth hold in their hands three of the most important influences of all times - love, understanding, and responsibility."

"Our current problems can be overcome," he said, "with the proper quantity, quality, and application of knowledge, discipline, and hard work."

"Today's student," he said, "will wake up and defy a gloomy future. But he must assume a full share of responsibility for that future."

"He must understand that an educated person is one who can differentiate between what you do know and what you don't know. He must know the difference between right and wrong, and have the courage to support that which is right."

Dr. John A. Hoch, vice president and dean of the faculties, urged parents to encourage their sons and daughters to "solve problems before they become serious."

He asked parents to give their children support while the young people are adjusting to college life.

NEW BUILDINGS

Although three new buildings have been occupied recently and a fourth is nearing completion, physical facilities of the Bloomsburg State College will have to be utilized to the fullest possible extent during the 1970-71 college year to accommodate nearly 4,000 full-time undergraduate and graduate students, over 550 part-time undergraduate and graduate students, 282 faculty and administrative personnel, and 272 non-instructive employees.

The Scranton Commons, Bakeless Center for the Humanities, and a new campus service building were completed during the summer. Columbia Residence Hall, which will house 400 women, is expected to be ready for occupancy by the end of October.

In addition to these projects, there are nine others in various stages of construction or design. The total cost of construction for the thirteen projects is in excess of $13,000,000. An additional amount of $3,800,000 for four projects is included in the 1969-70 Capital Budget which has not yet been passed by the State Legislature. A new gymnasium is emerging above the horizon on the Upper Campus. It is expected to be ready for use by September, 1971. A central air conditioning system is now being installed in the former College Commons, which will be used as a temporary student union building until a student center is completed. Additional space will be available in Centennial Gymnasium following completion of an excavating project now in progress in the basement area.

Final plans and specifications have been delivered to the General State Authority to provide for new varsity athletic fields (Upper Campus); utilities, roads, and parking areas (Upper Campus); a student center (Lower Campus); a multi-level parking garage (Lower Campus); recreation areas, parking and roads (Lower Campus); an administration - supply building (Lower Campus).

It is hoped that bids will be opened for several of these projects this fall; the others will be delayed until late winter or early spring.

When the 1969-1970 capital budget is approved, funds are expected to be available for the design and construction of a new residence hall for 300 women on the site of Waller Hall; a new classroom building east of Andruss Library; the air-conditioning of Suttiff Hall; the conversion and addition of boilers in the heating plant.

Pre-planning of additional projects Upper Campus is following guidelines established in the Campus Plan which was completed in 1967. At the present time, pre-planning submissions have been completed for four residence halls, a dining hall-kitchen and a maintenance building.

The Upper Campus now consists of approximately 103 acres, which includes the 68 acres purchased from the former Bloomsburg Country Club and 35 acres purchased this summer. The latter area will be used as a site for roads and recreation facilities.

NEW FACULTY

An educator once accused by the Russians of being an American spy has been named head of the Foreign Language department of Bloomsburg State College.

Dr. Ariane Foureman, a native of Tunisia, has been named chairman of the department.

Born of Russian parents, who left Russia at the time of the revolution to become French citizens in Tunisia, Dr. Foureman attended a private Catholic school in Tunisia, Notre-Dame de Sion, and received a French Baccalaureat, which is approximately equivalent to two years of college in the United States.

Her studies in law school in Tunisia were interrupted by World War II. She became a war bride of an army officer, arriving in the U.S. in 1947, and became an American citizen in 1950. She continued her education at Ohio State University, and was awarded the Bachelor of Arts, Master of Arts, and Doctor of Philosophy degrees in French.

Dr. Foureman started her teaching career at Ohio State University as an Assistant Instructor in 1957, and served as an Instructor from 1962 to 1968. During the summers of 1964 and 1965 she taught Russian at Ohio State and was an instructor and co-leader of a language study tour to Russia sponsored by Ohio State University.

A year later she was accused in the Russian newspaper, Pravda, of being an American spy for the United States government. In 1968 she was appointed Assistant Professor at Capital University in Columbus, Ohio, and served in that capacity until her appointment to Bloomsburg in 1969.

Although Dr. Foureman left OSU in the fall of 1968, the class of 1969 nominated her for the Arts Council Good Teaching Award.

Dr. Foureman holds membership in the Modern Language Association of University Professors, Ohio State University Alumni Association, Societe des Professeurs Francais en Amerique, Alliance Francaise de Columbus, Ohio, and the Association of Pennsylvania State College and University Faculties (A.P.S.C.U.F.).

Her husband, Dr. Roy Foureman, received a Doctor of Philosophy degree from Ohio State University and retired from the U.S. Army with the rank of lieutenant colonel. The Fouremans have two children, Ariane, a senior at Ohio State, and Alexandra, a sophomore at the same institution. Dr. Foureman makes frequent trips to Europe to visit her parents and further her education.

OVER 4,500 ON BSC ROLLS

A total of 3,953 undergraduate students completed registration for the 1970-71 year at Bloomsburg State College, according to Robert Bunge, registrar.

In addition, 393 graduate students are enrolled at the college, which gives a grand total of 4,346 undergraduate and graduate students. This is the largest enrollment of the college.

Approximately 175 part time undergraduate and graduate students that have been registering by mail raised the grand total of fulltime and part-time undergraduate and graduate students over the 4,500 mark.

Of the 3,953 undergraduate students, 1,990 are men and 1,963 are women. Approximately 1,983 men and women will be housed in campus residence halls and will be served their meals through the facilities of the Scranton Commons.

A total of 282 faculty and administrative personnel will be on duty during the semester.

Bloomsburg State College admitted 1,331 new students for the 1970-71 college year. Forty-six and one tenth per cent of these new students were men and 53.9 per cent were women.

The new students were broken down into the following categories: freshmen totaled 1,069 with 465 being male and 604 female; transfer students totaled 215 with 121 males and 94 female; returning students (those who had been enrolled prior to the preceding semester) totaled 40, broken down into 27 males and 13 females; one male and six females were not classified.

This class of new students was selected from 4,524 applicants. Of all the freshmen candidates, 8.2 per cent were offered admission with 58.9 per cent of that number being enrolled. In the transfer group, 47.9 per cent of the applicants were accepted and of this group 61.6 per cent registered. Admission was offered to 73.8 per cent of those who applied as returning students; forty-three per cent of this group completed registration.

The geographical aspect of the new students reveals that 90 per cent reside in counties located in Eastern Pennsylvania. Counties with the most representation are Luzerne, 11.3 per cent; Northumberland, 9.8 per cent; Columbia, 8.5 per cent; Montgomery, 8.0 per cent; Schuylkill, 6.9 per cent; Lackawanna, 6.5 per cent and Bucks, 4.9 per cent. A total of 48 counties of Pennsylvania are represented and eight per cent of the new freshmen are out-of-state students. The majority of new freshmen, 86.2 per cent attended public secondary schools.

Forty-five per cent of the freshmen ranked in the first fifth of their respective high school graduating class, 33 per cent in the second fifth, 20 per cent in the third fifth, and 2 per cent in the fourth fifth. These figures are commensurate with last year's rank distributions. The class of 1974 includes ten valedictorians and six salutatorians.

A total of eleven students submitted College Entrance Board Advanced Examination results. These results were reviewed and six hours of credit were awarded and 15 hours were exempted.

The mean grade point average for the transfer men was 2.55 and for the women was 2.72. The total mean for all transfer students was 2.63. The majority of transfer students was from two year community colleges.

NEW FRESHMEN

Over 1,000 freshmen arrived at Bloomsburg State College to begin the 1970-71 college year.

An informal reception was held in Scranton Commons lobby giving new students and their parents the opportunity to talk with administrators, faculty members, and student leaders. A buffet dinner followed in Scranton Commons, and later that evening a freshman class meeting was held, climaxed by a band dance in the Student Union Building.

The registration for freshmen took place in Centennial Gymnasium, at which time the students were issued dinks, name signs, pilots, and calendars. Prior to a picnic held on the soccer field adjacent to the Gym, fun and games were held on the same location. A band dance in the Gymnasium Parking lot terminated the day's activities.

While upperclassmen were registering, a freshman class meeting and group meetings were held throughout the day. Students also had the opportunity to meet with faculty members who direct varsity sports, men's intramurals, women's intramurals and extramurals, choral groups, theatre, and forensics.

For the first time, orientation sessions were held for new students during the summer. By conducting several orientation sessions in this manner, students and their parents were given more time and attention, which was not possible when all new students previously arrived on campus the week before registration in September.

The National Secretaries Association has approved Bloomsburg State College as a center for the annual examination for Certified Professional Secretary (CPS) to be given in May, 1971, according to Dr. Emory W. Rarig, Director of the Division of Business Education. Prior to the addition of BSC, the only other centers in the state were located in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

Willard A. Christian, Associate Professor of Business Education at BSC, has been named testing administrator for the examination.

Dr. David N. Newbury has recently co-authored a book which relates teacher contract negotiations to effective learning for school children. The book is entitled "Teacher Negotiations: A Guide for Bargaining Teams."

The book is considered unique in educational circles since it is one of the first to attempt to connect the growing practice of teacher bargaining with research on effective learning of students. It is published by the Parker Division of Prentice-Hall Publishers and is aimed at the national market of public and college educators, as well as school board members, who are concerned with teacher negotiations.

Newbury has previously published articles on such topics as the history of iron mining at Danville, Pa., federal aid to education, science education, dropout prevention, and vocational education.

Dr. Newbury attended elementary school in Sunbury, graduated from Watsonstown High School in 1949 and graduated with various honors from Bloomsburg State College in 1953.

After military service in Korea and Japan he completed a Master's Degree at Bucknell University in 1956. A doctorate in administration and curriculum development was earned at Wayne State University in 1967. Newbury is currently Assistant Superintendent of Schools in Hazel Park, Michigan, a suburban community of 30,000 residents. He began teaching there in 1956 and has served as Science Director and Curriculum Director before being appointed Assistant Superintendent. Dr. Newbury has served on the Board of Directors of the Michigan State Curriculum Development Association and was president of the largest county curriculum leadership group in Michigan.

Crisci came to Somerville in 1958 as a teacher in the high school business education department. He was named assistant principal in 1967, and two years later left the school system to become principal of South Hunterdon Regional High School in Lambertville.

During his tenure in Somerville, Crisci was best known as coach of top-flight varsity swimming teams. He organized Somerville High's first team for competition in 1962, and went on to develop teams which won 51 consecutive meets. In 1962 he received a master's degree in secondary administration from Rutgers University. Crisci and his wife Marilyn have three children. They live at 380 Catherine Street, Somerville.

Campus violence, elective office, the prosecution of a campus revolutionary, and citations of merit from the Calif. State Senate of the Pa. House of Representatives have worked their way into the fabric of Kenneth D. Wagner's life.

A Selinsgrove native who graduated from Bloomsburg State Teachers College, married Inez Spaid, a Bloomsburg girl, and moved in 1955, to Whittier California, Wagner now teaches biology in a Los Angeles school.

Cited by the Calif. Jr. Chamber of Commerce in 1962 as one of the five outstanding men in California for his outstanding work with biology students at Manual Arts High School, Los Angeles, his community service, and his scientific work, Wagner has received several grants to pursue biological studies.

Also, both the Calif. State Senate and Pa. House of Representatives passed resolutions citing him for his work as a scientist and educator.

Gary Rupert has accepted the head basketball post at Johns Hopkins University for the 1970-71 season.

A 1958 graduate of Bloomsburg High School, Gary had been an assistant for three years to head coach Herb Magee of the Philadelphia Textile cage team.

At BSC he participated four years on both the cage and diamond squads and took to the gridiron his junior and senior years.

With the Huskies football team, he was ninth in the nation in punting and received invitations to attend camps of the Cleveland Browns of the NFL and several Canadian clubs. He decided to pass on the latter because he wanted to coach basketball.

In basketball he was an All-NAIA and All-Penna., State Conference guard on the '63 team coached by Bill Foster, the current head coach at Rutgers.

Coach Rupert taught in the Colonial School District in Plymouth Meeting for the past seven years and from 1964-67 he scouted and recruited for the Textile Rams. As frosh coach he earned a healthy 36-11 record.

In addition to his cage duties, Gary will handle the backfield on the Jay's grid team. His assignment will be strictly coaching on a full-time basis.

He received his Master's Degree in Education from Temple U. this past June.

DR. NOSSEN SPEAKER AT REGIONAL MEETING

Approximately forty of our Alumni residing in the Greater Baltimore Area attended the first meeting for that area on September 19, 1970. The meeting was held at Harford Junior College and lasted from 10:30 A. M. until 1:30 P. M., after which a luncheon was served for those attending. Mr. and Mrs. Richard V. Miller, both BSC alumni and members of the faculty at Harford served as hosts for the meeting.

Members of the College Community who attended the meeting and spoke to the alumni about current trends and changes at BSC were Dr. Robert Nosen, President; Mr. Elton Hunsinger, Associate Vice President for Student Affairs; Dr. Bruce Adams, Geography Department; Mr. James Creasy, Director of Summer Programs and Continuing Education; and, Mr. James H. Neiswender, Assistant Director of Development.

Dr. Nossen discussed the new administrative changes at the college as well as the many new programs which have been added recently. He explained the purposes of the Bloomsburg Foundation and how it will contribute to the overall academic community. The President also invited and encouraged each Alumnus to become involved in the College Community.

The Bel Air meeting was the first of approximately seventy-five regional meetings being organized by the College to keep the Alumni informed and up-to-date in college affairs.

STATE BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Dr. Robert J. Nossen, president of BSC, was present when Governor Raymond P. Shafer at Harrisburg signed into law a bill creating a statewide board of directors of the State Colleges and the Indiana University. He received a pen used in the signing.

Dr. Nossen said that the measure "is excellent and necessary" and "overdue". He believes it will provide meaningful relationships within the group and be a center for direction of these institutions.

The boards of trustees of each of the individual institutions will continue to operate as in the past although their duties will be somewhat curtailed in some areas. The state board will provide coordination and general guidelines.

There will be fifteen members of the state board and there will be three names submitted for consideration for each position. The State Secretary of Education will serve as an ex-officio member and chairman, and the board has the right to employ an executive secretary and staff.

The local educator said that this is a somewhat modified form of the set-up in New York state and is in the line with organization of state colleges followed in many states.

Dr. Nossen said he is grateful that the local board is to be continued, adding that the BSC board "has been a real source of strength to this institution."

Unless a member of the local board should be named to the state board it is expected to remain as presently constituted.

OFFER 43 COURSES FOR GRADUATES

A total of forty-three graduate courses are being offered during the first semester of the present college year at Bloomsburg State College, according to Dr. Charles Carlson, Director of Graduate Studies. This is the largest number of graduate courses offered during the regular semester of the college year.

The forty-three courses are being offered by 15 different educational departments. There are two courses in biology, two in business education, one in economics, eight in education, two in English, three in foreign languages, one in geography, seven in history, two in political science, two in psychology, one in sociology, one in speech, two in special education, four in communication disorders, five in teaching of the mentally retarded.

At the present time there are 24 full time graduate students and 341 part time graduate students enrolled at BSC, both of which are an all-time high. This increase in enrollment is largely due to more students being interested in graduate work and the addition of new degree programs on the graduate level. It is anticipated that this increased enrollment will continue as a result of the newly created graduate programs.

ARTISTS COURSE OFFERS SIX EVENTS

The 1970-71 Artists and Lecture Series at Bloomsburg State college will offer six major events during the season. A "Rock" Musical adapted very freely from Shakespeare's comedy "Twelfth Night", and called "Your Own Thing", was presented on Monday, October 26.

A real novelty will be a closed circuit television satire, "Groove Tube", which will play two days, Tuesday and Wednesday, February 2 and 3. This video taped show satirizes the television industry and programs, and is constantly updated.

On Monday, February 15, Julian Bacon will play a program of lute and guitar music ranging from 16th century music to modern folk and flamenco. Baco will stay on campus for two days conducting informal sessions with students and attending various classes on Tuesday, February 16.

Another special program follows almost immediately when the Erich Hawkins dance company begins a three day artist in residence series with visits to classes, demonstrations lecture, master dance classes with a final event a full evening's dance program. Hawkins is tentatively scheduled for February 17, 18, and 19th. This program is under the sponsorship of the National Foundation of the Arts and the Pennsylvania Council for the Arts. A final date will be set early in the first semester.

The performance on March 7, on a Sunday afternoon of the Eastman Philharmonia, a symphony orchestra, will realize a dream of the Committee to present a full symphonic concert in Haas Auditorium. The symphony is made up of students from the Eastman School of Music.

At least two more events, one of which will feature a leading lecturer, will be announced during the fall semester.

Attention is called to the cooperating musical program of the Bloomsburg Civic Music which so far has signed a musical revue program, "Set to Music," featuring a troupe in highlights of the musical stage. In the Spring the Association had signed the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra. The Community Government Association helps to subsidize this program and tickets are available to students and faculty. Two more major musical events will be announced in October. events will be announced in October.

Varied musical programs are offered by college Concert Choir, Concert Band, Harmonettes, Studio Band, Madrigal Singers, and Men's Glee Club.

All in all, a varied artists and lecture program covering musical comedy, symphony, soloists, events of public interest, and an innovation closed circuit touring television, makes up the new season at Bloomsburg State College.

UDALL ADDRESSES CONFERENCE

Former Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall was the speaker at the general session of the fourth Annual Conference for Teachers held at BSC on Saturday, October 24. He issued a call for a new set of values to overlay the old set regarding the earth's environment, thinking of it in its totality in relation to all of man's activities.

Udall is now visiting professor of environmental humanism at Yale University and head of Overview Group, an agency interested solely in environmental problems.

PROPOSED CHANGE IN ALUMNI DUES

At the meeting of the Board of Directors on Alumni Day, it was voted to raise the annual dues from $2.00 to $5.00, subject to approval by the General Association on Alumni Day, 1971.

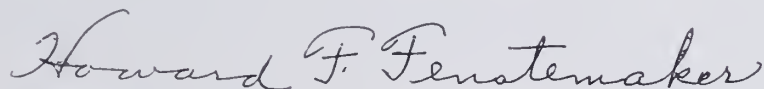

This has been made necessary because the money set aside as dues has been insufficient to pay the costs of printing the Quarterly and mailing it to all of the 11,000 graduates of whom we have the correct addresses. These expenses also include the salary of an office secretary, postage for other mailings, telephone and dues to the Pennsylvania Association of Teachers College Alumni.

For many years the College has paid the bill for the Alumni Luncheon. We have been informed that the College will no longer be able to do so. At the Director's meeting held Saturday, October 17, it was decided that the Alumni Association will pay the bill. All those who present membership cards will be admitted free to the luncheon.

We invite comments from the Alumni, expressing approval or disapproval of this policy.

The Bloomsburg Foundation is in the early stages of organization. This involves an appeal for funds from the Alumni. It is obvious that two appeals cannot be made concurrently. Only one appeal is practicable, either the Foundation or the Association, through the Loyalty Fund, must be the collecting agency. It has been agreed that, for the time being, the Association will be the collecting agency, and that the requests for contributions to the Loyalty Fund will continue.

We invite your comments.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES, BLOOMSBURG STATE COLLEGE

I am sure that most of you already know that Mr. James Neiswender assumed responsibilities, on a part-time basis, during this past summer associated with alumni activities. He has continued to be active in the general area of college-alumni relations. To accomplish his first objective, that of advising the alumni on what is happening at the college, he has been organizing regional meetings in approximately 60 geographic areas throughout Pennsylvania and adjoining states. He and I, and, frequently other persons from the college community, have enjoyed the opportunity to meet with interested graduates. The response to these meetings thus far has been most gratifying, and we're looking forward to those gatherings which have been scheduled during the coming months. The role of the alumni in the college community is a vital one, and at each of our meetings, graduates have expressed interest in participating actively towards the welfare of the college. Jim is now working on programs designed to provide interested alumni opportunity to aid in college development. Do not hesitate to write directly to him if you have ideas or wish to organize or participate in a regional gathering.

This summer we plan to initiate an Alumni-Faculty Vacation. The itinerary includes San Juan, Puerto Rico, where those participating will be spending six nights and seven days at the fabulous El San Juan Hotel. The flight is scheduled to depart from the Philadelphia Airport on June 13th, returning to Philadelphia on June 19th, at a cost of $275.00 per person. Please, again, direct your inquiries to Mr. James Neiswender, who will be most pleased to forward a brochure or other information.

In keeping with the reorganization started last year, the college has now added its fourth Vice-President, Dr. Don B. Springman, who will be primarily concerned with administrative services. Dr. Springman is an experienced administrator, coming to us from Cleveland State University, where he held the position Dean for Special Programs. His appointment will provide one more means to assure the smooth and efficient operation of the total college program.

We cannot, unfortunately, yet make specific plans for enrollment for the 1971-72 academic year because of budget uncertainties. Demand for inclusion in our entering class, however, continues very strong, and in fact, is running well ahead of last year. The college hopes to be able to increase its enrollment of community college transfers. When the fiscal matters are settled, hopefully in the near future, the college will again be able to make specific plans to assure full utilization of its available facilities. These facilities, by the way, continue to improve; work is progressing very rapidly on the Field House located on the new campus site; excavation has been completed and mechanicals are being installed for the Administration Building; and the new multi-level Parking Lot at the corner of East 2nd and Penn has been progressing, despite the extreme cold weather during the latter part of January and early February.

As we continue to meet with regional groups, I certainly hope to have an opportunity to see and speak with each of you.

Robert Nossen

S. degree in special education; Mrs. Dorothy Messner, Hershey, B.S. degree in secondary education; and Deborah Rhodes, R.D. 2, Shamokin, B.S. degree in secondary education; Mrs. Cynthia Basta, Allentown, B.S. degree in elementary education.

Magna Cum Laude (3.60-3.74). Carl Magee, 1418 Carlyn St., Philadelphia, B.S. degree in secondary education; and Mrs. Norma Reed, R.D. 5, Danville, B.S. degree in elementary education.

Cum Laude (3.50-3.59). Zane Dennis R.D. 1, Shickshinny, B.S. degree in secondary education; Beverly Donchez, 1608 Spring St., Bethlehem, B.S. degree in business education; Norman Foster, 575 Broad St., Nescopeck, B.S. degree in secondary education; William Hyde, Jr., R.D. 3, Bloomsburg, B.S. degree in secondary education, Mrs. Marion Marks, 509 E. 3rd St., Nescopeck, B.S. degree in elementary education; Mrs. Martha Seymour, 220 E. 13th St., Bloomsburg, B.S. degree in secondary education; Mrs. Nancy Sherlock Husted, R.D. 1, Port Royal, B.S. degree in elementary education; and Keith Wagner, R. D. 1, Herndon, B.S. degree in elementary education;

Of the 170 undergraduate students, 22 are graduating in business education, 69 in elementary education, 43 in secondary education, 11 in special education, and 25 in arts and sciences. The 22 graduate students will all receive the Master of Education degree.

Dr. Edson J. Drake, Dean of the School of Arts and Sciences, delivered the address at the commencement exercises. His address was entitled "The Idea of a College."

Dr. Drake joined the BSC faculty in June, 1964 as Associate Professor of History. In August, 1969 he was named Director of the Division of Arts and Sciences, replacing Dr. Alden Buker who resigned from the faculty to accept a similar position at the Robert Morris College in Pittsburgh. Under the new organizational structure, which became effective on September 1, 1970, Dr. Drake was named to his present position.

A native of Philadelphia, New York, he earned his Bachelor of Arts degree at the University of Notre Dame and both his Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy degrees from Georgetown University.

Prior to coming to Bloomsburg, he had been associated with school systems in Wheaton, Maryland and Belleville, New York and had served as an Assistant Professor of Air Science and tactics at the College of St. Thomas, St. Paul, Minnesota.

From 1942 to 1953, he was a United States Air Force officer and a psychological Warfare officer.

The Commencement address delivered by Dr. Drake follows:

"A college is government under law, not of men. If the latter were true, we would have either despotism or anarchy, each of which is equally abhorrent and ultimately self-destructive. College law may be couched in such euphemistic terms as statements of policy or suggested guidelines, but the essential purpose and characteristics of law remain, which, by dictionary definition, is a rule of conduct, recognized by custom or decreed by formal enactment, which is considered by an authoritatively constituted group as binding upon its members. It is conceived in, and dedicated to, the welfare of the entire college community; or as Jeremy Bentham would have stated it, it is designed to provide the greatest good for the greatest number.

"Although college is a government under law, it by its very nature cannot be a pure democracy since students outnumber the faculty and administration, 15 to 1, and thus college would become a government of, by, and for the students — with hopefully the rights of the faculty and administration guaranteed. But to accept this concept of a college as a pure democracy would be to deny that faculty and administration have any essential role in the existence of a college.

Dual Concept

"Instead, a college must be a participatory democracy in which all its members are guaranteed an equitable voice. In this idea of a college as a government under law and functioning as a participatory democracy, we have a viable institution that defines the rights and responsibilities of its members and provides the mechanisms for peaceful and orderly change as change is desired or needed.

"When one thus considers the dual concept of a college as a community of scholars and a government under law, it becomes manifest that violence and revolution, and even campus unrest, are antithetical to it. Cries of 'pigs on campus' and taunts of 'Fascist' or 'Communist' are not rational and hence, not scholarly; the bombing of campus buildings and the barricading of classrooms are neither rational nor legal. Less dramatically the professor who refused to carry out his assigned duties and the student who aids or abets him are likewise acting neither rationally or legally.

"A college is also a functional society composed of students, faculty, and administration; each with a function to perform for the common good of all. Reduced to the most elementary terms, the primary function of the student is to learn; the faculty, to teach; and the administration, to manage or supervise. These three functional groups are thus interdependent and, like the leaves of a shamrock, component parts of the whole. To conceive of a college as an arena in which students are pitted against faculty and both are locked in mortal combat, with the administration, is to deny any understanding of the nature of a college.

"Lastly, I would emphasize the idea of a college as a community of men. Until now one might have been tempted to conclude that a college is an Utopian society in which a group of scholars, disciplined solely by their intellects, divided their labors, under just government, for the common good. The fallacy in such a conclusion would be that a college is a community for men, who, by their very nature, are physical, emotional, and spiritual beings, as well as intellectual.

"This fourfold nature of man is not in perfect balance; nor is man himself perfect. Furthermore, each man is unique unto himself, or as Sir Thomas Browne so aptly expressed this phenomenon, 'It is the common wonder of all men, how among so many millions of faces there should be none alike.' And so it is with the opinions which men hold, or, as Montaigne phrased it, 'There never was in the world two opinions alike, no more than two hairs or two grains, the most universal quality is diversity.'

"This quality of diversity thus becomes the fourth dimension in the idea of a college. This diversity must be recognized, must be welcomed, and must be utilized to its fullest extent to better attain the truth which is our common objective."

BLOOMSBURG FOUNDATION ORGANIZATION

Members of the Bloomsburg Foundation, Inc. of Bloomsburg State College held their first meeting. Dr. Robert J. Nossen, President of the Foundation, discussed the purposes of the Foundation as well as its goals and operating procedures.

According to the by laws, the membership of the Corporation shall consist of those individuals who occupy the following positions: President of the College, Dr. Robert J. Nossen; Associate Vice President for Student Affairs, Elton Hunsinger; Business Manager of the College, Paul G. Martin; two members of the Board of Trustees, William A. Lank and William E. Booth; two faculty members selected by the faculty, Dr. Bruce E. Adams and Dr. Frank Radice; the President of the Senior Class, William Cluley; the President of the Junior Class, Alexander Horvath; the President of the Sophomore Class, Michael Sopthroth; a representative of the Freshman Class, George W. Meschter; two Alumni representatives selected by the Alumni Association, Earl A. Gehrig and Millard Ludwig; the Vice President and Dean of the Faculties, Dr. John A. Hoch; and Associate Vice President for Development and External Affairs, Boyd F. Buckingham.

Following the meeting of the Corporation, the board of directors convened for the election of officers and its first business meeting. Membership of the Board of Directors consists of the following: President of Bloomsburg State College, Dr. Robert J. Nossen; two representatives of the College Board of Trustees, William A. Lank and William E. Booth; a faculty representative, Dr. Frank Radice; a representative of the Alumni Association, Earl Gehrig; the Business Manager of the College, Paul G. The Foundation has been designed to assist the college in various functions for which either state funds should not or cannot be used, the Foundation will significantly assist the college in carrying out its full education mission.

TIFFANY PANEL GIFT TO COLLEGE

A handsome panel of Tiffany Glass, a gift of the Bakless Family, has been recently installed in the lower foyer of the Bakless Center for the Humanities. A specially designed mounting constructed by Charles Tyson provides fluorescent illumination of the glass. The stained glass represents a fitting adornment since Professor O. H. Bakeless in 1920 solicited $25,000 from students, faculty, and other donors to purchase the Tiffany stained glass windows, formerly installed in Waller and Noetting Halls, and removed and replaced in the Andrus Library in 1966.

Louis Comfort Tiffany (1848-1933) was a major innovator in stained glass design, and according to Dr. Percival R. Roberts III, Chairman of the Art Department at Bloomsburg State College, began his career as a painter, the training of which permitted him to think and design in terms of plastic forms, color and texture. Tiffany experimented widely with various effects. His own romantic originality combined with his almost sensuous regard for the preciousness of his medium, glass and its decoration, all contribute to the remarkable effectiveness of his work — the incidental effects and cases — glass techniques for which he is famous.

The splendid specimen given to the college exhibits all these fine qualities, the multi-hued layers of stained glass, the three dimensional effect of depth, the ripple glass and streaked color create an almost mystical or, by today's optical standards, psychedelic effect. Dr. Roberts, who teaches American Art History, finds Tiffany convenient to lecture on, since stylistically and historically he represents somewhat of a bridge between the high Victorian tastes of his day and the more avant-garde tendencies found in the emerging organic forms of the Art Nouveau with perhaps some traces of inspiration from the Orient.

Dr. Roberts finds the subtle hues, achieved by the use of copper to produce a soft luster, and the gentle forms a pleasure to study. The overall quality he says is "not assertative, it doesn't dazzle but rather moves the viewer with its diffused iridescence." The total mood projected is one of quietude without glaring, completely in harmony with nature and the contemplative spirit one would expect in a Humanities' Hall.

COLLEGE SENATE

The College Senate recently established at Bloomsburg State College is a formal step by which faculty and students participate in the development of college policies.

Serving as president is George A. Turner, assistant professor of history; vice president, Dr. Robert Rosholt, chairman, Political Science Department; and secretary Mary Tolan, assistant dean of Students. There are seventy-four members of the Senate consisting of sixty faculty, twelve students, with President Nossen and Vice President Hoch at ex-officio members. Previously, faculty and student involvement in contributing to college governance existed in a committee structure.

The primary purpose of the Senate is to facilitate the development and maintenance of viable relationships, "among the Board of Trustees, the President, the other administrative officers, the Faculty and the Student Body of Bloomsburg State College. Through the attainment of this primary purpose it is intended that the administrative officers of the college and the board of trustees may receive a steady flow of information concerning campus opinions, that policy decisions by the board of trustees, the President and other administrative officials may be quickly and clearly presented to all segments of the college population, and that each segment through its elected representative may influence changes in policy or the formulation of new policy."

Work on the constitution for the Senate began a few years ago by the Committee on Professional Affairs. Dr. Robert Warren chaired a subcommittee of faculty, students, and administrators which prepared the Senate constitution. The document was approved in May of this year by the faculty, students, and the board of trustees.

APPLICATIONS DISTRIBUTED

The Office of Admissions at Bloomsburg State College has distributed over 5,000 applications for the Spring Semester, 5,000 applications for the Spring and Fall semester 1971. It is anticipated before the 1971 enrollment quotas are reached, 12,000 applications will be sent to prospective candidates. Of the total estimated 12,000 applications distributed, the Office of Admissions expects to receive in excess of 5,000 completed applications.

Admission to Bloomsburg State College is determined by the applicant's academic and personal qualifications. Decisions are reached without regard to race, color, creed, or national origin.

Applicants must be graduates of or seniors in accredited secondary schools or must have secondary school equivalency as determined by the Credentials Evaluation Division of the Pennsylvania Department of Education.

Acceptance is determined by the Office of Admissions upon evaluation of secondary school preparation, achievement, rank in class, standardized testing, personal characteristics, and institutional capacity.

Those candidates whose credentials present the best likelihood for experiencing success in an academic college program are offered admission.

Application materials and instructions for submitting the application may be secured by writing the Director of Admissions.

A distinguished educator who was born in Mauch Chunk recently observed her 50th year of teaching and was the guest of honor at a party attended by 25 friends and associates. Dr. Margaret Bittner Parks, a graduate of the 1919 class of Mauch Chunk High School, was the guest of Mrs. Dorothy Fasanelle, Phillipsport, N. Y., who entertained, Oct. 3 at her home in the Catskill Mountains.

Dr. Parke is a graduate of Pennsylvania State University Teacher's College and Columbia University, where she received her doctor's degree. In addition, she was the recipient of an honorary degree from State College.

Dr. Parke has taught at all levels of the school system - elementary, secondary and college.

Margaret Parke started teaching in a rural school in Rockport, Pa.; immediately after graduating from high school taught grades 3 and 4 in Packerton, grades 7 and 8 in Doylestown. She went to New York State in 1928 to attend Columbia University to major in guidance, taught in the Washington Junior High School in Mt. Vernon, from which she moved to the East Chester High School, where she pioneered for eight years in developing guidance and research systems for a small school system.

She later moved to New York City. In the research bureaus of the New York City Public School system, she conducted numerous research projects, developed tests and wrote bulletins for teachers, chiefly in the field of language arts.

In 1951 Dr. Parke went to Brooklyn College where she chaired a committee of teachers and supervisors of student teachers in elementary education. Later she developed graduate programs for teachers of reading and the language arts and became advisor of these programs, a post which she now holds.

Dr. Parke's record is found in Who's Who of American Women, Leaders in Education, International Biography, and other compilations of note. She was admitted to the honorary societies of Pi Lambda Theta and Kappa Delta Pi and received a Fulbright Grant in 1960 to lecture in Australia, the Philippines and Taiwan.

Her books for parents and young children, published by Grosset and Dunlap, have been widely circulated in the United States and in some other English speaking countries. They include Young Reader's Picture Dictionary in five different editions, My First Book to Read, My Second Book to Read, You Can Teach Your Child to Read, Practice Workbooks in Writing, I, II, III. Getting to Know Australia was written for older children.

Dr. Parke is active in world, national, state and city organizations. She participated in the UK Reading Conference in England in 1969 and chaired a section of the World Reading Conference in Australia in 1970.

The educator is currently on the executive board of the Woman's Press Club of New York City and the New York State organization of College English educators. She is a vice president of the New York Society for the Experimental Study of Education and has been elected to serve on the Elementary Committee on the National Council of Teachers of English.

Dr. Parke resides at 1655 Flatbush Ave., A-1810, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Dr. David N. Newbury, 4852 Iowa Drive, Warren, Michigan 48092, has recently co-authored a book which relates teacher contract negotiations to effective learning for school children. The book is entitled, "Teacher Negotiations: A Guide for Bargaining Teams." The guide was written in collaboration with Dr. William C. Miller, who, like Newbury, is a Detroit area school administrator.

The book is considered unique in educational circles since it is one of the first to attempt to connect the growing practice of teacher bargaining with research on effective learning of students. It is published by the Parker Division of Prentice-Hall Publishers and is aimed at the national market of public and college educators, as well as school board members, who are concerned with teacher negotiations.

Newbury has previously published articles on such topics as the history of iron mining at Danville, Penna., federal aid to education, science education, dropout prevention, and vocational education.

After military service in Korea and Japan he completed a Master's Degree at Bucknell University in 1956. A doctorate in administration and curriculum development was earned at Wayne State University in 1967.

Newbury is currently Assistant Superintendent of Schools in Hazel Park, Michigan, a suburban community of 30,000 residents. He began teaching there in 1956 and has served as Science Director and Curriculum Director or before being appointed Assistant Superintendent. Dr. Newbury has served on the Board of Directors of the Michigan State Curriculum Development Association and was president of the largest county curriculum leadership group in Michigan.

HOUK HONORED

Russell Houk, Athletic Director and Wrestling Coach at Bloomsburg State College for the past fourteen years, received international recognition when he was elected by the United States Olympic Wrestling Committee to serve as manager of the freestyle wrestling team for the 1972 Olympics to be held in Munich, Germany.

As a manager, Houk will serve as administrator for the team, arranging all preparations including travel, meals, lodging, and clothing. He is responsible for communications between teams and issues protests of matches, if necessary.

In his thirteen previous years at the helm of BSC, Houk has amassed an enviable record of 131 wins, 26 losses, and 3 ties. He has won three National NAIA team titles, five Pennsylvania Conference Championships, and one Wilkes Open Tournament Title. He was named NAIA Coach of the Year in 1960-61, 1962-63, 1964-65.

WHY A WILL?

Many alumni have asked why Bloomsburg State College is interested in informing them about wills and estate planning. There are two simple answers to that question.

First, Bloomsburg State College is an educational institution, and our primary purpose is to educate. The Bloomsburg State College experience has already provided our alumnae with their basic education, and we are concerned with their continuing education in matters which relate to their personal well-being and that of their loved ones.

A recent survey in the United States came up with some interesting facts about estate planning:

1. Seven out of every adults die intestate (without a valid will)
2. Less than 50 per cent of those with estates of $60,000 or more have a will.

I read recently about a prominent businessman in New York who died without a will. His estate was valued at about $25 million. The costs and taxes totaled almost $20 million, thus leaving his family with only 20 per cent of his estate.

Many of you have Catherine Marshall's book "TO LIVE AGAIN" in which she says, "Peter, to the surprise of all who had known him well, had left no will. If only he had known how much it left to be taken care of."

Only through a valid will are you enabled to:

1. Decide who is to receive your property and how
2. Choose the organization or person you wish to supervise the settlement of your estate
3. Lessen the amount of Federal estate tax your estate will have to pay
4. Name the person you wish to serve as guardian of your minor children
5. Make specific provisions for the Bloomsburg Foundation or other charitable organizations

Even those who have wills sometimes do not spend enough thought and time in planning for something which is so important. For example, Benjamin Franklin, the wise leader of early America, left an endowment to the city of Philadelphia, which now amounts to over $1 million. But Ben stipulated in his will that the money would be used to buy watering troughs for horses. Of the adults in the United States today who have wills, eight out of ten provide for outright distribution of their estates; for example, leaving everything to spouse who in turn leaves all assets to children. This, of course, is the most costly way of leaving assets to loved ones.

So you see wills and estate planning are important to Bloomsburg State College because by education we help others and by bequests others help Bloomsburg State College.

Remember--your will is probably the most important, single document you will ever be called upon to sign. Be sure it is prepared the right way, the best way, the only way--by your attorney.

Have you made your will?

Did you remember Bloomsburg State College?

IMPROVED FACILITY

An improved facility for student activities was opened this summer in the former College Commons. This temporary student union building will serve the college community until a new student center is completed in the area between Waller Hall and Montour Residence Hall.

For nearly two decades, the Husky Lounge in Waller Hall had served as the center of student activities. However, as the student enrollment grew steadily during the past decade, it became apparent that a completely new and specially designed structure would be needed to accommodate a college enrollment of 5,600 - 6,000.

When plans were designed for a new student center, the old Husky Lounge occupied part of the site which will be needed for construction. The student union board immediately sought temporary headquarters to program student activities, and the former College Commons, built in 1956, became available when Scranton Commons was completed in March, 1970. The former Commons provides approximately twice the area which was available in the Husky Lounge.

The temporary student union is divided into four areas: the snack bar, a multi-purpose area, a billiard area with five tables, and a combination television, reading, and game lounge. Also included are an information center, offices for the student union board and the Director of Student Activities, Jack Mulka.

Social events, such as movies, are among the featured activities held weekly in the temporary union. The Union is open daily from 7:00 a.m. until midnight and until 1:00 a.m. each Friday and Saturday.

GRADUATE PROGRAM

The Master of Education degree at Bloomsburg State College is now offered in the following areas: Biology, Business Education, Communication Disorders, Chemistry, Physics, Physical Science, Elementary Education, English, Foreign Language (French, Spanish), History, Reading, Social Studies (History, Political Science, Geography), Special Education with emphasis on Mental Retardation, and Speech (Theatre or Public Address.)

During the fall of 1968 the first Master of Arts degree program offered by Bloomsburg State College was instituted in the field of history. Other departments such as English, psychology, geography and economics, will follow suit and are in various stages in preparing similar proposals.

The department of biology will be the first to offer a Master of Science degree. Their proposal is on the verge of completion and should be acted upon during this academic year. Other science departments are expected to follow with similar programs. In future years, Bloomsburg State College anticipates a Master of Science degree in geology.

The department of psychology is in the process of preparing a proposed curriculum designed to prepare school psychologists. A future program designed to prepare guidance counselors is also anticipated.

Graduate programs are being established as rapidly as staff, resources, and facilities will permit, according to Dr. Charles Carlson, Dean of Graduate Studies. The over-all growth of the college encourages additional degree programs on the graduate level.

INCREASE IN TUITION

The Board of Trustees of Bloomsburg State College, in its regular monthly meeting held recently, approved an increase in the basic fee paid by students from the present $350 to $450, an increase of $100 per year; subsequently this fee increase has been approved by Sate Secretary of Education. Increase is in keeping with action previously taken by a majority of the Boards of Trustees of the thirteen State Colleges and Indiana University of Pennsylvania, and is essential in assuring the funds necessary to balance the operating budget of the College for the 1969-1970 fiscal year.

The $100 fee increase for the 1969-1970 college year will be paid by the students of Bloomsburg State College in the Basic Fee payment for the Second Semester, which began January 26, 1970. Out-of-state students, currently paying $25 per credit hour, will be charged $30 per credit hour; graduate students will have an increase from $20 to $25 per credit hour, and undergraduate fees for part-time students will be increased from the present $15 to $18 per credit hour. Subsequent semesters, however, will be charged at the $50 per semester increase rate.

At its meeting on October 24, 1969, the Board of Trustees had delayed action on the passage of a fee increase, pending further study. During the intervening weeks, a thorough investigation for the rationale of a fee increase was made, exploring various possibilities for avoiding it. On November 10, 1969, Board President William A. Lank and President Robert J. Nossen met with College Council members to review with them the current financial status of the College, pointing out that the passage of the fee increase at Bloomsburg was essential to the current and future operation of the College.

A report from the College Business Manager showed that, without the increase in fees, the College would be unable to meet its fiscal responsibilities for 1969-1970. The report pointed out that even though every step had been taken to curtail expenses to provide reserve funds for necessary items of instruction and operation, a sufficient amount did not exist to cover minimal operation for the balance of the academic year without the above-mentioned fee increase.

It is pertinent to note that, cutbacks notwithstanding, support of higher education within the Commonwealth has risen over the past years more than 450%, and the budget figure for the current year will well exceed six hundred million dollars. With the fee increase, the student share of operating costs at Bloomsburg, exclusive of capital construction, will approximate a little more than 25%. Part of this amount is also covered by State Scholarships and other financial aids.

Following the November 21, 1969 meeting, Mr. Lank stated, "The Board of Trustees of Bloomsburg State College regrets the necessity for such action, but it nevertheless, bears the responsibility to the College in providing a sound fiscal operation."

A recent survey made by the Office of Institutional Research of the Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges disclosed that tuition charges at the nation's major public colleges and universities rose this year at a record rate of 16.5%. It pointed out that tuition and fees at 113 institutions belonging to the National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges registered the 16.5% hike and 261 institutions affiliated with the American Association of State Colleges and Universities showed a 14% rise in these charges. Of the total of 405 institutions and components of systems of institutions reporting to the two national associations in this year's survey, all but 52 reported raising at least one charge in the last twelve months.

THIRTEENTH YEAR FOR ARA

ARA School and College Services is in its 13th year of dining service to the students, faculty and college community at Bloomsburg State College.

After serving in the old College Commons for 12 years, ARA moved into the new Scranton Commons in March of 1970. At the present time approximately 4,750 meals are served to college students each day. In addition to this, ARA provides dining service for many special events throughout the year some of which include up to 1,000 persons. Special dinners are also provided for the students throughout the college year for such events as Circus Night, St. Louis Night, Dixie Land Night, Italian Night, Western Barbecue Night, plus coffee breaks during exam periods.

The School and College Service Division currently provides dining services for over 300 schools throughout the United States.

CHAPLAIN APPOINTED

The Rev. Jay Rochelle has been called by seven local Protestant churches and the Central Pennsylvania Synod of the Lutheran Church in America to be the first protestant chaplain of the Bloomsburg State College.

The local churches who have worked over the past two years in bringing this to fruition are: First Presbyterian Church, St. Paul's Episcopal Church, First Baptist Church, Wesley United Methodist Church, Good Shepherd United Methodist Church, Trinity Evangelical and Reformed Church, St. Matthew Lutheran Church.

GERMAN IN AUSTRIA

Teachers of German, graduate and undergraduate students are invited to join the truly excellent German language program at Graz, Austria which operates with Dr. Hans K. Gunther of the BSC faculty as its Resident Director. The beginning, intermediate and advanced courses, together with co-curricular activities, provide total and intensive exposure to undiluted German in the native environment of the second largest city in Austria in the picturesque Steiermark. Transfer credits are granted by BSC to those who pass the examinations and earn a certificate or diploma. High school seniors seriously interested in the language are welcome to apply. So are adults who wish to widen their cultural and human horizons by learning another language or improving their competence. The seven-week program costs $690. For full details, booklet and application forms, contact Dr. Hans K. Gunther, Box 165, BSC.

Alumni are urged to inform the Alumni Office when they change their address. Mail that is returned costs ten cents per piece. The last bill for returns was $50, which means that 500 pieces of mail were returned. This is money going down the drain. Please help us to save money, so that it can be used for more worthy purposes.

ALUMNI DAY

SATURDAY, APRIL 24, 1971

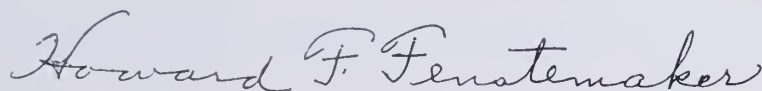

The Alumni Day Week-end will be filled with activities, of which we do not have complete information at this time. The Alumni Letter will give the complete program of activities. We hope that many Alumni will take advantage of them.

Alumni graduating before 1921 are invited to be the guest of the Alumni Association at the dinner honoring the class of 1921, the fifty-year class. Those bringing guests are requested to pay for the guest's dinner. It is very important that every one attending the 50-year dinner and the Alumni Luncheon should make reservations by April 15, in order that necessary arrangements may be made.

In previous years, the presentation of an Alumni dues card has admitted the bearer to the Alumni Luncheon. The College has paid the bill. Because of budget limitations, the College is unable to pay the bill this year. This year all Alumni will be asked to pay for their luncheon. We are hoping that a different arrangement may be made next year. This may be possible, if the Association votes to raise the dues to five dollars. We have noted that practically all the Colleges of which we have information, the Alumni pay for the Alumni Luncheon.

There have been many changes on the Campus. We hope that you will come back and see what has been going on.

We shall be expecting you on Alumni Day!

DISTINGUISHED SERVICE AWARD — Miss Julia Gregg Brill and her brother, Col. Clinton B. F. Brill, were recipients of the Distinguished Service Award given by the Bloomsburg State College Alumni Association and presented at the annual luncheon by Dr. Kimber Kuster (right).

Once again we reach the end of the academic year, and once again we can with some degree of calm review a series of academic and administrative issues that, critical or not, seemed so at the time. No one at the college enjoys having internal matters made the subject of public media. Yet in a world dominated by the rapidity of communication, such is virtually inevitable.

In spite of difficulties in some areas, we have had a good year. The Senate for the first time convened and brought together faculty, students, and administrators to share a role in the governing process. Initially, it reviewed the myriad details and concerns that make up an academic community; it recommended policies from "moonlighting" to plagiarism; it established standing committees to assure orderly procedures for future operation.

Just this month we received notice of approval for our program leading to the M.S. in Biology. We have continued to review our curricular patterns, broaden general education requirements, and consider each of our course offerings. We shall continue for some time with this phase of our operation, establishing objectives, working to improve classroom teaching, keeping offerings current and meaningful, and carefully selecting those areas through which we might fulfill our responsibilities. We initiated, too, a program of Continuing Education, and though modest at present, it should become of increasing concern through the years ahead.

Perhaps the best way to assess the end of an academic year is to ask ourselves a number of questions. The following are some that many of us throughout the profession are struggling with.

How can we make intelligible to young people today the unbelievable and still rapidly increasing sum of human knowledge? What methods can yet be devised for organizing, storing, and transmitting human knowledge? When a scientist, of the stature of Costeau estimates that our oceans face possible extinction with fifty years, and with them, the ability of man to survive, what steps towards correction of the causes must we take, and what part must the colleges and universities play in determining and executing those steps? These and other questions in all probability lead to the basic question: What kind of education do we need for the balance of the seventies and on into the eighties, and how do we achieve it?

Partial answers are already apparent. We will utilize more and more work and study sequences, with less emphasis upon continuity of the program in higher education. We will rely upon short term and evening courses, grant credit for apprenticeship programs, use TV and other media. We will also be concerned with "second career" preparation as vocations will continue to change, new ones appear and old ones disappear. As for our survival, other segments of our society working together will be able to meet the challenge.

And while we are concerned for survival, let us not forget that we must retain our concern for values. We must understand the continuity of life, and therefore our touch with the past; we must remember history as group memory, and philosophy as the art and science of reflection and of probing into the unknown. We must continue our studies of the works of man, and our concern for man as man; we must not lose sight of the role of imagination so that, as Sir Philip Sidney wrote, we can explore not only what has been, what is, and what will be, but also what might have been, what should be, and what could be.

Certainly I want to offer my thanks to Mr. Howard Fenstermaker for his many years of fine service to the Association and most particularly to the Quarterly. I owe many thanks, too, to numerous others who are working to make this college a more effective institution, more capable of fulfilling its educational objectives, and more definite in what those objectives are and should be.

DISTINGUISHED SERVICE AWARDS GIVEN TWO BSC ALUMNI

A brother and sister received the Distinguished Service Awards of the Bloomsburg State College's Alumni Association at the association's annual meeting at the college on Saturday.

The recipients, the son and daughter of a former member of the faculty, were honored during the association's business meeting in Scranton Commons in the afternoon.

Honored were Col. Clinton B. F. Brill, class of 1912, nationally prominent architect and engineer, and his sister, Miss Julia Gregg Brill, class of 1910, professor emerita of English composition, Pennsylvania State University.

Their father, Prof. William Brill, became head of the department of history and civics at Bloomsburg State Normal School in 1911, and served in the capacity until within a week of his death on June 8, 1925.

The presentations of their awards was the climax of the Saturday afternoon association gathering.

All officers of the association were re-elected as follows: Howard F. Fenstermaker, Bloomsburg, president; Millard Ludwig, Millville, vice president; Col. Elwood Wagner, State College, secretary; and Earl Gehrig, Bloomsburg, treasurer. The reorganization followed at a directors meeting, a sequel to the association gathering.

Mr. Fenstermaker extended greetings and the invocation was offered by Fred W. Diehl, Danville.

William H. Cluley, president of the 1971 graduating class, presented a check to the alumni association and at the same time issued a challenge to the older alumni to "try to understand" the involvement of students today and their concern "not only on the campus but in the community."

He cited student work in the fields of pollution, special education, and efforts to "get down in the classroom" and "help with the problem."

Cluley advised, "Don't accept any person not willing to sit down and talk over the confrontation of the problem."

The Class of 1971's check was for $800, more than required for association membership. This fact and the fact that the class has also made a contribution to the Bloomsburg Hospital was lauded by Dr. Robert J. Nossen, president of the college, during his remarks later. He cited the contributions as an indication of the class's civic-mindedness.

Dr. Kimber Kuster, chairman of the association's DSA committee, replied briefly to Cluley, observing that his generation was of the "same clay" as others and that there was really not much difference in the two age groups. Dr. Kuster pointed out there had always been some problem of communication between the young and the old.

In his remarks, Dr. Nossen made special mention of the approaching retirement of Dean of Women Ella Mae Jackson, and the retirement of Howard Fenstermaker as editor of the Alumni Quarterly after forty-five years as its editor.

He told the former students of some of the activities on the campus and noted that great stress was placed on "Relevancy" today. Dr. Nossen said the college considered the "greatest relevancy to be in the integrity of the learning process" and that included moral and ethical values. He said the college "would not be a part of the 'rushing away' from those values. . ." just for the sake of "rushing."

The college will not oppose change and will seek it, he said, but it would continue with the development of "man as man — a dignified being in the scheme of things."

Dr. Kuster presented the two recipients for the DSA's and each spoke of the other's accomplishments.

Colonel Brill, a well known authority on turnpikes, thru-ways, highways, bridges, and urban materials serves as a consultant for state, national, and professional organizations throughout the world. He attended the Bloomsburg State Normal School, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Trinity College; at the latter he holds a Bachelor of Science degree.

A member of numerous engineering firms, he has long been engaged in the practice of architecture and engineering. In 1971, he assumed the presidency of Brill Engineering Corporation of New York City. The previous year he was chairman of the New York State Thruway Authority and directed a variety of engineering projects, particularly express highways in conjunction with the New Jersey, Ohio, Indiana, and Massachusetts Turnpikes; The Garden State, Sunshine State, and Taconic Parkways; and the New York State Thruway.

In past associations with other consultants as well as his own, Colonel Brill has participated in such well known projects as Miami (Fla.) North - South Expressway, Columbus (Ohio) Outerbelt, remodeling of New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art, original runway and terminal design for New York International Airport, and construction of all permanent buildings for the New York World's Fair in 1939. As a Public Works Administration Engineer from 1934 to 1936, he worked on New York's Triborough Bridge and Lincoln Tunnel.

With the U.S. Army Engineers in the European Theatre in World War II, Colonel Brill was in charge of all general construction, including depots for ammunition and explosives, gasoline quartermaster and engineer supplies. He also supervised building of forward landing strips, evacuation, hospitals, and front-line surgical stations.

During the height of his career, Colonel Brill held licenses in eight states as a registered professional engineer, was licensed to practice architecture in five states, and held both architect's and engineer's licenses in New York, New Jersey and Massachusetts. He has been affiliated with numerous technical and professional organizations related to his profession.

Miss Julia Gregg Brill attended Sunbury High School prior to her enrollment at Bloomsburg State Normal School. She continued her education to earn a Bachelor of Arts degree in classical languages in 1921 from The Pennsylvania State University, and a Master of Arts degree in English and American Literature from the same institution in 1927.

Before her appointment to the faculty of the University in 1924, she taught in the public schools of Luzerne County, at Town Hill and Huntington Mills. She later taught at Bloomsburg High School.

As a result of serving on the faculty at Penn State for thirty years, retiring in 1954, and her continued interest in that institution, she was named Penn State Woman of the Year in 1958.

During those 30 years, she was friend and counselor to hundreds of students, serving as vocational counselor of women students in the College of the Liberal Arts, and assisting many undergraduates in extra-curricular activities. She also was adviser to and continues as an active alumna of her sorority, Alpha Chi Omega. Her interest is Phi Kappa Phi, scholastic honor society, has been constant.

When the Penn State Alumni Association was reorganized in 1930, she was named to its first executive board. She served for 20 years on the Board, then retired briefly, and again served on the Board. She has been vice president of the Association and president of the Penn State Alumnae Club of Centre County and has served as a member of the Board of Directors of the Penn State Foundation.

At the general session, the report of Boyd H. Buckingham, of the nominating committee, was accepted, electing to the board of directors: Miss Elizabeth Hubler, class of '31; Mrs. Jean Foster, class of '66; Frank Galinski, class of '52; Charlotte McKenehnie, class of '35 and Mrs. Verna Jones, class of '36.

ALUMNI DAY

Many "Old Grads" of Bloomsburg State College came back as Alumni Weekend activities got underway Friday, April 23, at the "Friendly College on the Hill."

The Alumni Association played host Friday evening to the Class of 1921, the Fiftieth Reunion Class.

In addition, the classes of 1906, 1911, and 1916 were guests of the association at a dinner in Scranton Commons, on Friday evening.

Special class dinners and activities were held Saturday evening by the classes of '36, '41, '56, '61 and '66. On Saturday morning at nine, an informal session for alumni and faculty was held in the Waller Hall Lounge and lobby.

From ten-thirty till noon, members of the faculty discussed "Fiscal Problems of Our Commonwealth" in a panel presentation.

At twelve-thirty, luncheon for all alumni was held in the Commons, followed by the annual business meeting. Highlight of the session was the presentation of two distinguished service awards.

Open house in all residence halls followed from three to five. Social hours and special dinners, scheduled by the classes in reunion, began at five.

At nine Saturday night, the Presidents Ball held in two dancing areas in the Commons. "The Train" furnished "music" for students and recent grads in the Blue Room, while a slower tempo was provided for faculty and alumni in the Gold Room.

Mrs. Harry Cole, Bloomsburg, was chairman of the honored 50-year class; Mrs. Fred W. Diehl, Danville, chairman of the class of 1911, and Mrs. Russell Burrus, Orangeville R. D. 2, chairman of the class of 1911.

AWARDS DAY

Dr. Milton M. Klein, Professor of History, University of Tennessee, delivered the keynote address at the Annual Awards Day Convocation at Bloomsburg State College held Sunday, April 25, in Haas Center for the Arts.

The noted scholar, humanist, administrator, and outstanding classroom teacher spoke on "A Plea for Talent."

Welcoming remarks to the honored 1971 January, May and August graduates and their parents and friends were given by John S. Mulka, Director of Student Activities.

The thirty-two recipients of Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities certificates and the twenty-one recipients of Service Keys were acknowledged by Elton Hunsinger, Associate Vice President for Student Affairs.

Lifetime Athletic Passes were presented by Russell Houk, Director of Athletics. Fifteen special scholarships were awarded to underclassmen by Robert Duncan, Director of Financial Aid. Forty-six students were recognized for their academic achievements by Dr. John A. Hoch, vice President and Dean of the Faculties.

William A. Lank, President, Board of Trustees, presented certificates of appreciation to Howard S. Fernsler, former member of the Board of Trustees and Dean Jackson, Dean of Women, who retired at the end of the current college year. Dr. Robert J. Nossen, President, delivered the congratulatory remarks, and following Dr. Klein's address, Kappa Kappa Psi fraternity gave a musical presentation.

Service Keys are given for "outstanding service to 10 per cent or less of the senior class who accumulate a minimum of 20 points for participation in various activities during their four years of college." This is the highest award given by the college community.

Those receiving this award were: Beverly Boston, Warminster; Beverly Conchez, Bethlehem; Penny Faux, Bloomsburg; Donna Harper, Troy; Gayle Thorpe, Scranton; James Berkeiser, Berwick; William Cluley, Upper Darby; Anita DeLance, Shenandoah; Susan Dieffenderfer, Nisbet; Thomas Funk, Bloomsburg; Mike Hock, Bloomsburg; Bob Medford, Northumberland; Anne Peacock, Drexel Hill; Michael Pillagalli, West Chester; Patricia Quinn, Millersville; Amy Raber, Elysburg; James Reese, Frackville; Doris Remsen, Roselle, New Jersey; Joe Roinick, Hazleton; Susan VanRiper, Scotch Plains, New Jersey; Samuel Zachary, Shavertown.

Lifetime Athletic Passes are given to senior athletes who have participated in varsity sports for four years. Those to receive these passes were: E. Arnold Thompson, Washington, New Jersey; Mark Angelo Sacco, West Hazleton; Joseph Accardi, Bristol; Lee Barthold, Bethlehem; Joseph Bottliglieri, Easton; Richard Brand, Pennsburg; James Cavallero, Metuchen, New Jersey; John Davis, Nazareth; William Firestone, Athens; Thomas Fleege, Turbotville; Richard Geise, Danville; Charles Hess, Bloomsburg; Hugh Jones, Nazareth; David Kelter, Swarthmore; Michael Kolojechick, Swoyersville; John Masters, Phoenixville; Dennis Mummey, Weston; William Nagy, Dunellen, New Jersey; Paul Pelletier, Menlo Park, New Jersey; James Platukis, West Hazleton; John Reeve, Philadelphia; Steve Ryznar, Pottstown.

PROPOSAL ADOPTED BY ALUMNI BOARD

PROPOSAL ADOPTED BY ALUMNI ASSOCIATION BOARD OF DIRECTORS

On SATURDAY, APRIL 24, 1971

1. The Bloomsburg Foundation will assume the responsibility of solicitation of funds for both organizations. The Bloomsburg Foundation will guarantee the annual operating budget of the Alumni Association.

2. The Office of Development and External Relations of the College will assume the responsibility of publishing and mailing the Alumni Quarterly. The publication and mailing costs will be paid by The Bloomsburg Foundation.

3. The College, Alumni Association and the Foundation will continue to work together on programs of mutual concern (Homecoming, Alumni Day, Special Events).

4. The Alumni Association should continue those programs which they have performed in the past.

5. The appointment of Mr. James H. Neiswender as Executive Director of the Alumni Association. This would result in the Alumni Association's having someone on campus daily who would be able to greet visiting graduates and answer any questions they might have about the College. It is vitally important that the Association have an office which is open and accessible on a full-time basis.

EXTEND GREETINGS

The following was received from Mr. James B. Watts, Director of Library Services at BSC:

The Alumni Association
Bloomsburg, Pennsylvania 17815
Dear friends,

The staff of Andruss Library joins me in extending greetings and best wishes to the Alumni.

Students and faculty alike are deeply grateful for the abundant support of help the Library receives from the Alumni, through whose generosity many phases of library services have been enriched, broadened, and strengthened. Among these have been in recent years such outstanding gifts as:

A handsome Recordak Microfilm Reader, presented by the Class of 1917 in honor of the Golden Anniversary of their graduation. Mr. Allen L. Cromis was in charge of arrangements.

Ten tape-players and 50 Cassette tapes, provided from the Association's Fenstermaker Library Fund (total cost $796.75). The Cassette format is a recent innovation in recording technology, one that is incredibly compact and self-contained. The 50 tapes cover a wide range of topics that should be a great help in "bringing history alive" through sound. Plans are in progress for the acquisition of scores, eventually hundreds, of Cassette tapes devoted to music.

An extremely important survey entitled "Three Centuries of Drama" has been acquired on microfilm (5-451 units in 26 boxes) through the Class of 1961's gift of $1,200.00 for microforms for the Library. The scope of the material ranges from 1515 to 1800 A.D. for English drama and from 1714 to 1830 A.D. for American drama.

From time to time, gifts are received from individual Alumni. One of the largest in recent years was the personal library of the late Miss Mary Elliott Jones (Class of 1927), given in loving memory by her sisters Miss Martha Y. Jones (Class of 1922), Miss Margaret J. Jones (Class of 1924) and Mrs. Dorothy K. (Jones) Chase (Class of 1931). The sisters' parents were John T. and Mary Elliott (Taylor) Jones, both alumni of BSC. The 265-volume gift, chiefly professional works in Education, will serve as tangible evidence of the meaningful continuity of the educational process from one generation to the next.

Again, we are beholden.

Very sincerely yours,

James B. Watts

Warren L. Fisher, former Bloomsburg superintendent of schools, will be Lieutenant Governor of the nine-club, Kiwanis Division 14 in the 1971-72 year.

Fisher, a member of the local service club, retired last year from the school superintendency and is serving the system in an advisory capacity.

The following is part of an article appearing in the Wilkes-Barre Independent:

When one reaches three score and 10 years, it is generally assumed that he or she has earned the privilege of relaxing, enjoying the little things of life that the so-called "productive years" prevent one from doing. Known facetiously as the Twilight Years, the 70's are associated with sagacity, experience and indifference.

Such is not the case for Mrs. Kathryn Gronka Wilkie of 2122 East Main Street, Glen Lyon.

At the age of 70, she has become an authoress of a 550-page first novel, "The Three Virgins," which was released for publication Jan. 15, 1971, by the Vantage Press Inc., New York City.

"Besides, I have my 50th reunion from the Teachers College of Bloomsburg this Spring and I thought it would be nice to show my classmates that I had accomplished something during my life." Rearing her family and teaching thousands in the Newport Schools have been accepted by Mrs. Wilkie as part of life rather than accomplishments.

The novel, parts of which are based upon historical fact, was written in long hand at Mrs. Wilkie's kitchen table. It is set in the 1880's when thousands of European emigrants, of all nationalities and religions, poured into this land.

"The characters are a composite of people I have known all of my life, people who came from abroad and found their homes in Wyoming Valley. I have lived a long time and have observed people and I tried to depict the characters as I found people in this region," Mrs. Wilkie explained.

The title "The Three Virgins" is deceptive because the book is not a 1970 sex story, but rather a "journey through life with a thoroughly Christian attitude."

SCHOLARSHIPS

In the future, all direct contributions to the Alumni Association will be credited to the various scholarship funds, which are listed elsewhere in this issue, in the report of the treasurer. You may, if you wish, specify the fund to which you wish to contribute. It is desirable that these funds be built up; scholarships are granted only from their income.

With this issue of The Quarterly, the undersigned bows out as Editor. The first issue of The Quarterly was published in the eighties, and publication was continued until about 1921. Up to that time The Quarterly was edited and published by the Normal School staff. Publication was then discontinued until 1926, when the Alumni Association decided to assume the responsibility of publishing the magazine. Under this arrangement, I was appointed Editor, and the first issue appeared in December, 1926. I have performed the editorial duties since that time.

At the meeting of your Board of Directors on Alumni Day, April 24, it was decided to hand over the responsibility of publishing and mailing the Quarterly to the Office of Development and External Relations. The publication and mailing costs will be paid by the Bloomsburg Foundation. This new policy will go into effect with the September issue. At that time, the new editorial staff will be announced.

We hope that you, the Alumni, will continue to supply the Editor with news, as you have done in the past.

In 1966, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania brought out its first comprehensive Master Plan for Higher Education, and at that time called for a review and a revision within four years. During these past two years Task Forces and other groups worked towards the development of that Plan, and a short time ago, the 1971 version appeared. Some of the more significant parts are the following.

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, like all states, faces serious fiscal difficulties. Higher Education is an expensive process and is becoming ever more so. The plight of the private institutions is such that their very survival depends upon some kind of public support. Certainly, private education has made a significant contribution, and its loss would be serious for everyone. Financial problems, however, also extend to the public sector, and a system must be found that will assure that public institutions retain their unique public character. The Master Plan proposes gradual tuition increases.

Some increases are inevitable, and the individual receiving an education will have to make a greater contribution towards its cost. It is to be hoped, however, that loan provisions and scholarship provisions will be such that those students who have sought, through public institutions, both social and vocational mobility, will not be hampered. The Master Plan ultimately should come forth with a meaningful philosophy of public higher education, in addition to its concern for independent institutions.

The Plan calls for greater emphasis on Continuing Education. During the past year, this College appointed a Director of Summer Sessions and Continuing Education, and tried to take its part in this vital area of educational concern. In a world in which occupations are changing rapidly and radically, the major hope for many individuals is flexibility achieved through a continuing process of learning.

The Master Plan is cognizant of the need for further educational opportunities for the disadvantaged. Bloomsburg has assumed responsibility for trying to provide such educational opportunities but the process is costly, and financial support has not been forthcoming. Nevertheless, this College will continue to do what it can to provide meaningful opportunities.

There has been emphasis upon the need for cooperative endeavors regionally, with public and private working together. This past year has seen meaningful cooperation among all segments of higher education, a degree of cooperation which, heretofore, had not effectively existed. More, of course, is needed, but the coming era will see the emergence of regional consortia.

Finally, the Master Plan calls for a Board from the various segments of higher education to advise the Council on Higher Education. I have, I am pleased to say, been asked to serve in this capacity. This is a meaningful step towards better communication among all segments of higher education, and among the institutions, the public, and the legislature.

The Master Plan indicates the need for private support of public education. As I am sure all of you recall. The Bloomsburg Foundation was established during the past academic year in an attempt to gain private funds for those things that the State either cannot or should not undertake. In keeping with the efforts of the Foundation, the Alumni Association has turned over to the College all fund-raising activities. You will be hearing more about this; the need is great to provide many of the educational services for which only private monies can be used.

CAMPUS BUILDING PROGRAM CONTINUES

by Boyd F. Buckingham

Alumni returning to campus for Homecoming Day Activities on October 9 will notice several changes in both the Upper and Lower Campus areas.

Six new projects are currently under construction at an estimated cost of $7,200,000, and several others are in either the planning or design stage.

The new Gymnasium on the Upper Campus is expected to be completed before the end of this year at a cost of $2,435,000. The gym will provide areas for varsity basketball, wrestling, and swimming as well as health and physical education classes and intramural activities. Nearly $200,000 worth of movable equipment must be installed before the gym will be completely ready for use.

More than $1,000,000 is being spent to install utilities, roads, and parking areas on the Upper Campus. Although this project will not be completed before July, 1972, it is expected that a 350,000 gallon reservoir and utilities in some areas will be finished earlier to accommodate the new gym next spring. The utilities will be installed in sites, where new classroom buildings, residence halls, a dining room, and other projects are to be constructed in the future.

A triple-level parking area adjacent to Elwell Residence Hall will provide spaces for more than 200 cars when it is completed in December at a cost of $467,000. Adjoining streets will be widened and new sidewalks constructed.

Most of the steel work and the concrete block and brick facing of the new air conditioned Administration Building will be completed by Homecoming Day. This structure, located on the site previously occupied by Dillon House, will provide central offices for a number of administrative and office personnel now located in different buildings. One wing of the building will house offices, loading docks, and storage areas for the receiving and disbursing of college supplies. The target date for completion is April, 1972; estimated cost of construction is $1,350,000.

Old Husky Lounge has been demolished to prepare the site for a new Student Center. When completed in December, 1972, the new center will house the College Store, a formal lounge, a snack bar and dining area, multi-purpose rooms, an area for four bowling alleys, a game room, a television lounge, a listening room for hi-fi and stereo record playing, offices and workrooms for student publications, a first aid center, and offices for student organizations. Completely air-conditioned, the center will cost $1,250,000 plus the cost of movable equipment.

New recreation areas are being constructed to meet one of the most critical needs on campus. By June, 1972 there should be 18 all-weather tennis courts (nine will be lighted for night-time use), a football soccer field, a softball diamond, and a new road connecting Chestnut Street with Light Street Road. The playing fields are to be used only for health and physical education classes and intramural athletic activities. The cost of the project will approximate $550,000.

Several problems continue to block approval of plans for new athletic fields for varsity football, baseball, and track. It is hoped these problems can be resolved in the near future so that all varsity athletic contests can be played on campus.

The Capital Budget has allocated funds to 1. install one new and 2 converted boilers in the Heating Plant to make gas and oil the primary sources of energy for heat and hot water; 2. design and construct a residence hall on the site of Waller Hall; 3. design and construct a classroom building east of Andrus Library; 4. provide installation of air-conditioning in Sutliff Hall.

New lawn areas, trees, shrubbery, and flowers are being planted near recently completed buildings as funds permit.

Husky Lounge, formerly the gymnasium, comes down to make way for the new Student Center building.

Work is underway on new Administration Building on Dillon House site. President's home is in the background.

New field house on the upper campus takes form.

This is Bloomsburg State College in 1939, the Centennial year.

Someone once asked Ernest Hemingway, "What is the best early training for a writer?" Hemingway replied, "An unhappy childhood."

Since so many childhoods are unremarkably uniform these days, teachers of composition face a tough challenge. It isn't like the good old days when Lafayette College threw out Stephen Crane and Lehigh University bounced Richard Harding Davis.

Bloomsburg State College this year launched a new idea in teaching composition that may not produce Stephen Cranes or Hemingways, but it won't discourage them, either, and it will save the patience of everyone.

What Bloomsburg found in its freshmen is puzzling, yet true. Because of higher admissions standards and better high schools in Pennsylvania, the quality of writing composition by the average freshman is up. Certainly there are fewer F-rated writers getting into college. However, the reading background of freshmen has not improved that much, if at all. The paradox is that so many college freshmen are half-decent writers but indifferent readers.

The Bloomsburg English Department of 25 professors decided to junk the worn-out system of inflicting a dull English Composition course on everyone. Now tests are given, and at least half the incoming class goes right into an "English Laboratory" program.

New "English Lad" Program Replaces Tiresome Lecture

By PAUL B. BEERS
Associate Editor
Harrisburg Patriot-News

Students who are slow on grammar, punctuation and the rest endure a straight composition course for a semester and then head for the lab work.

The lab has audio-visual methods of teaching the fundamentals of writing. Ten professors are tutorial assistants to the lab. The staff has devised 10 slide shows on composition, plus 6 tape cassettes. These presentations are better than a lecture, because they offer visual pictures of writing examples while a professor's voice gives explanations over the earphones.

I sat through one slide presentation on "The Whole Theme," where the elements of unity in a composition were discussed and shown. It took one essay of a cashier describing Christmas shoppers. Her point was that she was interested in the shoppers' attitudes toward spending money. A poor theme was shown that had her essay make that point in the third sentence. A good essay -- or a proper rewrite, editing job -- then revised the cashier's story and put her thematic point in the first sentence.

The 20-minute slide presentation also has examples on content, style, tone, methods of organization and diction. A student quickly learns some basics of good writing and editing when he sees "nice" person scratched out for "cheerful" person or "ehaste" not permitted as a synonym for "pure" when used as an adjective before "water."

The tape I heard was of a Bloomsburg professor correcting a student's paper on why he liked growing up in Newark, N.J. With the original composition duplicated, the student can follow the professor's telling how the Newark youngster failed to develop ideas, didn't produce enough evidence to sustain persuasion in the mind of the reader and was too general and unspecific to achieve any focus on his subject matter.

The slide and tape were a first-rate job of teaching. A college-qualified youngster couldn't fail to learn something after a few hours in the lab.

The lab course is set up so a student studies on his own time and then takes three, 1½-hour each theme-examinations. He selects his topic from a group offered and writes away.

College Begins In Summer For Many B. S. C. Freshmen

Every summer for the last eleven years a small number of students have begun their college experience at Bloomsburg State in late June.

In the summer freshman program at BSC a student begins college during summer main session, taking a math and an English composition course. He also takes a course of his choice during post session, which begins in August, then returns to school on a regular basis in January if he meets the requirements of the summer program.

Initially, the program was aimed at giving students with a scholastic weakness, who would not otherwise be admitted to college, a chance at higher education.

'Probies' No Longer

Over the years, however, the program has changed. Current Director of Admissions, T. L. Cooper, presently in charge of the program, stated "as the program has grown, the quality of the incoming summer freshmen has improved."

Previously, Cooper noted, the summer freshmen were referred to as "trial freshmen" or as "probationary freshmen," which as things go on campuses, led to somewhat derogatory nicknames like "proby."

Now, although the central concept of the program is still to admit a group of students in the summer who normally cannot be accommodated in the fall semester, the program is no longer referred to as a "trial" or "probation" program.

"This year there were 4,251 applications for 1,000 spaces for freshmen in September," Cooper said, explaining, "the 279 summer freshmen admitted this year were unsuccessful in competing for those 1,000 spaces, but most had the necessary qualifications for admission."

Applications, Cooper said are evaluated by five criteria: class rank, standardized test results (such as college boards), high school achievement, recommendations, and personal interview.

The most highly qualified students in all areas are accepted for the fall semester. Others are offered the summer program, and if they are successful, are admitted in January when withdrawals, graduations and academic failures make room for them.

Many of the students admitted to the summer program at BSC this year, Cooper said, had been accepted for the fall semester and regular admission at other schools, but they wanted to come to Bloomsburg. Others, he said, because of financial or other reasons, would not go to college at all if it were not for the summer program which admits them to Bloomsburg.

No Cars

Several facets of the summer program differ from the regular semester. Summer freshmen cannot have automobiles on campus, they must reside on campus, and they must achieve a 2.0 or "C" average to return in January.

These factors, Cooper said, aid the student in doing as well as he can. Residing on campus, for instance, provides easy access to the library, the help of other students, and morning classes. Prohibiting autos can aid in keeping the student's mind on studying. Requiring a "C" average keeps the student from starting off on the wrong foot, builds his confidence, and helps him when he enters the stronger, regular semester competition in January.

Researching 'Success'

John L. Walker, former director of admissions and current dean of students, said his personal observation indicates the program has been successful. Walker noted that a study of the program is underway through the college research center which will reveal in detail just how successful it has been.

Although figures are not yet available on the number of students who enter college through the summer program and complete a four-year program, Walker said he believes from his own observation that about the same percentage of students entering in the summer graduate as those who enter in the Fall.

Head of the program when it began to change in 1965, Walker said the college deemphasized admitting students with a weakness through the program because it became a "matter of fairness."

Matter of 'Fairness'

"Since five years ago," Walker said "the applications for freshmen spaces at BSC have tripled. We were faced with a large group of applicants with good qualifications but not quite good enough to make it in September, and yet not poor enough to be admitted in the summer program. They were the next in line and we asked ourselves, how fair are we being to them?"

As an example of the general success of the program Walker quoted the following figures: in 1968, 129 students were admitted in the summer and 117 qualified for January admission; in 1969, 136 were admitted, 119 qualified; in 1970, 181 were admitted and 154 qualified.

Summer freshmen, although many complain about Commons food, having to stay on campus, and lacking automobiles, agree that summer sessions allow a more relaxed pace for studying.

Also, the summer frosh express pleasure at the reception they received from upperclassmen, especially the members of the orientation committee, which guides rather than hazes incoming students.

"Hazing is a thing of the past, we just don't do it anymore," said one of three co-chairmen of the orientation committee.

It seems to have worked well for the frosh. "I like the upperclassmen a lot," one lad said, looking at pretty, shapely Mary Wachter, a committee chairman with the freshest freshman gleam his eyes could muster.

When he passes three exams he's completed the course. Many students do this early in the semester, completing their English comp course in a hurry and devoting the rest of the term to their other college studies.

The Bloomsburg experiment was set up by Dr. Louis F. Thompson, head of the English Department. He was as tired of the old lecture hall composition courses as the past 10 generations of college students.

Mrs. Virginia Duck was one of his faculty members who applied imagination in making the tapes and slide presentations. Another on the staff is Richard Savage who was a professional writer for the Saturday Evening Post. Savage now concentrates on poetry.

Bloomsburg's new president, Dr. Robert J. Nossen is humanities minded and welcomed the experimental lab project. Not only is it more efficient but it is a desirable method of handling large numbers of students. Bloomsburg isn't a little school anymore. With 3,800 students, it is now twice as big as it was in 1960.

NEW FACULTY FOR 1971-72

Dr. Walter A. Simon, Director of Education Opportunity Program and Professor of Art.

William G. Williams, Professor of Business and Coordinator of Legal Affairs

Frederick J. Carberry, Temporary Assistant Professor of Sociology

Dr. Stephen D. Beck, Professor and Chairman, Dept. of Mathematics

Dr. Robert R. MacMurray, Professor of Economics

Thomas W. Wheeler, Instructor of Speech with responsibilities as Technical Director of Theatre.

Dr. Gerald W. Powers, Professor of Communication Disorders and Director of Deaf Education

Miss Karen S. Tesreau, Temporary Assistant Professor of Physical Education

Dr. Chang Shub Roh, Professor of Sociology

514 DEGREES AWARDED AT JUNE COMMENCEMENT

"We live in an age of mediocrity and widespread mediocrity in key places in business or education and even in the armed forces, can be deadening, even destructive, to any country," Dr. John A. Hoch told the graduating seniors of Bloomsburg State College at the May 30 commencement exercises held at the Bloomsburg Fairgrounds.

Dr. Hoch, Vice President and Dean of the Faculties, said a few of the causes of mediocrity in many instances are the result of labor union regulations, promotions by seniority of unqualified politicians and non-interested voters, broad results of taxation policies and the adjustment of school curriculum to the ability of the average or below-average pupils.

"We have moved almost unconsciously toward achieving the greatest good for the greatest number," he said, "but we have neglected that small group of potential readers through whom human happiness has in the past been attainable and attained. For Americans it is at the moment vital to provide a cultural climate in which exceptionally high intelligence is detected and subsidized accordingly.

"Somehow our national leadership in religion, in education and in statecraft should rise to the occasion and counteract the blight which mediocrity has been casting over our boasted culture."

Following the awarding of degrees, which included 23 Master of Education degrees and 491 bachelor degrees, William A. Cluley, President of the Class of 1971, delivered the response. He pointed out that as a result of the physical growth his class has seen it is no longer correct to refer to B.S.C. as "the friendly college on the hill" because it will soon occupy not one, but two hills.

He also cited the growth of the college in terms of enrollment and in the development of the fraternity and sorority system, but said it is not on these that B.S.C. should place its greatest emphasis.

"In the final analysis" he declared "any college must stake its reputation on its fulfillment of its primary function — that of providing an intellectual community in which students and faculty can creatively learn to grow together, to advance the ideas of education and individual growth.

"It is my charge to my fellow graduating seniors that in the future we make an effort to bridge some of the gaps which exist in our world today and continue to search within ourselves for the means to continue to grow educationally and creatively as individuals who must deal with life as a dynamic existence."

Welcoming remarks by Dr. Robert Nossen, president of the college, followed the invocation by Rev. Jay Rochelle, Protestant Campus Minister.

Candidates for the bachelor degrees were presented by Dr. Hoch, and those for master degrees were presented by Charles H. Carlson, Dean of the School of Graduate Studies. President Nossen and William E. Booth, vice president of the Board of Trustees, conferred the degrees.

FORMER ATTORNEY GEN. IS NAMED TO FACULTY

William G. Williams, Former Attorney General, General Counsel to the Department of Education and the Civil Service Commission for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, began his new duties as Professor of Business and Coordinator of Legal Affairs at BSC on June 7, 1971.

A native of Williamstown, Pennsylvania, Williams received his early education in the schools of Harrisburg and Williamstown. He was awarded his Bachelor of Arts degree from Gettysburg College in 1942 and received his Doctor of Jurisprudence from Dickinson School of Law in 1946.

In addition to the position he held with the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Williams has been in general law practice in Harrisburg for the past eighteen years. He has also served as Assistant Attorney General on the Board of Review for the Unemployment Compensation Bureau from 1963 to 1970. From December, 1953 to 1957 he was associated with the Bureau of Social Security for Public Employees of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Department of Labor and Industry in the capacities of counsel for a year and a half, acting director for a year, and special advisor to the Bureau for a year.

Upon his graduation from Dickinson School of Law in 1946, Professor Williams taught for seven years at that institution. He has written several articles which have appeared in the Dickinson Law Review.

THE ALUMNI QUARTERLY

$2.7 BILLION RECEIVED IN FINANCIAL AID AT BSC

Financial Aid Statistics for fiscal year 1970-71 indicate Bloomsburg State College students have received $2.7 million toward educational expenses. The aid was distributed among 2,783 students according to need. Included in the total figure is $1,200.00 in Guaranteed Loans provided by local banks. Nationally, these loans total $1.5 billion and are the main source of funds for higher education.

The second largest source remains the PHEAA Scholarship accounting for $846,000 in direct aid to BSC students. This fund is contingent upon action by the state Legislature each year. Other sources include part-time employment during the school year which provides $317,000 to 800 undergraduates, National Defense Loans, Educational Opportunity Grants, and loans provided by the Alumni Association.

Once accepted as a student, the key to most assistance is the Parent's Confidential Statement filed through the College Scholarship Service. Notable exceptions are the State Scholarship and Guaranteed Loans which have separate applications to PHEAA. Full details are available in the office of the Director of Financial Aid, Bloomsburg State College.

Dr. John A. Hoch, Vice President and Dean of the Faculties at Bloomsburg State College, has asked that he be relieved of his administrative responsibilities and that he be given a classroom teaching assignment. Dr. Hoch indicated that he was acting on the advice of his physician.

Dr. Robert Nossen, President of BSC said he would hold Dr. Hoch's request in abeyance pending action by the Board of Trustees.

Key Positions Open On 1971 Husky Football Squad

New head football coach, Bill Sproule, will have to find some key replacements on both the offensive and defensive units for players lost through graduation.

Wingback Bob Warner, All Pennsylvania Conference Selection, will be back to lead the Husky ground attack. Replacements will have to be found for his running mates, fullback Paul Skrimcovsky, and tailback Bill Firestone. On the offensive line, replacements will be needed for split end Mike Kolojechick, center Steve Harmanos, and guard Joe Bottiglieri.

Defense may present the biggest problem to Sproule with the loss of NAIA Honorable Mention tackle Bill Nagy, and defensive ends Ted Schmittel and Mark Sacco, along with Hugh Jones and John Davis, key defenders in the backfield. Mike Devereux may see more duty at quarterback, although he could be shifted to a running position with sophomore Bob Beiter calling the signals. Two key returnees are punter Dan Stellfox, who averaged 40.6 yards per boot, and place kicker Neil Oberholtzer, who, in addition to kicking the extra points, booted six field goals, two over 40 yards.

If the returning veterans, along with incoming sophomores, can fill the vacancies of those mentioned above, the Huskies should be in for another winning season. Last year's record was 5 - 3.

In addition to the regular Pennsylvania State College opponents, the University of Scranton returns to the schedule after an absence of 17 years. The Huskies entertain California State College at Homecoming on October 9, a team they haven't played since 1957. Bloomsburg has yet to defeat the University of Scranton, having been defeated four times, while the Huskies have the edge in the series with California 5 - 3 - 2.

CROSS COUNTRY

Following two very successful seasons (11-1 and 10-1) under the direction of Dr. Clyde Noble, the 1971 edition of the Husky thinclads appears to have a bright future.

Only one runner, Dave Kelter, has been lost through graduation. Leading the returning veterans are two junior outstanding runners, Tim Waechter and Terry Lee, who alternated in the one and two finishing positions for the Huskies last year. Strong support is expected to come again from seniors Paul Pelletier and Larry Strohl, last year's captain, along with sophomore Larry Horwitz. Another sophomore, Mike Hipple is also being counted on strongly and two freshmen, Don Nauss and Bob Faux may well work their way into top spots.

Coach Noble indicates it will be extremely difficult to improve on the records of the past two years. The toughest competition is expected to come from Millersville, the only team to defeat BSC last year. Lock Haven S. C., Bucknell U., and Susquehanna U. are also expected to field strong aggregations.

BILL SPROULE IS NAMED HEAD FOOTBALL COACH

William J. Sproule, Assistant Professor of Health and Physical Education, was appointed Acting Head Football Coach for the 1971-72 academic year during the latter part of June. Sproule, a native of Lansford, Pennsylvania, has been a member of the faculty since August, 1969, and has served since that time as Assistant Football Coach and Assistant Wrestling Coach.

A graduate of Syracuse University, where he received a Bachelor of Arts degree in Physical Education, Sproule played football under Coach of the Year Floyd "Ben" Schwartzwalder. He was a member of Schwartzwalder's 1959 National Championship Football Team which played in the Cotton Bowl. While at Syracuse, Sproule was named "Outstanding Senior" in the Department of Athletics and Physical Education, Teacher Training Division, and achieved academic recognition for six semesters on the Dean's List.

Sproule received his Master of Science degree in Physical Education from Brooklyn College, and since then has completed postgraduate work at New York University and the State University College at Cortland, New York. His previous coaching experiences include positions as Head Football, Track and Baseball Coach at Waterville Central High School in New York, and as Assistant Football Coach at Smithtown High School, Smithtown, New York. A veteran of service with the U.S. Army as a 2nd Lieutenant, Sproule was a member of the U.S. Army Football Team at Fort Dix, New Jersey, and served as Director of the Post Football Clinic. He is married to the former Joanne Pavlick of Coaldale, Pennsylvania, and is the father of three children.

FORMER BSC BASKETBALL COACH GETS UTAH POST

Bill Foster, BSC coach from 1960-63, was named head basketball coach at the University of Utah in early spring. Foster served as head coach at Rutgers University for eight years after leaving BSC. His 1966-67 team finished third in the National Invitational Tournament in New York. The enviable record of 45-13 was accomplished by Foster during his three years at BSC.

Dick Lloyd, Foster's star cager at BSC and freshman coach at Rutgers, was named to the head mentor position at Rutgers when Foster accepted the Utah appointment. Lloyd, Class of 1962, set numerous BSC records during his undergraduate years, many of which still stand. He was named to the Conference All-Star team in 1960 and 1962. His younger brother Bob was selected as Rutgers' first All-American in 1967.

Chuck Daly is another former BSC cager who has "arrived" in the coaching profession. Daly, Class of 1952, who played his BSC basketball under Harold Shelley in the 1950's, was named this spring to succeed Dick Harter as head basketball coach at the University of Pennsylvania. He previously served as freshman coach at Duke University for two years, then replaced Bob Cousy as head coach at Boston College before being named to the Penn position. Daly played his high school basketball at Kane High School in western Pennsylvania under Dr. Stuart Edwards, current Dean of the School of Professional Studies at BSC.

GETS SECOND TERM

FORMER BLOOMSBURG STARS NOW IN PRO GRID RANKS

One of the greatest athletes to come out of BSC is Bob Tucker, Class of 1968, who had a great year as a rookie with the New York Giants of the NFL last year. Tucker set several national NAIA college records as a tight end for the Huskies in 1967. He continued his record breaking performances in leading the Atlantic Coast Football League in 1968 and 1969 in pass receptions. He was signed by the Giants after serving on the taxi squad of the Philadelphia Eagles.

Two BSC teammates of Tucker's, quarterback Rich Lichtel and split end Stan Kucharski, have been members of the Atlantic Coast Football League, and expect to be playing for the Schuylkill Coalcrackers this season. Lichtel was a college division passing leader in 1967 and Kucharski was a leader in pass receptions and scoring until he was injured in the third game against Susquehanna University and was lost for the season.

Another gridder, Bill Nagy, 6'3" 250 lb. defensive lineman on the 1970 BSC team, is expected to see considerable action with the Norfolk (Va.) Neptunes of the Atlantic Coast Football League this season. Nagy, who was named best defensive player by his BSC team members, received honorable mention on the 1970 NAIA All-Star American football selection.

ANNOUNCE RETIREMENT OF 2 FACULTY MEMBERS

Two BSC faculty members, Miss Ellamae Jackson, Dean of Students, and Herbert H. Reichard, Associate Professor of Physics, recently retired.

Miss Jackson came to BSC in 1961 as Dean of Women and was elected to one of the Dean of Students positions created in 1970 when Elton Hunsinger became Associate Vice-President for Student Affairs. She was previously at Mansfield State College for eleven years and had also been Assistant Dean of Women at Penn State. She was also a member of the faculties of high schools in East Greenville, Pennsylvania and Harrisburg. In 1944 Miss Jackson joined the American Red Cross as Club Director in the China, Burma, India Theatre. Her retirement was effective as of August 28.

Professor Reichard retired June 1 after 40 years of teaching service in colleges and secondary schools in Pennsylvania and Maryland. Prior to joining the BSC faculty in 1961, he was a member of the faculty of William Allen High School, Allentown, for a period of 20 years. He previously served as Chairman, Department of Mathematics, Beall High School, Frostburg, Maryland, as an Instructor in Physics at Muhlenberg College, as an Assistant Instructor at Penn State, and as a Physics and Mathematics Instructor at the Hazleton Undergraduate Center of Penn State.

In addition to his many years as an outstanding classroom teacher, Reichard served as a Research Engineer with the Fuller Company, as a Research Assistant in Electrical Engineering at Harvard University, as a Graduate Assistant at Lehigh University and the University of Michigan, and as a Student Engineer of the RCA Victor Company at Camden, N.J.

FACULTY SABBATICALS

Eleven faculty members will be on sabbatical leave either part, or all, of the 1971-72 college year. Those who will be on leave for the full academic year are: Dr. Lee Aumiller, Chairman, Secondary Education; Robert L. Bunge, Registrar; Dr. William L. Jones, Director, Division of Human Resources and Services; Gerald H. Strauss, Dept. of English.

Those who will be on leave during the first semester only will be: Dr. Margaret Lefevre, Communication Disorders; Theodore M. Shanoski, Dept. of History; Miss Eleanor Wray, Dept. of Physical Education.

The four members who will be on leave during the second semester will be: Dr. Bruce E. Adams, Dept. of Geography; Thomas R. Manley, Dept. of Biological Sciences; George G. Stradtman, Dept. of Mathematics; Dr. Louis F. Thompson, Chairman, Dept. of English.

Eight faculty members will be re-

FRESIMAN ORIENTATION

Four three day orientation sessions were scheduled this summer at BSC for over 1,000 freshman who will be matriculating at the College this September. The first group of approximately 250 freshman arrived on Campus on July 11. Three other sessions began on July 18, July 25, and August 1.

turning to their duties following a sabbatical leave for either all or part of the 1970-71 college year. They are: William K. Decker, Dept. of Music; Craig L. Himes, Biological Sciences; Clayton H. Hinkel, Dept. of Business Education; Dr. Lee C. Hopple, Dept. of Geography; Mrs. Margaret J. Hykes, Dept. of Business Education; Miss Alva W. Rice, Dept. of English; John F. Schrimgeour, Dept. of Mathematics; Dr. William B. Sterling, Dept. of Geography.

NEW HEAD OF EDUCATIONAL OPPORTUNITY PROGRAM

Dr. Walter A. Simon, former assistant to the President, California Institute of the Arts at Los Angeles, began his new appointment as Director of the Education Opportunity Program and Professor of the Arts at BSC at the start of the main summer session on June 28.

Dr. Simon was associated with the California Institute of the Arts for a period of two and one-half years. For the previous eight years he served with the United States Information Agency of the Foreign Service in Cairo, United Arab Republic; Kabul, Afghanistan; and in Colombo, Ceylon. He previously taught art in Georgia State College in Savannah and Virginia State College at Petersburg and New Jersey State College in Paterson.

His paintings have been exhibited in the Wittenborn Gallery in New York City, the Brooklyn Museum, and at other exhibitions throughout eastern United States and the countries in which he served with the U.S. Foreign Service.

The Educational Opportunity Program was initiated on the campus of BSC in August 1968 and for two years was under the direction of Dr. Lee Aumiller, who at that time was Director of Field Experiences and was later named Chairman, Department of Secondary Education. During the 1970-71 college year, the program was headed by Tom Cooper, Director of Admissions.

REAPPOINTED

Dr. Percival Roberts, III, Chairman, Department of Art, has been reappointed Eastern Representative for the Higher Education Section of the National Art Education Association by William Bealmer, President of NAEA.

RECEIVES GRANT

The Department of Communication Disorders received a grant of $10,120 from the Pennsylvania Department of Public Welfare in support of the special training program and guest lecture series held during the 1971 summer session.

VISITORS FROM FRANCE

Eight French college students began a summer visit in the United States by spending two weeks at Bloomsburg State College in July. The students came to B.S.C. under the auspices of the Experiment in International Living and in conjunction with the International Education Club of Bloomsburg State College.

B. S. C. ANNUAL GIVING CAMPAIGN

Traditionally, colleges each year seek and gratefully receive gifts from alumni, parents, businesses and friends who have an interest in the well-being of the institution. The Bloomsburg Foundation, which serves Bloomsburg State College and the BSC Alumni Association, has assumed the responsibility of soliciting gifts from private sources.

This year Bloomsburg State College will conduct an Annual Giving Campaign. The Campaign began September 1, and hopefully will conclude November 20, 1971. Four areas of institutional need will be the focus of this year's campaign.

1. ALUMNI DEVELOPMENT. Contributions in this area will be used to promote communication between the college and the Alumni, as well as maintaining the office of the Alumni Association.
2. ALUMNI SCHOLARSHIPS. Contributions in this area will be used to increase the existing Alumni Association scholarship program.
3. ATHLETIC GRANTS. Contributions in this area will be used to promote intercollegiate athletics at BSC thru grants to individual athletes.
4. UNRESTRICTED. Gifts in this area provide funding for a variety of programs, seminars, institutes, research, etc. Requests for funds are received by the Bloomsburg Foundation from students, faculty, departments and administrators.

A contribution of $5 or more will renew your annual membership in the Alumni Association. A renewed membership card will be forwarded.

The Bloomsburg Foundation is also prepared to receive gifts of corporate stocks and bonds, and personal property. Interested individuals are urged to contact the Executive Director for more information.

As announced in the June issue of the Alumni Quarterly, the publication of your Alumni magazine has been taken over by the Office of Development and External Relations. Some changes are being made in this issue, and others will be made from time to time. I am confident that you will enjoy reading the Quarterly, and hope that it will deepen your loyalty to your Alma Mater.

In the future, all solicitations for contributions to the Loyalty Fund will be made through the Bloomsburg Foundation. During the past five years, you, the Alumni, have contributed in the neighborhood of $50,000 to the fund. This has been used to cover the expenses of maintaining the Alumni Office, and in addition has made possible a great number of projects approved by your Board of Directors. The new arrangement should make possible financial support more in keeping with what is being done in other colleges and universities.

I hope that you will continue to support your College and your Alumni Association.

DECEMBER, 1971

The "Year for Assessment and Planning" is moving forward according to schedule. A Steering Committee has been established which includes the following: Mayor Martin Lutz of Bloomsburg; Dr. John Magill, Superintendent of Bloomsburg public schools, representing the Alumni; Dr. William Carlough, President of the College Senate; Mr. Michael Siptroth, President of the Community Government Association; Dr. Don B. Springman, Vice-President for Administrative Services; Dr. Hobart Heller, Acting Vice-President for Academic Affairs; Dr. Jerrold Griffis, Vice-President for Student Life; Mr. Jack Naus, Secretary of the Bloomsburg Chamber of Commerce; Mrs. George Thompson, President of the Bloomsburg Chamber of Commerce; Mr. William E. Booth, Chairman of the Board of Trustees; and myself. The major thrust will be through existing Senate committees, augmented by administration, the community and the alumni. Every policy, every procedure, every phase of our operation will be open to question and evaluation; planning, specifically, will be directed towards the years 1975, 1980, and 2000. Hopefully, accumulated information can be interpreted and assembled during the coming summer, and by the end of 1972 be available for general distribution.

On November 3, Dr. Frederic K. Miller, Commissioner for Higher Education, relinquished his office to assume duties as Chairman of the Commission on Independent Colleges and Universities. For four and one half years, Dr. Miller provided leadership for all of Higher Education in Pennsylvania, and most particularly played a key role in the development of the State Colleges and Indiana University. We shall, of course, miss him, but we look forward to working with him through public and private cooperative efforts within the Higher Education community. As of this writing, his successor has not been named.

The Bloomsburg Foundation was established a year ago in order to provide those funds which cannot or should not be expected from the State. At the time that the Foundation was initiated, virtually no guidelines, and less guidance, were available; consequently, the Foundation had to develop its own policies and procedures, and to refine these in the course of operation. The Foundation exists solely for the development and improvement of the College community. It is the only source for unrestricted funds, and it does allow the College to engage in activities which would otherwise not be possible. A full report of the Foundation will be forthcoming in a later issue of the QUARTERLY. In the meantime, your support of the Alumni Association is in fact a support of the Foundation. I can think of few ways in which you can more actively assist ongoing activities of this College not covered by the regular operating budget.

Gov. Shapp Urges B.S.C.'s Young Voters to Take Part in Politics

Governor Milton J. Shapp's first visit to a State College campus, and his first address to students following lowering of the voting age to 18, was at Bloomsburg State College September 30.

The governor, in his address, stressed the young voters' ability to change the shape of state and national politics through participation. He told of changes in the Democratic State Committee's procedures in the selection of delegates to the Democratic National Convention which will help redress imbalance of young people, members of minority groups or other segments of our society.

He told also of his appointment of young men to positions of responsibility, citing particularly his appointment of 31-year-old Bob Ford as State Director of Selective Service.

He spoke also of his philosophy on education which would "prefer people to buildings" and "education to schooling."

During his address Shapp presented C.G.A. President Mike Siptroth with a letter concerning his intention to appoint a student to the Board of Trustees of each of the State Colleges and inviting Bloomsburg students to nominate five candidates for the position. He declared that the student appointees would serve not merely to represent students, but to act as trustees in the fullest sense of the word.

The nominations of four Bloomsburg students have since been forwarded to the Governor. The candidates are: Douglas McClintock, a junior from Doylestown, president of the junior class and a member of the steering committee for the Simulated Democratic Convention to be held next April; Robert Parry, a senior from Dallas, a member of Circle K and Sigma Pi fraternity who has participated for three years on the BSC varsity football and basketball teams; Joseph L. Romano, a sophomore from Norristown, a member of Pi Kappa Delta (speech fraternity), member of the Visitation committee, treasurer of the sophomore class, member of the debate team and vice president of the Forensic Society; and Michael J. Torbert, Allentown, a member of the Judo club and the Veterans Association.

Appointment will be made for a full six-year term.

Following his address to the students Shapp answered questions from the audience concerning changes in the PHEAA Scholarship program, effect of the state income tax on college students, the freeze on state jobs and patronage problems.

When he entered the auditorium Shapp accepted a petition bearing 2000 signatures requesting an investigation of the problems confronting BSC.

More recently, in addressing the Pennsylvania Association of Colleges and Universities Shapp discussed Senate Bill 30 which will have broad implications for Pennsylvania's state-owned and state-related colleges and universities.

Under the bill a State Board of Trustees would become a central agency for all state-owned and state-related institutions. Any requests for new degree programs or a change in status, such as a change from a College to a University, would come under review of the state board which would act as final authority. All operating budgets would also be subject to approval by the state board.

Shapp is supporting a study of a proposal for a single admission system for the 13 state colleges and Indiana University. He believes neighboring colleges must avoid competitive programs and that instead of duplicating faculty and facilities he suggests an exchange of students and faculty.

He said the higher education community in Pennsylvania will get along much better with his administration if it abandons what he calls "educational imperialism." He describes this as the "tendency of every branch campus of every community college to become a four-year institution, of every four-year institution to add masters programs and then Ph.D.'s, and of every university to become a multiversity."

ATTENDS MEETING

Dr. Robert J. Nossen, President of Bloomsburg State College, attended the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Association of Colleges and Universities on the campus of The Pennsylvania State University, University Park, Pennsylvania beginning Sunday, October 17 and extending through Tuesday, October 19. The PACU is an organization of all the accredited colleges and universities in the Commonwealth which are essentially represented by their chief administrative officers.

4216 UNDERGRADUATES ARE REGISTERED AT BSC

A total of 4216 full time undergraduate students completed registration for the 1971-72 college year at Bloomsburg State College, according to Robert Bunge, Registrar.

Three hundred eighty five full time and part time graduate students are enrolled with 38 of this number being full time students. Another 231 part time undergraduate students, Continuing Education students and Public School Nurses raises the total enrollment for the college to over 4800, which is the largest enrollment in the history of BSC.

Of the 4216 full time undergraduate students, 1934 are men and 2282 are women. The 385 graduate students break down into 165 men and 220 women.

Approximately 2,282 men and women are being housed in campus residence halls. Over 2,400 students are served their meals through the facilities of the Scranton Commons.

A total of 286 faculty and administrative personnel are on duty during the semester.

JOHN HOCH HONORED AT TESTIMONIAL DINNER

Approximately 250 members of the Bloomsburg State College community attended a testimonial dinner October 28 honoring Dr. John A. Hoch, former Vice president for Academic Affairs and Dean of the Faculties.

During the summer Dr. Hoch asked for reassignment to classroom teaching duties. He is now a member of the history department staff.

Howard Fenstermacher, president of the Alumni Board, was master of ceremonies, and speakers included Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president emeritus, and BSC President Robert J. Nossen. Dr. Andruss told about hiring John in 1946 as an assistant football coach.

Dr. Hoch was presented with a travel certificate and a set of luggage in appreciation for his many years as a college administrator.

VISIT BSC SUITE IN ATLANTIC CITY

Bloomsburg State College is planning to have a hospitality suite at the Dennis Hotel in Atlantic City February 12, 13 and 14 during the annual convention of the American Association of School Administrators.

BSC alumni and friends are cordially invited to visit the BSC headquarters. College officials will be there afternoon and evenings of the three days to discuss admissions, housing, placement and other questions pertaining to the college.

Plans for the hospitality suite are necessarily subject to final official state approval.

Proposals for Dropping Semester Calendar Plan Are Being Studied

Editor's note: Dr. Hobart Heller became Acting Vice President for Academic Affairs and Dean of the Faculties in September succeeding Dr. John A. Hoch. The College Senate currently has under consideration four proposals for academic calendar changes at BSC.

By Dr. Hobart Heller

Bloomsburg is making a study of its academic calendar with a view to possible improvement.

It is almost trite to say that a calendar should be a framework within which faculty and students can best work together to the end that effective learning is promoted. Some of the qualities that a calendar should encourage are these: students should be as free as possible from periods of undue pressure, students and faculty should find it natural for efforts to flow evenly through the days and weeks of the terms and should have maximum opportunity for efficient use of classrooms and laboratories; it should encourage student-faculty communication.

The B.S.C. Senate is considering the possibility of an unconventional calendar, one which sacrifices the strict symmetry of semesters, quarters, or trimesters in favor of improved teaching and learning. By tradition, an academic year comprises nine months from Labor Day to Memorial Day. Christmas vacation must come at about the two-fifth's mark in this period; therefore the remainder of the weeks follow New Year's. It would be advantageous to close a term shortly before Christmas, and open a new term after New Year's. Obviously, one cannot have two equal terms within nine months if this line of demarcation is observed. The most effective use of the period after New Year's challenges one who would plan a calendar.

The semester plan makes it necessary to interrupt the first semester to provide a Christmas recess. Students on the semester plan must be thinking of their semester examinations during the Christmas vacation; this is not conducive to sound learning experience.

College students and faculty need a break between New Year's and June. It would be advantageous to have this break come between two terms rather than within a term. Furthermore, as a college grows, more time is needed between terms for the processing of grades; as a result, this requires a recess between terms. It is economical to have such administrative vacations coincide with natural vacation periods.

Under the semester plan which Bloomsburg has followed, the student carries five, six or even seven courses at one time. Since most courses meet three hours a week there is a tendency to concentrate classes on Monday, Wednesday and Friday. As a result, the Bloomsburg calendar discourages an even flow of faculty and student energies through the week, and it requires that both faculty and students handle more courses at one time than can be dealt with efficiently.

These and other considerations might make it desirable to have a calendar which divides the nine months into three terms, with a vacation at the end of each of the terms. In such a calendar a student and a faculty member would be responsible for fewer courses in any term. The quarter system can achieve this, but it requires a late fall start, and a spring term which closes well into June, if a term is to close at Christmas.

A modification of the quarter system is under discussion, one which might provide a solution; but it is at the sacrifice of symmetry.

The final examination periods under such a plan would be shorter in duration, yet provide more time for serious preparation. Because of the reduced number of classes carried by a faculty member, there would be more efficient opportunity for utilization of faculty energies in examinations.

The semester hour is a common measure of courses; the semester hour traditionally represents a class exercise of one hour per week for a semester. Traditionally, a semester represents half of a nine-month academic year. After deducting holidays, vacations, registration periods, examination periods and other necessary activities, a nine-month period nets between thirty and thirty one weeks for actual class meetings, plus the final examinations: this is equivalent to fifteen weekly class meetings plus a final examination for each semester hour credit. A calendar which uses the semester hour as the unit of measure should provide fifteen class meetings of fifty minutes each plus a final examination for each semester hour credit. A class can be taught in a shorter period of time than a semester by increasing the number of hours per week proportionately. Accrediting agencies commonly favor a standard which provides that a student may earn credit at the rate of one semester hour per week. In planning shorter periods than a semester, therefore, there are two quantitative tests: there must be fifteen class meetings plus a final examination for each semester hour of credit; student loads must permit earning credit at the rate of one semester hour per week.

The whole procedure of measuring progress toward a degree by semester hours and courses passed is occasionally criticized, but it is difficult to find a substitute for this kind of measurement in a mass education system. Consequently, in calendar proposals currently under consideration, the standards described above will be observed.

A class meeting is no more than, and no less than, an opportunity for learning. There can be no guarantee that learning will take place, for learning depends upon the teaching, the students and the conditions; but the viewpoint regarding a semester hour of credit may be that it meet the two quantitative tests.

Other principles to be observed in constructing a calendar are these: the total elapsed time for a course should be such that there is optimum opportunity for the integration of the learning experience — when a term is too short the course is compressed so that it becomes little more than a cram session — if the term is too long, as is the case when a fall semester is divided by a two or three week Christmas vacation, the learning experience is spread so that integration of learning is difficult.

A student should not have too many courses at one time. Students at Bloomsburg have had five, six or even seven courses; three or four courses at one time provide a better learning experience, and faculty members who teach three courses at once have a better opportunity to prepare, to plan sound examinations and to read the papers than faculty members with more courses.

Many colleges have found advantages in having two or three so-called "dead days" between the close of classes for a term and the opening of the final examination period. Where this has been experienced, there is often a significant reduction in the amount of cheating.

These then, are principles for calendar construction. Whether Bloomsburg will adopt a new calendar has not yet been decided, but it is being studied.

Administrative Changes

Administrative changes at BSC for the 1971-72 college year include the appointment of Dr. Jerold Griffis as Vice President for Student Life; Dr. Hobart Heller as Acting Vice President for Academic Affairs and Dean of the Faculties; and Dr. Evelyn A. Mayer as Associate Dean for Student Life.

Another appointment made at the beginning of the College year was that of Dr. Stephen M. Bresett, Associate Professor of Health and Physical Education, as Acting Chairman of the Department of Health, Physical Education and Athletics.

Dr. Griffis, a native of Susquehanna Pa., served previously at Ohio University as Dean of Resident Life. He received his bachelor's degree from West Chester State College, his master's degree from Ohio University and his doctorate, in Counseling and Psychology, from the Pennsylvania State University.

As Vice President for Student Life, Dr. Griffis will coordinate the areas of Student Life formerly handled by Associate Vice President Elton Hunsinger and Miss Ellamae Jackson. Mr. Hunsinger assumed duties at Associate Vice President for Campus Services and will coordinate all health services, security and conferences on campus. Miss Jackson retired in August.

Dr. Heller, who served last year as professor-at-large, was named Acting Vice President after Dr. John A. Hoch asked to be relieved of the duties of that office and be returned to classroom teaching. He will serve until a permanent replacement for Dr. Hoch is selected. A native of Berwick, Pa., he earned his bachelor's degree at Gettysburg College and his master's and doctor's degree at Columbia University. He began his teaching career at Berwick High School and then went to Eastern Illinois University where he served as Academic Vice President. Upon retirement he returned to Pennsylvania and served in the Department of Education's Bureau of State Colleges and Universities at Harrisburg before coming to BSC.

Dr. Mayer's position is a new one, created under the reorganizational administrative structure at BSC. She received her bachelor's degree in Health Education at Lock Haven State College, her master's degree in Guidance and Counseling at Shippensburg S. C., and her Doctor of Education degree in Counselor Education at the University of Virginia where she served last year as Assistant Dean of Students. She is a native of Mifflin, Pa., the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Mayer of that community.

Dr. Bresett, who came to Bloomsburg in 1969, received his bachelor's degree and doctorate from Springfield College in Massachusetts and his master's degree from Rutgers University. His teaching and coaching experience include positions in the Ridgewood Public Schools in New Jersey, Springfield College and South Brunswick High School, Monmouth, N.J.

As acting department chairman he is responsible for the total Physical Education and Athletic program at BSC. His appointment followed the resignation of Dr. Clarence A. Moore as Chairman of Health and Physical Education, and the request of Russell Houk to be relieved of duties as Director of Athletics.

DRAMA CLASS PLANS NEW YORK CITY TRIP

The Modern Drama class at Bloomsburg State College is planning a theatre trip to New York City on March 13 and 14. The students will be seeing the following plays: OLD TIMES by Harold Pinter; SLEUTH by Anthony Shaffer; MARY STUART by Schiller and adapted by Stephen Spender; NO PLACE TO BE SOMEBODY by Charles Gordone; THE EFFECT OF GAMMA RAYS ON MAN IN THE MOON MARIGOLDS by Paul Zindel; SOLITAIRE DOUBLE SOLITAIRE by Ribert Anderson; THE BASIC TRAINING OF PAVLO HUMMEL by David Rabe; HAIR, JESUS CHRIST SUPERSTAR.

Former drama students who are interested in making the trip are invited to contact Dr. Susan Rusinko, English Department, BSC.

ENVIRONMENT EDUCATION CONFERENCE IS HELD

A state wide conference on environmental education was held on the BSC campus November 19, 1971. The conference was sponsored by the BSC Biology Department in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Biologists Association. Additional financial support was received from the BSC Community Government Association, Pennsylvania Power and Light Company, and the Roaring Creek Water Company of Shamokin, Pa.

In attendance at the conference were elementary, secondary, and college teachers, representatives of state and federal education and environmental agencies, and representatives of companies exhibiting materials relevant to environmental education. Major objectives of the conference were to provide the two hundred participants with a current assessment of environmental education programs; curricula; teaching materials; aids; sources of financial aid; and future expectations in environmental education pertinent to schools at the elementary, secondary, and college levels.

The conference opened with a keynote address "ECOLOGY AND SURVIVAL, A LIFE SUPPORT SYSTEMS APPROACH", delivered by Dr. William A. Nearing, Connecticut College, New London, Connecticut. The participants then went into special sessions. Chairing the session on Elementary Environmental Education was Dr. James E. Coles, Professor of Biology, BSC. Resource specialists participating were Mrs. Eleanor Bennett, Penna. State Department of Education, Harrisburg; Dr. John Horst, Millersville State College; and Dr. John W. Hug, Bear Run Nature Reserve, Millrun Pa. The session on Secondary Environmental Education was chaired by Dr. J. R. Kroschewsky, Professor of Biology, BSC. Resource specialists participating were Dr. Irwin T. Edgar, Penna. State Department of Education, Harrisburg; Dr. Peter Gail, Stoney-Brooks Millstone Watershed Association, Pennington, N.J.; and Mr. Jack Hershey and Mr. Alan Sexton, Project CARE, Blue Bell, Pa. Dr. Louis V. Mingrone chaired the session on College Environmental Education. Resource specialists taking part were Dr. John McLain, Clarion State College; Dr. John Moss, Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, Pa.; and Dr. Charles L. Remington, Yale University, New Haven, Connecticut.

At the luncheon meeting, the Honorable Franklin L. Kury of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives spoke on "EDUCATION AND THE FUTURE OF THE ENVIRONMENT". The afternoon program consisted of an address given by Mr. George E. Lowe of the U.S. Office of Education, Washington, D.C. explaining "IMPLICATIONS OF THE ENVIRONMENTAL EDUCATION ACT OF 1970". The conference heard summary reports of the special elementary, secondary, and college sessions.

In the evening, the participants heard Dr. Charles L. Remington, Professor of Biology, Yale University, speak on "LAND USE SOLUTIONS FOR A FRAGILE ISLAND WILDERNESS".

Casey Agrees Meeting Needed To Set Foundation Guidelines

Robert B. Casey, state auditor general, has agreed to a suggestion by Dr. Robert J. Nossen, BSC president, that "it would be helpful to hold an early meeting of representatives of the several state college foundations and other appropriate state officers to review the functions of the foundations with an aim of establishing proper guidelines for their operation."

Dr. Nossen's suggestion followed an exchange of letters concerning recommendations made by the auditor general's office in a report of an audit of the Bloomsburg Foundation in September. It was the first state audit of a state college foundation, and the report stressed the legal questions concerning interpretation of the law as it applies to foundations. It also recommended action to prevent the possible co-mingling of College and Commonwealth funds.

The auditor general stated that "the Foundation, as a separate and distinct legal entity, is entitled to receive gifts, grants and other moneys it applies for, solicits, or receives in its own name." He contended, however, that "any gifts or grants received by the College in its own right should remain within the control of the college."

Under this interpretation he recommended that approximately $45,000 from the Endowed Lecture Fund, established in 1958, should be returned to the control of the College. These funds had been transferred to the Foundation, with the Board of Trustees authorizing the Foundation to administer the funds as specified by the grantors.

The audit report also recommended that balances remaining from programs involving use of state-owned facilities should be forwarded to the Commonwealth instead of being placed in the Foundation account. To prevent the possible co-mingling of College and Commonwealth funds, the report recommended that a distinct rental charge for use of Commonwealth property be established.

The auditor general suggested also that a legal ruling be obtained on whether Federal grants could be placed in the Foundation account or whether all such grants should be transferred to the Commonwealth.

Casey said Dr. Nossen had confirmed to him that until such time as we (Bloomsburg State College) can get further clarification or appropriate guidelines, we shall conform to your recommendations . . . the College has and will continue to operate within the framework of law and Commonwealth policy."

Dr. Nossen stated that the Foundation "was deliberately established to serve the needs of the college in ways that could not otherwise be accommodated; . . . at the time of the establishment of the Foundation we sought guidelines, but were unable to get appropriate assistance . . . in fact, we have been unable, even at this time, to get satisfactory answers to a number of questions."

Dr. Nossen said the Foundation was conceived as a way of holding several college accounts and to simplify the bookkeeping procedures, that the Board of Trustees is represented on the Foundation board, that all moneys are always restricted to the intention of the grantor, and that all funds are properly accounted for. He pointed out that the Foundation's by-laws call not only for a private audit, but also for an audit by the state auditor general's office.

The audit report also raised the question of interlocking directorships and recommended that they be discontinued to eliminate any actual or potential conflict of interest. The interlocking directorships referred to concerned William Lank, member of the Board of Trustees, and President Nossen, an officer and director respectively of the United Penn Bank, one of the depositories for College funds.

Dr. Nossen informed Casey that prior to his accepting a position on the advisory board of the United Penn Bank, he had consulted the office of the state Attorney General. He said the then Deputy Attorney General William G. Williams had advised him informally that he "saw no legal difficulties." Dr. Nossen also pointed out that the United Penn Bank is only one of several depositories for college funds, the major depository is and has been the Bloomsburg Bank-Columbia Trust Co.

Dr. Nossen, in his letter to Casey, stated that "we have believed, and continue to believe, that the Foundation . . . provides the most efficient method for handling a series of heretofore scattered College accounts."

Casey's press secretary stated that the audit of the Bloomsburg Foundation just happened to be the first one made and that all State College Foundations will be audited.

Dr. Nossen stressed the need for private funds to enable the college to fulfill several of its objectives. Alumni gifts now are deposited directly with the Foundation which, in turn, guarantees operating capital for the Alumni Association. Hopefully, alumni will respond to the basic need of the college for unrestricted gifts, in accord with the current fund drive. All alumni should have received mailings on this subject.

FORMER PROFESSOR DIES

Dr. Honora MacAuthor Noyes, 60, professor of business education and office practice at Ball State University, died in early November, 1971 at Fort Wayne, Indiana following an illness of several months.

Prior to coming to Ball State, she had taught at Elmira College, 1961-62; West Virginia University, 1957-61; and Bloomsburg State College, 1947-54.

SCHOOL ADMINISTRATORS ATTEND SYMPOSIUM

Put more emphasis upon cooperatively developed performance objectives. Combine supervision and assessment. Avoid, as much as possible, unilateral post-performance rating. This was the essence of the keynote presentation of Dr. George B. Redfern, Associate Secretary, American Association of School Administrators, speaking to school administrators and supervisors meeting in a symposium on instructional accountability meeting at BSC October 28 - 29.

Dr. Redfern, in promoting the concept of evaluation by objectives or job targets, stressed the need to clearly understand duties and responsibilities. An analysis of the expectancies of the position will reveal needs, areas that should be improved. This will lead to the formation of specific performance objectives. Planned action to achieve the goals makes it necessary to tie supervision and assessment closer together. Goal assessment requires bi-lateral action by the teacher and his evaluator, i.e. self-assessment and estimates of accomplishment by his evaluator. The entire process culminates in an evaluation conference by the two parties.

"Performance objectives evaluation," said Dr. Redfern, "will necessarily change the roles of supervisors and principals." Uni-lateral one-way assessments will be de-emphasized. The evaluator will become less of an "instructional umpire" and more of a "diagnostician, coach, facilitator, expeditor, and helper."

Some of the outcomes of evaluation by objectives, concluded Dr. Redfern, will be clearer understanding of job expectancies, more emphasis upon professional growth and development, better communication, higher motivation, and a closer coordination of objectives of the school system and the personal and professional goals of the individual.

LISTENING LABORATORY FOR STUDENTS, FACULTY

Dr. Margaret Sponseller, coordinator of the Reading Clinics at Bloomsburg State College, has announced the opening of the new "Listening Laboratory" which is located in the Benjamin Franklin building. The new "Listening Laboratory" may be used by all faculty and students.

The facility has been made possible through the cooperation of Dr. John A. Hoch, former Vice-President for Academic Affairs and Dean of the Faculties; Dr. C. Stuart Edwards, Dean, School of Professional Studies; Dr. Charles Carlson, Dean, School of Graduate Studies, and Director of Research Activities; and Thaddeus Piotrowski, Director of the Learning Resources Center, Andrus Library; the Reading staff and graduate student assistants. The installation and operational capability of the laboratory was performed by Harold Spotts, College electronics technician.

The laboratory operates for the following purposes: small group listening assignments; individualized instructional listening assignments; general instructional listening assignments; and personal listening.

Sen. Church Is Keynoter For Campus Mock Convention

U. S. Senator Frank Church of Idaho will be the keynote speaker at the Simulated Democratic National Convention to be held in Centennial Gymnasium at Bloomsburg State College on Saturday, April 22, 1972.

Senator Church was the keynote speaker at the 1960 Democratic National Convention in Los Angeles which nominated John F. Kennedy as the Democratic presidential candidate. Elected to the U. S. Senate at the age of 32 in 1956, he was one of the youngest men ever to win a Senate seat.

The mock convention will be the second to be held on the BSC Campus by the college's political science department. The first was held in 1968 and was attended by over 1,300 students from BSC, twelve other colleges and Central Columbia High School. The keynote speaker for that event was Representative Gerald Ford of Michigan, the minority leader of the U. S. House of Representatives.

In addition to Senator Church's keynote address, the 1972 program will include two evenings of films featuring Spencer Tracy in "The Last Hurrah", and Henry Fonda in "Advise and Consent"; a guest speaker who will appear under the auspices of the Artists and Lecture Series; meeting of the Platform Committee to draft resolutions for the convention; an exhibit of campaign items from past Presidential elections; a seminar on Pennsylvania politics conducted by the members of the State Legislature; and the convention itself.

The 1968 convention simulated the Republican National Convention, and the 1972 events are planned to simulate the Democratic Convention. Its purpose will be to determine the students' choices for President and Vice President on the Democratic ticket.

"The College is not interested in advancing the cause of any party or candidate," Prof. James W. Percy of the political science department stated. "nor is the College interested in the participants' personal political affiliation. The intention is to give young people some exposure to political participation in as realistic a manner as possible."

Area high schools and all colleges in Pennsylvania are being contacted to send delegations to the convention. The delegate fee of $1.50 will include: admission to events, membership in a State delegation, and lunch on the day of the convention. The public is invited to observe all proceedings at no charge for admission. Additional information regarding the convention can be obtained by writing to James Percy, Department of Political Science, Bloomsburg State College, Bloomsburg, Penna.

A political and legislative pacesetter, Senator Church draws on 15 years of experience in the Senate. He is Chairman of the Senate Special Committee on Aging and, in addition, holds senior positions on the Senate Interior Committee and on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

In the Senate, Church found a major calling in safeguarding the nation's environment against the ravages of mismanagement and waste. He authored the bill which, in 1968, created the National Wild and Scenic Rivers System. He was Senate floor leader of the bill which established the National Wilderness System and of the legislation which set up the Land and Water Conservation Fund to stimulate expansion of outdoor recreation facilities by state and local governments. Among the many awards he has received is the coveted designation "outstanding conservation legislator" by the National Wildlife Federation.

As a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, he became one of the earliest opponents of American involvement in Vietnam. He is especially well known as the co-author — with Republican Senator John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky — of the Cooper-Church amendment of 1970. By prohibiting the use of U.S. ground combat troops in Cambodia, Laos, or Thailand, without consent of Congress, the amendment became an historic milestone in U.S. Constitutional history, the first statutory limitation ever imposed on an American theater of war.

BSC PLANS SEMINAR FOR SCHOOL DIRECTORS

A seminar for the public school directors will be offered as part of the non-credit Continuing Education offering at BSC, beginning February 1, 1972. The ten sessions will be held each Tuesday evening from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. and will conclude April 18.

The seminar will deal with the following areas: the duties and responsibilities of school directors, the rights of teachers, and the rights of the "youth culture" with reference to their impact and possible future applications; a description and analysis of a nationwide trend toward open space schools; Pennsylvania's professional certification regulations, including the various instructional certificates — specialist certificate, emergency, interim, and permanent. Finally, the dynamics of interpersonal relationships will be dealt with through the use of case studies, simulations, role-playing, and critical incidents.

The seminar will meet in the faculty lounge of the Bakeless Center for the Humanities. Seminar size will be limited to insure personal attention and to allow sufficient time for discussion. A fee of $25 will be required.

INTERMEDIATE UNIT SERVICES DISCUSSED

Dr. Patrick Toole, Executive Director of the Central Susquehanna Intermediate Unit (Unit 16) was the guest speaker at the October 19 Bloomsburg Chapter AAUW meeting.

Unit 16 includes Columbia, Montour, Northumberland, Snyder and Union Counties. As of July 1, 1971, Pennsylvania abolished the Office of County Superintendent of Schools, and created Intermediate Units instead. These Intermediate Units are the bridge between the local school districts and the Department of Education in Harrisburg. There are 29 Units throughout the state of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Toole discussed the services of these new units, the purposes of their creation, and the benefits which the local school districts will derive from the organization of these units. He also emphasized innovative programs within the local schools and services to the local school districts.

BLACK STUDENTS TAKE PART IN CONFERENCE

President Robert Nossen of Bloomsburg State College, along with nine members of the Department of English and 20 black students attended the 15th annual conference of Pennsylvania Council of Teachers of English at The Pennsylvania State University, October 15 and 16.

Dr. Nossen, Dr. Louis Thompson, department chairman, and Dr. Cecil Seronsy participated as speakers at the two-day conference.

Dr. Thompson is serving as Vice President for Colleges.

25 HIGH SCHOOLS SEND EDITORS TO CONFERENCE

The second annual Journalism Institute was held at BSC October 21-23. Twenty-five high schools attended the Institute sponsored by the Department of English and Alpha Phi Gamma, honorary journalism fraternity.

Featured speakers at this year's institute were Robert Fawcett, editor, "Bloomsburg Morning Press," and Edward Schuyler, Jr., an Associated Press sports writer in New York City for more than six years. Philip Thomas, president of The Pennsylvania Scholastic Press Association, also participated.

AWARDS SCHOLARSHIP

The Campbell Soup Company recently awarded the college $250 a year for "The Campbell Soup Company Unrestricted Scholarship" to begin with the 71-72 college year. BSC will be permitted to set up its own criteria for the scholarship. In addition, William Himmelright, West Chester, Penna., who will enter BSC as a freshman this September, received a scholarship of $750 each semester for a total of $6,000 during his four years in college. Himmelright is one of twelve students who received the scholarships given by the Campbell Soup Company to children of its employees.

New Coaches Named For Wrestling, Basketball

Charles Chronister, former assistant basketball coach at Gettysburg College, launches his career as a college head basketball coach, taking over the reins at BSC from Earl Voss, who has joined the Physical Education Department at West Chester State College as assistant basketball coach.

A native of East Berlin, Pennsylvania, Chronister attended Bermudian Springs High School where he was a standout athlete. He matriculated at East Stroudsburg State College, and played varsity basketball and baseball for the Warriors. He earned both his Bachelor of Science and Master of Science degrees in Health and Physical Education at ESSC.

During the 1962-63 season at East Stroudsburg, he served as freshman basketball coach and guided the team to a 17-2 record. He went to Gettysburg after three successful years at Hanover (Pa.) High School. At Hanover, his jayvee and varsity teams were 59-9 while winning county championships and participating in the PIAA District III Class A playoffs.

In addition to coaching the freshman team at Gettysburg, one of his chief responsibilities was recruiting talent for head coach Bob Hulton. This aspect of his coaching career should enable him to oversee and participate in the obtaining of future talent for BSC.

Chronister is married to the former Carol L. Strausbaugh of Hanover, Pa. They have two daughters, Lee Ann age 4 and Garyn Lynn age 2. The Chronisters reside at 1248 Old Berwick Road, Bloomsburg, Penna.

HUSKY CAGERS TO HAVE 'NEW LOOK' THIS YEAR

New head coach Charles Chronister and his assistants Burt Reese and "Doc" Herbert are introducing a new system for the Huskies. The new mentor points out that although BSC has been very successful using a zone defense, he favors a man-to-man style of defense. In addition, he is employing an offense, which will be "a new look" for Bloomsburg.

Chronister feels he has ideal co-captains in two senior returning starters from last year's squad, 6'5" Howard Johnson, New Castle, Delaware, and 6'3" Paul Kuhn, Lebanon. Johnson averaged 15.9 points in 20 games and last year was the team's leading rebounder with an average of 13.8 rebounds per contest. Kuhn was the team's third leading scorer, averaging 14.4 points per game and also was extremely proficient in guarding and playmaking. Another regular performer from last year is junior Art Luptowski, Ridley Park, who again will perform his ball handling magic as the team's No. 1 playmaker. Two other members from last year's squad who saw action as reserves and who should see considerable action this year, are 6'5" junior Dennis Mealy, Levittown, and 6'3" senior Bob Consorti, Chester. The big plus this year will be the tallest player that Bloomsburg has had in recent years, 6'8" sophomore John Willis, formerly of

Coach Chronister

Coach Hinkle

Manville, N.J. and now living in Carbondale. Willis did not participate on last year's freshman squad but has already performed well enough to have the inside track as the starting center.

Supporting Lupowsky in his playmaking role will be Tony DaRae, a 5'10" sophomore from Allentown. The balance of the squad is made up of three other sophomores, 6'3" Gary Petcavage; 6'4" Dave Jones, Shavertown; and 6'0" Gary Choyka, Clarks Summit, plus 6'1" George Hamilton, a junior from Philadelphia who is a transfer student from Temple University.

In analyzing the team's prospects at this early stage, Coach Chronister feels that the Huskies will be right in there fighting for the top spot in the tough Pennsylvania Conference. "We have the talent to do the job, providing we can put it all together," he stated. His main concern in the early practice sessions is for the players to adapt to his style of play, and learning the different strengths and attributes of his players.

YOUNG BUT OPTIMISTIC WRESTLERS THIS YEAR

In his initial year as head wrestling coach, Carl Hinkle has a young but optimistic squad.

The Huskies suffered the loss of eight starters from last season's team through graduation and will rely heavily on the six returning lettermen. Showing the way for the rest of the squad will be the two junior co-captains, Floyd Hitchcock and Ron Sheehan. Hitchcock, a native of Stevensville, Pa., placed first in the Pennsylvania Conference and second in NAIA competitions last season, wrestling in the 190 lb. division in the PC and the 177 lb. class in the NAIA. Sheehan, from Drexel Hill, Pa., placed first in the PC last season, wrestling in the 177 lb. class.

Another BSC standout, James McCue, who was co-captain of the Husky squad in 1968, will serve as assistant coach. "The threesome should provide the experience and maturity to lead the rest of the squad in continuing its winning ways," observed Coach Hinkle.

The main loss through graduation is Wayne Smythe, who placed first in the NAIA last season at 142, Mike Shull, who finished third in the NAIA at 118, and Jim McCue, who compiled

Carl Hinkle, Assistant Professor of Health, Physical Education and Athletics, and freshman football coach at Bloomsburg State College, has been appointed Interim Coach of wrestling for the 1971-72 season.

Hinkle, who joined the BSC faculty at the start of the present college year, wrestled at Berwick High School and was a member of the varsity team at Montana State University, competing in the 166 lb. class. Prior to coming to Bloomsburg, he was an assistant in wrestling at the State University of New York, College at Cortland, and previously held positions in the health, physical education, and coaching assignments at the Amsterdam and Fulton City school districts in New York.

Assisting Hinkle will be James McCue, a veteran wrestler during the past four years at Bloomsburg. As a sophomore, he was Pennsylvania State College champion, and last year he won the Wilkes tournament for his weight division. In mid-season, he injured his shoulder and was unable to continue in competition. He remains at the college, however, completing degree requirements. Training for the wrestling season is now under way and involves approximately thirty candidates.

A graduate of Montana State University where he received a Bachelor of Science degree in physical education, Hinkle also holds the Masters degree in physical education from Ithaca College, Ithaca, N.Y.

He is married to the former Patricia Meyers, of Berwick. The Hinkles reside at 245 West Eleventh Street in Bloomsburg.

NEW COURSE OFFERED

A new undergraduate elective course in Elementary Education entitled "Individualized Instructive Activities in the Elementary School" is currently being offered at BSC. The idea for this offering originated in 1968 when research for a course of a workshop nature was first undertaken by Dr. Donald A. Vannan, Professor of Education, and the instructor for the course. Very few colleges offer such a program in this country.

a first-place finish in the PC and fourth in the NAIA in 1968-69 before being injured. Other returning lettermen for the Husky squad include Bob Dibble, a sophomore from New Albany, Pa., who competes in the 165 lb. class; Randy Watts, a sophomore from Turbotville, Pa., who weighs 158 lbs.; Dan Burkholder, a 170 lb. sophomore from Denver, Pa.; Douglas Grady, a 182 lb. senior from Hatboro, Pa.

Bloomsburg ranked second in the NAIA and fifth in the PC last year with a record of 12 wins and 8 losses. As in the past years, the Huskies face a schedule which includes some of the strongest schools in the East. In addition to the regular strong competitors of the PC, will be Miami of Ohio, Eastern Michigan University, Appalachian State University, Oswego, and Waynesburg.

SWIMMING COMPETITION IS GETTING TOUGHER

"There's no question about it, competition in the Pennsylvania Conference, along with that of our non-conference opponents, becomes stronger each year", BSC coach Eli McLaughlin states. "More stress in swimming is being applied at both the high school and college level, which is resulting in better competition everywhere."

Bloomsburg State embarks on another ambitious schedule of nine Pennsylvania Conference opponents plus five non-conference contests. McLaughlin and his Huskies will be hard pressed to improve on last year's 10-5 record. Bloomsburg is shooting for its seventh straight winning season. "We were particularly proud of our third place finish in the PC meet last year. We were fortunate in edging out East Stroudsburg, a team that defeated us in dual competition," McLaughlin stated. In addition to ESSC, four other teams that defeated Bloomsburg in dual competition — Temple, Monmouth, West Chester, and Clarion — comprise Bloomsburg's greatest challenges this year.

Leading the group of returnees, is BSC's first All American swimmer, freestyler Dave Gibas, a junior from West Mifflin, Pa., where he also earned high school All American honors. Gibas, who was named NAIA 50 yd. freestyler champion, will continue to perform in the 50 and 100 yd. events and anchor either the 400 yd. medley or freestyle relay teams.

In addition, Jack Feyer, Bob Herb, Bob Jones, Ken Narsewicz, Jon Stoner, and Doug Yocom will be counted on to spread their talent over several events and carry the bulk of the load. There are four sophomores and five freshman also battling to make the squad.

McLaughlin is blessed with the best diving prospects he has had in a number of years. Steve Coleman and Bob Myers are back along with newcomers Eric Cureton, Dan Legosky, and Jim Smith.

Although the Huskies will be spotting in some events, overall team balance should provide keen competition. Everyone has shown an early desire and enthusiasm and McLaughlin points out with that type of attitude. Bloomsburg should have another successful season.

SOPHOMORES TEAM WITH WARNER ON GRIDIRON

In his initial year as head football coach of Bloomsburg State College, Bill Sproule directed the Huskies, comprised chiefly of sophomores and juniors, to a season's record of 4-5.

In concluding the season, the Huskies lost to a powerful East Stroudsburg team, 26-7. Victories were recorded over the University of Scranton, Mansfield, California, and Cheyney while the other four losses were to Lock Haven, West Chester, Millersville, and Kutztown.

Despite a losing season, there were some bright spots for the Huskies, Bob Warner, 6'2" 230 lb. tailback, showed why he is considered a pro prospect. The Stroudsburg senior led the squad in rushing with 635 yards in 180 attempts for an average of 3.5 yards per carry. Warner also finished second in the receiving department, garnering 10 passes for 124 yards and ranked behind quarterback Joe Geiger, in total points scored with 6 TD's to his credit.

Joe Courter, a sophomore wide receiver from Willow Grove, Pa., was the favorite target of Geiger, catching 21 passes for 241 yards to lead the team in receptions. Geiger, a sophomore from Lancaster, Pa., connected for 630 yards in the air and collected 291 yards on the ground. He ran for 7 touchdowns and 1 two-point conversion, tallying a total of 44 points. Fullback John James, Bristol, was the second rusher with a total of 364 yards and a 3.8 per carry average.

The Huskies were also strong in the kicking department with place kicker Neil Obersholtzer and punters Dan Stellfox and Warner. Obersholtzer, a junior from Columbia, Pa., who recorded a number of field goals as a freshman and sophomore, kicked 14 extra points this season while senior Stellfox, Glenolden, averaged 40.1 yards in 45 kicks. Warner, who punted 17 times when Stellfox was injured, averaged 40.6 yards per boot.

Linebacker Ken Klock, Trevorton, led the team in tackles followed by middle guard John Cox, a junior from Levittown. Rich Walton, a junior from Berwick at right tackle, was considered the top linesman on offense.

The loss of only six seniors through graduation, points to a more experienced Husky squad in 1972.

BOB TUCKER ONE OF NFL'S TOP RECEIVERS

By Tom Huntington

Sports Editor, Berwick Enterprise

Guess who is one of the tri-leaders in pass receiving in the National Conference of the NFL?

It's not Gene Washington of the San Francisco 49ers nor Bob Hayes of the Dallas Cowboys. It's Bob Tucker of Bloomsburg State College, Pottstown Firebirds and Hazleton vintage.

Tucker, the New York Giants' tight end, has 34 catches for 373 yards. Of course, Ted Kwalick, 49ers, and Dick Gordon, Chicago, have more yardage, 465 and 469 respectively, but they too have 34 receptions which leaves the three in a flatfooted tie.

However, of the three, Tucker came into the NFL the less heralded. Bloomsburg State isn't the most famous name in college football and Tucker struggled for three years in the minor leagues, being rejected twice by the Philadelphia Eagles, before the Giants recognized that here was an end with potential.

One of the big knocks that the Eagles had against Tucker was that he couldn't run and he couldn't block. There was no question about his ability to snatch a football out of mid-air. His acrobatic catches while at BSC have yet to be duplicated.

Now, after four years of hard work to improve himself, no one is saying Tucker can't block or run with the football. In fact, he's being boomed for All-Pro!

In an article which appeared in the New York Daily News, written by Larry Fox, Fran Tarkenton was quoted as saying:

"Without question, Bob's the best tight end in football," Tarkenton said. "There's not one who can block with him especially with the way he handles those big defensive ends like Eller and Humphreys; he never drops the football, and he can run with it once he catches it."

"There he is, up there among the leading receivers even though he's missed two games and even though our opponents know I'm going to be throwing to him. If he doesn't make all-pro there's something wrong!"

Tarkenton is not an altogether disinterested observer. Tucker is not only his teammate and favorite target (twice as many catches as any other Giant), but also his roommate on the road where they while away the hours playing either a juvenile game called Battleship, or chess. Tucker is the chess master known for his non-stop series with on Johnson and he's initiating Tarkenton into the game.

Alex Webster seconds Tarkenton's praise of Tucker, pointing out that "he can catch the football and also do what a tight end has to do — block; you get very few who can do both."

CROSS COUNTRY TEAM HAS A 6-4 RECORD

The Bloomsburg State College cross country team ended its dual meet competition for the season with a 6-4 record.

The Maroon and Gold team posted their 3rd straight winning season. The 1969 and the 1970 records, 11-1 and 10-1 respectively, were the best ever posted in the history of the college. The charges of Coach Clyde Nebel got off to a slow start back in early October due to a series of illnesses and were defeated in their first two meets by Mansfield and Lock Haven. The only other loss was to the strong Millersville team.

Three seniors were in their last year of competition for the CC team. They are: Larry Strohl, Hazleton; Rod Dewing, Warren Center; and Paul Pelletier, Woodbridge, N. J. Juniors Tim Waechter, Camphill, and Terry Lee, Malvern, are again expected to lead the Huskies in the competition next season.

SPEECH DISABILITY TEACHING AID PROJECT

A two year project of training and special teaching to help children with language disabilities was formally launched with an orientation conference held at Bloomsburg State College September 17.

The project, to be directed by the Department staff on behalf of Intermediate School Units 16, 18 and 29, has been funded by a first year grant of $135,000 from E.S.E.A. Title III, Federal funds administered by the Pennsylvania State Department of Education. The Central Susquehanna Intermediate Unit is receiving the special funds for participating school areas.

The purpose of the project is to train professionals from the schools to administer newly available programs to aid children with language and speech problems.

$4,500 OIL PAINTING IS GIVEN TO COLLEGE

Bloomsburg State College received an oil painting by the noted Japanese artist Tetsuro Sawada in October. The gift was made possible through the generous efforts of Miss Toshiko Takaezu, well known American Craftsman, and Mrs. Kathryn Trubeck, of the Hunderdon Art Center in Clinton, New Jersey. Selection of the painting was made by Dr. Percival R. Roberts, III, chairman of the department of art at BSC.

Dr. Roberts described the gift as a "stunning example of structured color field abstraction, one that will greatly enhance our college's permanent art collection."

The Hunderdon Art Center featured an exhibition of his work in March of 1971 and it was from this collection that the BSC painting, valued at $4,500, was selected.

CHAIRS AVAILABLE

Alumni Chairs are now available at the College Store. We have a Captain's Chair with Cherry Arms for $40.95 plus tax and shipping, and a Boston Rocker for $31.95 plus tax and shipping. INSTITUTE — SOCIAL STUDIES

The Bloomsburg State College Institute for Social Studies Teachers held a conference on "Afro-Americans in American Life" on Friday, November 19. The Institute is a cooperative education program between Bloomsburg State College and thirty-four public school districts which involves around eight hundred elementary and secondary social studies teachers.

The Institute's Director, George A. Turner, Associate Professor of History, said the conference was concerned with various approaches and methods which would enable teachers to recognize and include Afro-Americans in the social studies curriculum.

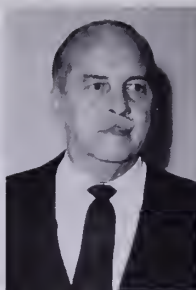

The keynote address, "Introducing Afro-American Studies Into the Curriculum for Teachers," given by William Green, curriculum specialist in African and Afro-American Studies in the Philadelphia School District. Green, in his talk, pointed out that the history of Africans and Afro-Americans has been omitted, distorted and presented in such a biased manner that myths and stereotypes have become the central core of a racist ideology which has denied a sense of humanity to the person of African ancestry.

Others participating were Dr. Walter A. Simon, Professor of Art at BSC; James Pescy, Associate Professor of Political Science at BSC; Mrs. Helene C. Broome, Associate Director of Instruction in the Harrisburg City Schools; and Steven S. McLaine, a teacher at Trenton Central High School. The Bloomsburg State College Black Student Society presented views and reactions to history and its "Student Perspective of Black Studies," discussing views and reactions to history and its presentation. Jay Rochelle, Bloomsburg State College Chaplain, gave a program "Simulation Games in a Classroom Situation."

This was the first of three conferences on the topic of "Minorities in American Life," sponsored by the Bloomsburg State College Institute for Social Studies Teachers.

Tom Gorrey

Dr. Herre

TOM GORREY TO LEAVE SUPERINTENDENT'S POST

Thomas A. Gorrey, superintendent of buildings and grounds at Bloomsburg State College since 1959, has announced his retirement effective January 28, 1972.

In reporting the resignation, Dr. Robert J. Nossen, president, lauded Gorrey highly and the board went on record to commend him for his service.

A native of Bloomsburg, Gorrey was graduated from Bloomsburg High School in 1921. From that time he was associated with his father, the late John J. Gorrey, in the general contracting business until his father's death in 1947. He continued in that business until he was named to the college post.

His twelve-year tenure corresponded with the period of greatest physical growth in the history of the college. In addition to being responsible for maintenance of all buildings, both old and new, he actively participated in the design and construction of numerous buildings and other campus facilities.

The addition of new buildings has resulted in a significant increase in the number of employees in the buildings and grounds department. The staff includes custodians, tradesmen, and other buildings and grounds personnel.

One college official noted Gorrey and his staff have earned the praise of visitors for the appearance of the campus and the manner in which the facilities have been maintained. Werkheiser, are parents of a daughter, Mrs. Thomas Madden, town, and they have two grandchildren and one great grandchild.

25th ANNAUL CONFERENCE

Approximately 50 departmental programs under the School of Business and School of Professional Studies were available to participants at the 25th Annual Conference for Teachers and Administrators held at Bloomsburg State College Saturday, October 30, according to Dr. C. Stuart Edwards, Dean, School of Professional Studies and conference director.

In addition to the divisional programs and the general session, there were specially-scheduled group breakfasts, exhibits and refreshments, and an informal luncheon.

DR. HERRE WILL RETIRE, ON FACULTY SINCE 1947

Dr. Ralph S. Herre, a member of the faculty at Bloomsburg State College since 1947, has announced his retirement effective at the end of the 1971-72 college year.

Dr. Herre joined the faculty as a Professor of History and has also served as an Assistant Dean of Men since 1948. During his 25 years at BSC he has served on numerous faculty committees, including being chairman of Homecoming and Freshman Parent's Day. He served as advisor to the commuting men on campus for over 20 years and participated for many years in high school Career and College Day, visiting as many as 35 schools in a year. For the past year he has served as curator of the Columbia County Historical Museum located in Bakeless Center for the Humanities on campus.

Following his retirement, Dr. Herre will continue to be the curator of the Columbia County Historical Museum. The Herres plan to do some traveling in this country and abroad.

Volume LXXII, Number 4, December, 1971

I wish to express my personal sorrow for the recent loss of Dr. Kimber C. Kuster.

I first came to know Dr. Kuster as a fellow student in the fall of 1910. We were both day students, and our headquarters were the "Check Room," a dingy area in the basement of Noetting Hall. I spent a week-end at his home, and he, in turn, spent a week-end at my home.

After graduation, our paths separated for several years, until he returned to Bloomsburg as a member of the faculty, following the retirement of Professor Hartline.

We worked together as colleagues on the faculty, as members of the same church, and a member of the Board of Directors of the Alumni Assn.

Dr. Kuster did a wonderful piece of work as Chairman of the Awards Committee. He handled all of the countless details involved in selecting the recipients of the Distinguished Service Award.

Dr. Kuster was also very active in community affairs. He served for several years as Chairman of the Bloomsburg Chapter of the Red Cross. He also was active in many other organizations in Bloomsburg.

We are happy that his name will be perpetuated in the Kuster Auditorium of the Hartline Center, thus joining the names of two persons who have loomed large in the history of the Bloomsburg State College.

This is my personal tribute to a man whom I shall always remember as a beloved friend.

B.S.C. ANNUAL GIVING CAMPAIGN

Once there was a turtle. He was brilliant, aggressive, handsome, inventive, accomplished, inquisitive, amorous, composed, and loyal to his Alma Mater. He was rarely given to turtlenapping, woolgathering, daydreaming, revelry, absentmindedness, or procrastination. He was the epitomy of turtle purposefulness.

One day the turtle received a short note from Mr. Aesop who was Director of Alumni Affairs of the turtle's college "Old Mill Pond." Mr. Aesop asked for a contribution to the Annual Giving Campaign and also the turtle's biography. He suggested that the turtle's classmates might be interested in such an unusual fellow. The turtle was delighted. He took pen in hand to comply with Mr. Aesop's request.

At that precise moment a neighborly hare hounded him to have a race. Reckless in his zeal to answer the challenge, the turtle neglected Mr. Aesop's appeal. When he won the race against overwhelming odds, the Director of Alumni Affairs had no biography for his 16-page, quarterly edition of the Alumni Quarterly, and although the race became famous, the turtle did not.

Please don't be a turtle unless it is a thaumaturgical turtle.

Send a contribution to the BSC ANNUAL GIVING CAMPAIGN and we will make sure your name is in the Summer edition of 1971 CONTRIBUTORS.

We'll even include some "news" in one of our QUARTERLY mailings if you send it to us.

This may not make you famous, but we hope it will make you feel good that you have helped Bloomsburg State College.
